(A) the amount that would be determined under subparagraph (i) in respect of the trust for the year, if that subparagraph were read without reference to clause (i)(A), is deemed to be income of the trust for the year from sources in the country other than Canada in which the trust would, but for subparagraph (i), be resident, and

(B) any income or profits tax paid by the trust for the year (other than any tax paid because of this section), to the extent that it can reasonably be regarded as having been paid in respect of that income, is deemed to be non-business income tax paid by the trust to the government of that country, and

(d) in any other case, for the purposes of subsections 91(1) to (4) and sections 95 and 233.4,

(i) the trust shall, with respect to any beneficiary under the trust the fair market value of whose beneficial interest in the trust is not less than 10% of the aggregate fair market value of all beneficial interests in the trust, be deemed to be a non-resident corporation that is controlled by the beneficiary,

(ii) the trust shall be deemed to be a non-resident corporation having a capital stock of a single class divided into 100 issued shares, and

(iii) each beneficiary under the trust shall be deemed to own at any time the number of the issued shares that is equal to the proportion of 100 that

(A) the fair market value at that time of the beneficiary's beneficial interest in the trust

is of

(B) the fair market value at that time of all beneficial interests in the trust.

Technical Notes: OVERVIEW

Existing Rules

Section 94 of the Act sets out rules that tax the passive income earned by certain non-resident trusts. Section 94 generally applies if a person resident in Canada has transferred or loaned property to a non-resident trust that has one or more beneficiaries who are resident in Canada.

Section 94 uses two different methods to impose tax, depending on whether or not the trust is discretionary. A discretionary trust is a trust under which a person has a discretionary power to determine the amount of the income or capital of the trust that one or more beneficiaries will receive.

If the non-resident trust is discretionary, paragraph 94(1)(c) deems the trust to be resident in Canada for the purposes of Part I of the Act and deems its income for tax purposes to be the total of its Canadian source income and its foreign accrual property income, if any. Each beneficiary is jointly and severally liable to pay the Canadian tax of the trust. However, the liability can be enforced against a particular beneficiary only to the extent that the beneficiary has received a distribution from the trust or proceeds from the sale of an interest in the trust.

If the non-resident trust is not a discretionary trust, paragraph 94(1)(d) provides that it is to be treated in much the same manner that a non-resident corporation is treated. If a Canadian resident beneficiary holds an interest in the trust with a fair market value equal to 10% or more of the total fair market value of all interests in the trust, the trust is deemed to be a controlled foreign affiliate of the beneficiary. Consequently, the foreign accrual property income rules apply to the trust and the beneficiary, requiring the beneficiary to include a portion of the foreign accrual property income of the trust in income. On the other hand, beneficiaries that do not have 10% or greater interests in the trust may be subject to tax under the offshore investment fund rules in section 94.1. If section 94.1 does not apply, such beneficiaries are taxed only if trust income becomes payable to them in the year that it arises.

New Rules

New section 94 takes a different approach to the taxation of non-resident trusts (NRTs) that bears some similarity to the grantor trust approach used by the United States, New Zealand and Australia. In general, if a Canadian resident contributes property to a non-resident trust, the contributor, the non-resident trust and certain Canadian resident beneficiaries of the trust may all become liable to pay Canadian tax on the world-wide income of the trust.

Except as indicated otherwise, the amendments to section 94 apply to taxation years of trusts that begin after 2000. The table below briefly summarizes section 94 and related rules.

Issue	Summary	References
1. Which trusts are subject to the new NRT rules?	A. In general, a trust (other than an exempt foreign trust) will be subject to tax for a taxation year as a trust resident in Canada if a contribution was made to the trust by a person who is resident in Canada at the end of the year (other than a recent immigrant to Canada).	S. 94(3) "exempt foreign trust" — s. 94(1)"contribution" — s. 94(1) and (2) "resident contributor" — s. 94(1) As to 60-month test for new immigrants, see definition "resident contributor" in s. 94(1).
	B. In addition, a trust (other than an exempt foreign trust) will generally be subject to Canadian tax for a taxation year if• the contribution was made by a person when the person was resident in Canada (or within a 60-month period before the person became resident in Canada or within a 60-month period after the person ceased to be resident in Canada),• by the end of the year that person had been resident in Canada for more than 60 months, and• at the end of the year there is a person resident in Canada who is beneficially interested in the trust. 2. Who is responsible for the tax payable an NRT?	The trust is required to pay tax. If it fails to do so, each contributor referred to in 1(A) and/or each beneficiary referred to in 1(B) is jointly and severally liable with the trust for the tax. However, the amount recoverable from a person who is simply a beneficiary is limited to benefits received by the beneficiary from the trust. Relief is also available in some cases for a contributor whose contribution to the trust is insignificant relative to other contributions made to the trust.	Joint liability: paragraph 94(3)(d) Relief from joint liability: s. 94(7)10% and $10,000 tests for significant contribution: paragraph 94(7)(b).
3. Where the NRT rules do apply for a taxation year to a trust, how will the trust's tax liabilities be calculated?	A. Canadian rules apply to the trust as if the trust were resident in Canada throughout the year for the purpose of computing the trust's income.	s. 94(3)
	B. Explicit rule treats the trust as becoming resident in Canada, with resulting adjustment to cost amount of property under section 128.1.	s. 94(3)(c)
	C. Parts XII.2 and XIII do not apply to the trust. Explicit exemption from Part XIII tax on amounts distributed to the trust, although payer must still withhold.	s. 94(3)(a)(iii) and (4)(d)
	D. Flow-through of income to resident and non-resident beneficiaries permitted, subject to special rules in the event that Canadian-source income is distributed to non-residents.	s. 104(7.01) — special rules

94. Treatment of Trusts with Canadian Contributors — (1) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this section.

"accounting profit" of a trust for a taxation year of the trust means

(a) where the trust prepares financial statements in accordance with accounting principles substantially similar to generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada, the trust's profit for the year (determined before taking into account income or profits tax) reflected in the trust's financial statements; and

(b) in any other case, the amount that would be the trust's total profit for the year (determined before taking into account income or profits tax) from businesses carried on by the trust, properties owned by the trust, or any combination of those businesses and properties, if that amount were calculated in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(1) of the Act defines a number of expressions that apply for the purpose of section 94.

The "accounting profit" of a trust for a taxation year refers to the trust's profit for the year (determined before taking into account income or profits tax) reflected in its financial statements, on the assumption that the financial statements were prepared in accordance with accounting principles substantially similar to generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada. Where such financial statements have not been prepared, a trust's "accounting profit" for a taxation year is the amount that would be the trust's total profit (determined before taking into account income or profits tax) for the year, from businesses carried on by the trust and properties owned by the trust, if that amount were calculated in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada.

This definition is used only in paragraph (d) of the definition "exempt foreign trust", as described in the commentary below.

"arm's length transfer" at any time by a person or partnership (in this definition referred to as the "transferor") in respect of a trust means a particular transfer or loan of property at that time by the transferor to a particular person or partnership (in this definition referred to as the "recipient") where

(a) one of the following applies, namely,

(i) in exchange for the particular transfer or loan, the recipient transfers or loans property, or becomes obligated to transfer or loan property, and it is reasonable to conclude, having regard only to the particular transfer or loan and the property transferred or loaned, or obligated to be transferred or loaned, by the recipient to the transferor in exchange, that

(A) the exchange is one that the transferor would have been willing to carry out if the transferor had dealt at arm's length with the recipient, and

(B) the terms and conditions made or imposed in respect of the exchange would have been acceptable to the transferor if the transferor had dealt at arm's length with the recipient,

(ii) the particular transfer or loan is a payment of interest, a dividend, rent, a royalty or any similar return on investment, or any substitute for such a return on investment, in respect of a particular property owned by the recipient immediately before that time, if the fair market value at that time of the property so transferred does not exceed the fair market value of property that the transferor would have been willing to transfer at that time in respect of the particular property to the recipient if the transferor had dealt at arm's length with the recipient,

(iii) the particular transfer or loan

(A) is in satisfaction of an obligation that arose because of a transfer to which subparagraph (i) applied, and

(B) is one that the transferor would have been willing to carry out if the transferor had dealt at arm's length with the recipient,

(iv) the particular transfer or loan was made in the ordinary course of the business of the transferor, or

(v) it is reasonable to conclude that none of the reasons for the particular transfer or loan was to permit or facilitate, directly or indirectly, the conferral, in the future, of a benefit in respect of the trust on

(A) the transferor,

(B) a descendant of the transferor, or

(C) any person with whom the transferor or descendant does not deal at arm's length; and

(b) it is reasonable to conclude that the reasons for which the property was transferred or loaned to the recipient did not include the relationship between the transferor and

(i) any person or partnership that was

(A) beneficially interested in the trust,

(B) a trustee of the trust,

(C) a person having influence over the operation of the trust or the enforcement of its terms, or

(D) a person having influence over the selection or appointment of any person or partnership referred to in any of clauses (A) to (C) or this clause, or

(ii) any group at least one of the members of which is described in subparagraph (i).

Technical Notes: An "arm's length transfer" does not result in any person or partnership being considered to be a "contributor" to a trust. Accordingly, subsection 94(3) does not apply to a non-resident trust as a consequence only of an arm's length transfer.

An "arm's length transfer" is, in general terms:

- a transfer or loan that is part of an arm's length exchange [Subparagraph (a)(i) of the definition.],
- an arm's length return on an investment, conferred by the entity in which the investment is made [Subparagraph (a)(ii) of the definition.],
- a repayment of an arm's length loan [Subparagraph (a)(iii) of the definition.],
- a transfer or loan made in the ordinary course of business [Subparagraph (a)(iv) of the definition.], or
- a transfer or loan that was not undertaken to allow for the conferral, in the future, of a benefit on the transferor, on a descendant of the transferor or on any person with whom the transferor or descendant does not deal at arm's length [Subparagraph (a)(v) of the definition.].

However, a transfer or loan qualifies as an "arm's length transfer" in respect of a trust only where it is reasonable to conclude that none of reasons for the transfer or loan included the relationship between the maker of the transfer or loan and any person or partnership that was

- beneficially interested in the trust,
- a trustee of the trust,
- a person having influence over the operation of the trust or the enforcement of its terms, or
- a person having influence over the selection or appointment of other persons so described.

It should be noted that, under amended subsection 233.2(4) and new subsection 233.2(4.1), an "arm's length transfer" covered by subparagraph (a)(v) of the definition cannot be used as a basis for an exemption from the reporting requirements under those subsections. Reporting requirements under those subsections are structured in this way so that claims for relief on the basis of paragraph (a)(v) of the definition "arm's length transfer" can be carefully scrutinized by the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency (CCRA).

Reference should also be made to new subsection 94(2), which provides various rules that have the effect of broadening the meaning of a "transfer" of property.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 94(2) [proposed] — Deemed transfers in various situations; 94(3) [proposed] — No application to non-resident trust on arm's length transfer.

"connected contributor" to a trust at any time means a person (including any person who has ceased to exist) who is a contributor to the trust at that time, other than

(a) an individual (other than a trust) who was, at or before that time, resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, not more than 60 months, and

(b) a person who would not be a contributor to the trust at that time if

(i) the transfers and loans referred to in paragraph (a) of the definition "contribution" made by the person at a non-resident time of the person were not taken into account,

(ii) the particular transfers and loans referred to in paragraph (b) of that definition made by the person at a non-resident time of the person were not taken into account, and

(iii) each obligation referred to in paragraph (c) of that definition arising at a non-resident time of the person were not taken into account, and, for the purpose of this definition, a "non-resident time" of a person means a particular time at which the person is non-resident, where the person was non-resident or not in existence throughout the period that began 60 months before the particular time (or, where the particular time is before June 23, 2000 or the trust arose on and as a consequence of the death of the person, 18 months before the particular time) and ends 60 months after the particular time.

Technical Notes: Where a person is a "connected contributor" to a trust, it can result in another person being a "resident beneficiary" under a non-resident trust. A "resident beneficiary" under a non-resident trust can, to an extent, be liable for the trust's income tax, as set out in greater detail on the commentary on subsections 94(3) and (7).

A "connected contributor" at any time is any person, living or deceased, who is a "contributor" to the trust (as defined in new subsection 94(1)) at that time, provided that the person:

- is not, or at the time of death was not, a recent immigrant to Canada (i.e., an individual who was resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, not more than 60 months), or
- is not a person who is a "contributor" only because of one or more transactions that occurred at a "non-resident time" of the contributor.

For these purposes, a "non-resident time" is defined within the definition "connected contributor" as being a particular time at which a contributor is non-resident, provided that the contributor is also non-resident (or not in existence) throughout the period that began 60 months before the particular time and ends 60 months after the particular time. However, if the particular time occurs before June 23, 2000 or the trust arose on and as a consequence of the death of the person, the period begins 18 months (rather than 60 months) before the particular time, consistent with existing subclause 94(1)(b)(i)(A)(II).

"contribution" at any time to a trust by a particular person or partnership means

(a) a transfer or loan at that time of property to the trust by the particular person or partnership (other than an arm's length transfer);

(b) where a particular transfer or loan of property is made by the particular person or partnership (other than an arm's length transfer by the particular person or partnership in respect of the trust) as part of a series of transactions or events that includes another transfer or loan of a property that is made at that time to the trust by another person or partnership, that other transfer or loan to the extent that it can reasonably be considered to have been enabled by the particular transfer or loan; and

(c) where the particular person or partnership becomes obligated to make a particular transfer or loan (other than an arm's length transfer by the particular person or partnership in respect of the trust) as part of a series of transactions or events that includes a transfer or loan of a property that is made at that time by another person or partnership, that transfer or loan to the extent that it can reasonably be considered to have been enabled by that obligation.

Technical Notes: Where a "contribution" is made to a non-resident trust by a person, that person is a "contributor" who, in certain cases, can be jointly and severally liable under subsection 94(3) for the trust's income taxes.

A transferor is considered to make a "contribution" to a trust where a property is transferred or loaned to the trust and any one of three alternative sets of conditions is satisfied. The three sets of conditions are described below.

First, a transfer or loan of a particular property at any time to a trust is considered to be a contribution at that time by a person or partnership to a trust where:

- the particular property is, at that time, transferred, or loaned, directly to the trust by the person or partnership; and
- the transfer or loan is not an "arm's length transfer" (as described in the commentary above).

The second and third alternate sets of conditions deal with cases where a particular person or partnership can be viewed as indirectly contributing property to a trust because of a loan or transfer of property (or an obligation to transfer or loan property) to another person or partnership (other than the trust). In such circumstances, property contributed at a particular time in the same series of transactions and events by another person or partnership to a trust will be treated as having been contributed at the particular time by the particular person or partnership to the trust.

More specifically, the second alternate set of conditions deals with the case where a particular transfer or loan of a property (other than an arm's length transfer) is made by a particular person or partnership as part of a series of transactions or events that includes another transfer or loan of any property, to the particular trust, by another person or partnership. The other transfer or loan is a considered to be a "contribution" to the particular trust by the particular person or partnership to the extent that the other transfer or loan can reasonably be considered to have been enabled by the particular transfer or loan. The contribution is considered to be made at the time of the other transfer or loan.

The third alternate set of conditions deals with the case where a particular person or partnership becomes obligated to make a particular transfer or loan of a property (other than in an arm's length transfer) as part of a series of transactions or events that includes another transfer or loan of any property, to the particular trust, by another person or partnership. The other transfer or loan is considered to be a "contribution" by the particular person or partnership to the particular trust to the extent that the other transfer or loan can reasonably be considered to have been enabled by the particular person's obligation to make the particular loan or transfer. The contribution is considered to be made at the time of the other transfer or loan.

Under new subsection 94(2), there are a number of rules that have the effect of applying the definition "contribution" more broadly than would otherwise be the case. For example, the rendering of services is generally treated as a transfer of property. An obligation to render services is likewise treated as an obligation to transfer property. For more details, see the commentary on subsection 94(2).

As noted earlier, this definition applies to taxation years of trusts that begin after 2000, whether or not a relevant transfer or loan occurred before that time. However, in order to provide for transition between the existing and new rules, a contribution does not include:

- a payment to a trust before 2002 in satisfaction of any amount payable to the trust, or
- the repayment made before 2005, in accordance with terms of repayment established before June 23, 2000, to a trust of a loan made by the trust. (This exception is consistent with existing section 5909 of the Income Tax Regulations.)

"contributor" to a trust at any time means a person or partnership that, at or before that time, has made a contribution to the trust.

Technical Notes: A "contributor" to a trust is any person or partnership that has made a "contribution" to the trust. See, in this regard, the commentary on the definition "contribution". The definition "contributor" is significant primarily for the purposes of the definitions "resident contributor" and "connected contributor".

Reference should also be made in this context to new paragraphs 94(2)(k) to (o), under which "look-through" rules are provided to deal with cases where trusts, partnerships or corporations are contributors.

Related Provisions: 75(3)(c.2) — Reversionary trust rules do not apply to non-resident trust even with Canadian resident contributor; 233.2(4) — Annual information return by contributor to non-resident trust.

"exempt foreign trust" at a particular time means

(a) a non-resident trust, where

(i) each beneficiary of the trust at the particular time is

(A) an individual who, at the time that the trust was created, was, because mental or physical infirmity, dependent on an individual who is a contributor to the trust or on an individual related to such a contributor (which beneficiary is in this paragraph referred to as an "infirm beneficiary"), or

(B) a person who is entitled, only after the particular time, to receive or otherwise obtain the use of any of the trust's income or capital,

(ii) at least one infirm beneficiary suffers at the particular time from a mental or physical infirmity that causes the beneficiary to be dependent on any person,

(iii) each infirm beneficiary is non-resident at any time in the trust's taxation year that includes the particular time (in this definition referred to as the trust's "current year"), and

(iv) each contribution to the trust made at or before the particular time can reasonably be considered to have been, at the time that the contribution was made, made to provide for the maintenance of an infirm beneficiary during the expected period of the beneficiary's infirmity;

(b) a non-resident trust, where

(i) the trust was created after the breakdown of a marriage or common-law partnership of two individuals to provide for the maintenance of a beneficiary under the trust who is a child of one of those individuals (which beneficiary is in this paragraph referred to as a "child beneficiary"),

(ii) each beneficiary of the trust at the particular time is

(A) a child beneficiary under 21 years of age at the particular time,

(B) a child beneficiary under 31 years of age at the particular time who is enroled at any time in the trust's current year at an educational institution that is described in clause (v)(A) or (B), or

(C) a person who is entitled, only after the particular time, to receive or otherwise obtain the use of any of the trust's income or capital,

(iii) each child beneficiary is non-resident at any time in the trust's current year,

(iv) each contributor to the trust at the particular time was one of those individuals or a person related to one of those individuals, and

(v) each contribution to the trust, at the time that the contribution was made, was made to provide for the maintenance of a child beneficiary, while the child was either under 21 years of age, or was under 31 years of age and enroled at an educational institution located outside Canada that is

(A) a university, college or other educational institution that provides courses at a post-secondary school level, or

(B) an educational institution that provides courses that furnish a person with skills for, or improve a person's skills in, an occupation;

(c) a non-resident trust where

(i) at the particular time, the trust is an agency of the United Nations,

(ii) at the particular time, the trust owns and administers a university described in paragraph (f) of the definition "total charitable gifts" in subsection 118.1(1), or

(iii) at any time in the calendar year that includes the particular time or at any time in the preceding calendar year, Her Majesty in right of Canada has made a gift to the trust;

(d) a non-resident trust that has a taxation year that ends at or before the particular time where

(i) the trust was created exclusively for charitable purposes and has been operated, throughout the period that began at the time it was created and ends at the particular time, exclusively for charitable purposes,

(ii) where the particular time is more than 24 months after the day on which the trust was created, there is a group of at least 20 persons (other than trusts) at the particular time who are all contributors to the trust and who all deal with each other at arm's length,

(iii) the accounting profit of the trust for each such taxation year would, if the profit were not distributed and the laws described in subparagraph (iv) did not apply, be subject to an income or profits tax in a particular country other than Canada, and

(iv) for each such taxation year, the laws of the particular country exempted the trust from the payment of any income or profits tax to the government of that country in recognition of the charitable purposes for which the trust is operated;

(e) a non-resident trust that is, or but for any of paragraphs (a) to (n) of the definition "retirement compensation arrangement" in subsection 248(1) would be, governed by a retirement compensation arrangement;

(f) a non-resident trust that is governed by a foreign retirement arrangement;

(g) a non-resident trust that is governed by an employees profit sharing plan;

(h) a non-resident trust that is a trust described in paragraph (c) of the definition "exempt trust" in subsection 233.2(1); or

(i) a prescribed trust.

Technical Notes: An "exempt foreign trust" includes a number of different types of non-resident trusts that are exempt from the application of new subsection 94(3). The expression refers to the following types of non-resident trusts:

- (a) a non-resident trust the current income (determined with reference to amended subsection 108(3)) or capital from which can be provided only to one or more physically or mentally infirm dependent individuals, provided that these individuals are non-resident and that any property settled on the trust could reasonably be considered, at the time it was settled, to be necessary for the maintenance of those individuals;
- (b) a non-resident trust created after the breakdown of a marriage or common-law partnership of two individuals, the current income (determined with reference to amended subsection 108(3)) or capital from which can be provided only to non-resident children of one of the individuals, if the children are under 21 years of age (or under 31 years of age and enrolled in a specified educational institution) and each "contribution" to the trust (as defined in subsection 94(1)) was to provide for the maintenance of those children;
- (c) certain non-resident trusts that could qualify under the definition "total charitable gifts" in subsection 118.1(1) as a recipient permitted for the purposes of the tax credit for charitable gifts;
- (d) certain non-resident trusts established exclusively for charitable purposes;
- (e) non-resident trusts set up to administer certain types of retirement or pension plans or arrangements;
- (f) a non-resident trust that is governed by a "foreign retirement arrangement", as defined in subsection 248(1);
- (g) a non-resident trust that is governed by an "employees profit sharing plan", as defined in subsection 248(1);
- (h) a non-resident trust that is described in paragraph (c) of the definition "exempt trust" in subsection 233.2(1) (i.e., certain foreign unit trusts which are dealt with under the foreign investment entity rules in new sections 94.1 and 94.2); and
- (i) a prescribed trust. (Presently, it is not anticipated that any trusts will be prescribed for this purpose.)

Related Provisions: 94(6) [proposed] — Becoming or ceasing to be an exempt foreign trust; 94.1(1)"foreign investment entity"(a) — Exclusion from foreign investment entity rules; 108(3) — Meaning of "income" of trust; 233.2(4)(a) — Exclusion from reporting requirements.

Information Circulars: 84-3R5: Gifts to certain charitable organizations outside Canada.

Regulations: The Department of Finance technical notes (June 22, 2000) state that it is not currently anticipated that any trusts will be prescribed under para. (b).

"resident beneficiary" at any time under a trust means a person resident in Canada where, at that time,

(a) there is a connected contributor to the trust; and

(b) the person is a beneficiary under the trust whose interest as a beneficiary under the trust is not solely contingent on the subsequent death of an individual who

(i) is related at that time to a contributor to the trust, or

(ii) would have been related at that time to a contributor to the trust if every individual who existed before that time had existed at that time.

Technical Notes: A "resident beneficiary" at a particular time under a trust is a person resident in Canada at the particular time, where:

- at the particular time, there is a "connected contributor" to the trust (as defined in new subsection 94(1)), and
- the person is a beneficiary under the trust and the person's interest in the trust is not solely contingent on the death of a individual who is related at that time to a contributor to the trust (or who would have been related at any earlier time to a contributor to the trust if the individual and every person related at the particular time to the individual had existed at that earlier time).

Under new subsection 94(3), a trust is generally treated as resident in Canada for a particular taxation year if there is a "resident beneficiary" under the trust at the end of the particular year. Under new paragraph 94(3)(d), each "resident beneficiary" can be jointly and severally liable with the trust for the trust's income tax liabilities for the particular year under the Act.

Related Provisions: 94(3)(a) — Trust with resident beneficiary deemed resident in Canada for certain purposes; 94(3)(d)(i) — Liability of resident beneficiary for trust's tax; 104(1.1) — Restricted meaning of "beneficiary".

"resident contributor" to a trust at any time means a person who is, at that time, both resident in Canada and a contributor to the trust, but does not include an individual (other than a trust) who has not, at that time, been resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, more than 60 months.

Technical Notes: A "resident contributor" at any time is a person resident in Canada at that time who is a "contributor" to the trust at that time. However, an exemption is provided in this context for new immigrants to Canada (i.e., individuals who have been resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, 60 months or less).

Under new subsection 94(3), a trust is generally treated as resident in Canada for a particular taxation year if there is a "resident contributor" to the trust at the end of the particular year. Under new paragraph 94(3)(d), a "resident contributor" can be jointly and severally liable with the trust for the trust's income tax liabilities for the particular year under the Act.

Letter from Department of Finance, September 22, 2000:

Dear [xxx]

I am responding to your faxed memo to me dated August 25, 2000 concerning the Legislative Proposals and Explanatory Notes on Taxation of Non-Resident Trusts and Foreign Investment Entities (the "Legislative Proposals") released by the Department of Finance by way of Finance Canada News Release number 2000-050, dated June 22, 2000.

In your memo, you referred to the grandfathering provision in existing clause 94(1)(b)(i)(D) of the Income Tax Act in relation to inter vivos trusts created at any time before 1960 by a person who at that time was a non-resident person. In this connection, you have suggested that a grandfathering rule be introduced in the Legislative Proposals. In particular, you have suggested that the definition "resident contributor" in new proposed subsection 94(1) of the Act be revised to exclude from that definition an individual, in the case of a particular trust, where

(i) the particular trust is an inter vivos trust that was created at any time before 1960 by a person who at that time was a non-resident person, and

(ii) no contribution is made to the particular trust by the individual at any time after 1959.

We are prepared to recommend to the Minister your suggested revision to that definition.

We confirm that the effect of this revision would be to save a non-resident trust from the application of the rule in proposed paragraph 94(3)(a) (which deems the trust to be resident in Canada for tax purposes) in any particular trust taxation year only if all the following conditions are met:

1. the trust is an inter vivos trust that was created at any time before 1960 by a person who at that time was a non-resident person,

2. no contribution is made to the trust at any time after 1959 by any individual who, at the end of the particular year, is both resident in Canada and a contributor to the trust (except an individual (other than a trust) who has not, at the end of the particular year, been resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, more than 60 months), and

3. there are no resident beneficiaries (as defined in the Legislative Proposals) under the trust at the end of the particular year.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division,
Tax Policy Branch

(2) Rules of application — For the purposes of this section,

(a) property is deemed to be transferred by a person or partnership at any time to a trust where, because of a transfer or loan (other than an arm's length transfer) at that time of property to another person or partnership,

(i) the fair market value of one or more properties held at that time by the trust increases, or

(ii) a liability or potential liability of the trust decreases;

(b) property is deemed to be transferred by a particular person or partnership at any time to a trust where

(ii) property is transferred or loaned at that time by the particular person or partnership (in subparagraph (iii) referred to as the "transferor") to the recipient, and

(iii) it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons for which the property was transferred or loaned to the recipient included the relationship between the transferor and

(A) any person or partnership that was

(I) beneficially interested in the trust,

(II) a trustee of the trust,

(III) a person having influence over the operation of the trust or the enforcement of its terms, or

(B) any group at least one of the members of which is described in clause (A);

(c) the fair market value, at the time of the transfer, of property deemed by paragraph (a) or (b) to have been transferred to the trust is deemed to be the total of all amounts each of which is an amount by which

(i) the fair market value of a property of the trust increased at that time because of the other transfer or loan referred to in paragraph (a) or (b), or

(ii) a liability or potential liability of the trust decreased at that time because of the transfer or loan referred to in paragraph (a) or (b);

(d) where a property is acquired at any time by a person or partnership as a consequence of the death of an individual, the individual is deemed to have transferred, at that time, the property to the person or partnership;

(g) where, at any time after June 22, 2000, a particular person or partnership acquires

(i) a share of the capital stock of a corporation from the corporation,

(ii) a beneficial interest in a trust (otherwise than as a consequence of a disposition of the interest by a beneficiary under the trust),

(iii) an interest in a partnership (otherwise than as a consequence of a disposition of the interest by a member of the partnership), or

(iv) indebtedness owing by a corporation, trust or partnership from the corporation, trust or partnership,

the corporation, trust or partnership referred to in subparagraph (i), (ii), (iii) or (iv), as the case may be, is deemed to have transferred, at that time, the share, interest or debt to the particular person or partnership;

(i) the fair market value of property deemed by paragraph (e), (f) or (h) to have been transferred is the fair market value, at the time of the transfer, of the assistance, service or right to which the property relates;

(j) for greater certainty, where at any time a particular person or partnership becomes obligated to do an act that would constitute the transfer of a property to another person or partnership if the act occurred, the particular person or partnership is deemed to have become obligated at that time to transfer property to that other person or partnership;

(k) where, at a particular time, a particular trust makes a contribution to another trust, the contribution is deemed to have been made jointly by the particular trust and by each person or partnership that, at the particular time, is a contributor to the particular trust;

(l) where a particular trust makes a contribution to another trust, the contribution is made at the direction, or with the concurrence, of another person and it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons the contribution is made to the other trust is to enable that other person to avoid liability under paragraph (3)(d) in respect of the other trust, the contribution is deemed to be made jointly by the particular trust and by that other person;

(m) where, at a particular time, a particular partnership makes a contribution to a trust, the contribution is deemed to have been made jointly by the particular partnership and by each person or partnership that, at the particular time, is a member of the particular partnership (other than a member of the particular partnership where, by operation of any law governing the partnership arrangement, the liability of the member as a member of the particular partnership is limited);

(n) where a partnership makes a contribution to a trust, the contribution is made at the direction, or with the concurrence, of another person and it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons the contribution is made to the trust is to enable that other person to avoid liability under paragraph (3)(d) in respect of the trust, the contribution is deemed to be made jointly by the partnership and by that other person;

(o) where a corporation makes a contribution to a trust, the contribution is made at the direction, or with the concurrence, of another person, and it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons the contribution is made to the trust is to enable that other person to avoid liability under paragraph (3)(d) in respect of the trust, the contribution is deemed to be made jointly by the corporation and by that other person; and

(p) subject to subsection (9), the fair market value of a contribution to a trust at the time it was made is deemed to be the fair market value, at the time of the contribution, of the property that was the subject of the contribution.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(2) of the Act sets out a number of rules for use in applying section 94. These rules are primarily relevant for the purposes of determining whether a transaction constitutes a "contribution" of property to a trust (as defined in subsection 94(1)). These rules are also relevant for the purposes of subsections 94(7) to (9) and the amended reporting rules in subsections 162(10.1) and 163(2.4) and section 233.2. These rules apply to taxation years of trusts that begin after 2000, but in some cases specified below relief is provided with regard to transactions or events that occur before June 23, 2000.

Paragraph 94(2)(a) deals with transfers or loans (other than a transfer or loan which is an "arm's length transfer" as defined in subsection 94(1)) that may be viewed as indirect transfers or loans of property to trusts, through transfers or loans to other persons or partnerships. A transfer or loan will be considered a direct transfer to a trust where, because of the transfer or loan to another person or partnership,

- the fair market value of one or more properties held by the trust increases, or
- a liability or potential liability of the trust decreases.

Paragraph 94(2)(b) deals with cases where a trust holds property the fair market value of which is derived from properties held by another person or partnership. Where this paragraph applies, property transferred or loaned to the other person or partnership is deemed to be transferred to the trust itself. Paragraph 94(2)(b) applies where it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons for the transfer or loan can reasonably be considered to be connected to the identity of the trust's beneficiaries or other specified persons.

Paragraph 94(2)(c) sets out a rule that applies for the purposes of determining the fair market value of property deemed to be transferred to a trust as a consequence of the application of paragraph 94(2)(a) or (b). This rule is relevant for the purposes of new subsections 94(7) and (8), as well as the penalty provisions for failure to report in subsections 162(10.1) and 163(2.4). The fair market value of the property deemed to have been transferred is considered to be equal to the amount by which the fair market value of the net assets of the trust increased (or the amount by which the liability or potential liability of the trust decreased) due to the transfer or loan that gave rise to the application of paragraph 94(2)(a) or (b).

Paragraph 94(2)(d) applies where property is acquired by a person or partnership as a consequence of the death of an individual. The deceased individual is deemed to have transferred the property to the person or partnership. The paragraph ensures that a person who was resident in Canada immediately before death is generally considered to be a "connected contributor" to the testamentary trust created as a consequence of the person's death. For more detail, see the definitions "connected contributor" and "resident beneficiary".

Paragraph 94(2)(e) deems a person or partnership that provides financial assistance to another person or partnership to have transferred property to that other person or partnership. Under paragraph 94(2)(i), the fair market value of the property deemed to have been transferred is considered to be equal to the fair market value of the assistance. A deemed transfer will be considered to be a contribution to a trust, by the person or partnership who gives the financial assistance, if the deemed transfer falls within the criteria of the definition "contribution" in subsection 94(1). In this regard, note that the definition contains an exception in respect of arm's length transfers.

Paragraph 94(2)(f) applies where services are rendered after June 22, 2000 to, for or on behalf of another person or partnership. In these circumstances, the party rendering the service is deemed to have transferred property to the other person or partnership. Paragraph 94(2)(f) contains an exception for services rendered in a person's capacity as agent or employee, in which case the paragraph will apply instead to the principal or employer of the agent or employee. Paragraph 94(2)(f) also contains an exception for services rendered to a trust that are related to the administration of the trust. Under paragraph 94(2)(i), the fair market value of the property deemed to have been transferred is considered to be equal to the fair market value of the services. A deemed transfer under paragraph 94(2)(f) will be considered a contribution to a trust, by the person or partnership who rendered the services, if the deemed transfer falls within the criteria of the definition "contribution" in subsection 94(1). In this regard, note that the definition contains an exception in respect of arm's length transfers.

Under paragraph 94(2)(g), a corporation is considered to transfer shares that it issues. Similar rules apply to trust and partnership interests, as well as to debt issued by any person or partnership. Paragraph 94(2)(g) applies to shares, debt and interests that are issued after June 22, 2000.

Paragraph 94(2)(h) deems a person or partnership that, after June 22, 2000, grants, to another person or partnership, a right to acquire or to be loaned property to have transferred property to that other person or partnership. Under paragraph 94(2)(i), the fair market value of the property deemed to have been transferred under paragraph 94(2)(h) is considered to be equal to the fair market value of the right.

As noted above, the fair market value of property deemed to have been transferred under paragraphs 94(2)(e), (f) or (h) is determined with reference to paragraph 94(2)(i). As is the case with a similar rule in paragraph 94(2)(c), paragraph 94(2)(i) is relevant for the purposes of new subsections 94(7) and (8), as well as the penalty provisions for failure to report in subsections 162(10.1) and 163(2.4).

Paragraph 94(2)(j) is included for greater certainty. It applies where a person or partnership becomes obligated to do an act (e.g., the rendering of a service) that would constitute the transfer of a property to another person or partnership if the act were to occur. Where this is the case, the person or partnership is deemed to become obligated to transfer property to the other person or partnership. This rule is relevant for the purposes of paragraph (c) of the definition "contribution" in subsection 94(1).

Paragraph 94(2)(k) applies where a particular trust makes a contribution to another trust. Where this is the case, the contribution is deemed to have been made jointly by the particular trust and each person or partnership who is a contributor to the particular trust.

Paragraph 94(2)(l) applies where a particular trust makes a contribution to another trust, the contribution is made at the direction (or with the concurrence) of another person and it is reasonable to consider that one of the reasons the contribution is made to the other trust is to enable that other person to avoid liability, as a resident contributor, under paragraph 94(3)(d) in respect of the other trust. In such a case, the contribution is deemed to have been made jointly by the particular trust and by that other person.

Paragraph 94(2)(m) applies where a partnership makes a contribution to a trust. Where this is the case, partnership members (other than limited partners) are considered to have made a contribution to the trust jointly with the partnership.

Paragraph 94(2)(n) applies where a partnership makes a contribution to a trust, the contribution is made at the direction (or with the concurrence) of another person and it is reasonable to consider that one of the reasons the contribution is made to the trust is to enable that other person to avoid liability, as a resident contributor, under paragraph 94(3)(d) in respect of the trust. In such a case, the contribution is deemed to have been made jointly by the partnership and by that other person. It should be noted that paragraph 94(2)(n) is not relevant to contributions made by a partnership at the direction (or with the concurrence) of a member of a partnership who is not a limited partner, given that paragraph 94(2)(m) also applies in this case.

Paragraph 94(2)(o) applies where a corporation makes a contribution to a trust, the contribution is made at the direction (or with the concurrence) of another person and it is reasonable to consider that one of the reasons the contribution is made to the trust is to enable that other person to avoid liability, as a resident contributor, under paragraph 94(3)(d) in respect of the trust. In such a case, the contribution is deemed to have been made jointly by the corporation and by that other person.

Paragraph 94(2)(p) provides that the fair market value of a contribution to a trust at the time it was made is deemed to be the fair market value of the property loaned or transferred that was the subject of the contribution. The rule is useful for the purposes of new subsections 94(7) and (8), as well as the reporting penalty provisions in amended subsections 162(10.1) and 163(2.4). The rule is relevant because a "contribution" is defined as being a transfer or loan, rather than as being the property that was the subject of the transfer or loan.

The examples below illustrate the operation of subsection 94(2) and the definition "contribution" in subsection 94(1).

Example 1

Donald is a long-term resident of Canada. In 2001, Donald pays higher than fair market value consideration for a property acquired from a corporation. A non-resident trust holds shares in the corporation. The fair market value of those shares increases because of the transaction.

Results

1. Under paragraph 94(2)(a), Donald is considered to have transferred property to the trust in these circumstances. The exception for "arm's length transfers" is not relevant.
2. As a consequence, Donald is considered to have made a "contribution" to the trust, which results in Donald being a "contributor" and a "resident contributor" to the trust.

Example 2

1. Lucie, who is a long-term resident of Canada, transfers property to Canco on condition that Canco direct Canco's wholly-owned foreign subsidiary (Foreignco-1) to transfer properties to another corporation (Foreignco-2) for consideration that is less than fair market value.
2. Shares of the capital stock of Foreignco-2 are held by a non-resident trust.
3. The fair market value of the Foreignco-2 shares increases as a result of the increase in the fair market value of the property owned by Foreignco-2.

Results

1. The transfers to Canco and to Foreignco-2 are part of the same series of transactions.
2. Because of paragraph 94(2)(a), the transfer to Foreignco-2 is considered to be a transfer by Foreignco-1 to the trust. The exception for "arm's length transfers" is not relevant.
3. As a consequence, Lucie is considered to have made a "contribution" to the trust under paragraph (b) of the definition "contribution" in subsection 94(1), which results in Lucie being a "contributor" and a "resident contributor" to the trust. Canco is also a "contributor" and a "resident contributor" to the trust.
4. Foreignco-1 is also a "contributor" to the trust, but this does not have any practical consequences because Foreignco-1 is non-resident.

(3) Liabilities of non-resident trust and others — Where a trust (other than an exempt foreign trust) is non-resident at the end of a taxation year of the trust and, at that time, there is a resident contributor to the trust or a resident beneficiary under the trust,

(a) subject to subsection (4), the trust is deemed to be resident in Canada throughout the year for the purposes of

(i) applying section 2 and computing the trust's income for the year,

(ii) applying subsection (5), clause 53(2)(h)(i.1)(B), the definition "non-resident entity" in subsection 94.1(1), subsections 104(13.1) to (29) and 107(5), section 115 and sections 233.3 and 233.4,

(iii) determining the liability of the trust for tax under Part XIII on amounts paid or credited to the trust, and

(iv) determining the rights and obligations of the trust under Divisions I and J;

Letter from Department of Finance, September 22, 2000: [See under 94(1)"resident contributor" above — ed.]

(b) for the purposes of section 126

(i) the trust's income for the year (other than the portion of the income that, but for this subsection, would be the trust's taxable income earned in Canada) is deemed to be income of the trust from sources in the country other than Canada in which the trust would, but for this subsection, be resident, and

(ii) such part of any income or profits tax paid by the trust for the year (other than any tax paid because of this section) that can reasonably be regarded as having been paid in respect of the amount determined under subparagraph (i) is deemed to be the non-business-income tax paid by the trust to the government of that country;

(c) where the trust was non-resident throughout the preceding taxation year for the purpose of computing its income for that preceding year, for the purpose of subsection 128.1(1) the trust is deemed to have become resident in Canada immediately after the end of that preceding year; and

(d) subject to subsection (7),

(i) each person who at any time in the year is a resident contributor to the trust or a resident beneficiary under the trust shall have, jointly and severally with the trust and with each other such person, the rights and obligations of the trust in respect of the year under Divisions I and J and subsection 180.1(4), and

(ii) each such person shall be subject to the provisions of Part XV in respect of those rights and obligations.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(3) of the Act applies to a non-resident trust (other than an "exempt foreign trust", defined in subsection 94(1)) for a taxation year where, at the end of the year, there is a "resident contributor" to the trust or a "resident beneficiary" under the trust. All of these definitions are explained in detail in the commentary on new subsection 94(1).

Where subsection 94(3) applies to a non-resident trust for a taxation year, the trust is deemed to have been resident in Canada throughout the year for the purposes specified in the subsection. Except to the extent otherwise provided by subsection 94(4), a trust is deemed to be resident in Canada for a taxation year under subsection 94(3):

- for the purposes of applying sections 2 and 115 and computing the trust's income for the year — with the result that the trust is subject to tax under Parts I and I.1 on its worldwide income for the year (Note: These trusts are viewed as resident in Canada for the purposes of tax treaties whether or not they are also considered to be resident in another country. However, subsection 94(3) is structured so that there is no tax arising under the Act for a trust subject to subsection 94(3) in the event that the trust earns only foreign-source income and makes full current distributions of the income to non-resident beneficiaries.);
- for the purpose applying of subsection 94(5) — with the result that, as contemplated by subsection 94(5), the tax consequences under subsection 128.1(4) for a trust that ceases to be resident in Canada apply to the trust (See also the note on paragraph 94(3)(c), below.);

- for the purpose of applying clause 53(2)(h)(i.1)(b) — with the result that the adjusted cost base to a beneficiary of the beneficiary's interest in a trust to which this clause applies is computed in the same way as for interests in trusts resident in Canada;
- for the purpose of applying the definition "non-resident entity" in subsection 94.1(1) — with the result that a beneficiary's interest in the trust is not treated as an interest of a beneficiary in a foreign investment entity for the purposes of new sections 94.1 and 94.2;
- for the purposes of applying subsections 104(13.1) to (29) and 107(5) — with the result that the tax treatment of beneficiaries under the trust accords with the tax treatment available to beneficiaries under trusts that are resident in Canada;
- for the purposes of applying sections 233.3 and 233.4 — with the result that the trust is required to file information returns under sections 233.3 (information return on a foreign property holdings that cost in excess of $100,000) and 233.4 (information return on foreign affiliates);
- for the purpose of determining the liability of the trust for tax under Part XIII — with the result that the trust is exempt from Part XIII tax on amounts paid or credited to it; and
- for the purpose of determining the rights and obligations of the trust under sections 150 to 180 — with the result that various administrative provisions in the Act apply in the same way as to other trusts resident in Canada. These provisions include those with regard to the filing of returns, assessments, tax payments, arrears interest, refund interest, instalment interest, penalties, refunds and appeals.

Paragraph 94(3)(b) provides that a trust that is subject to subsection 94(3) is entitled to claim foreign tax credits against its Canadian income tax in accordance with the rules in section 126, except with regard to any taxable income earned in Canada (as would otherwise be determined under subsection 115(1)).

Paragraph 94(3)(c) clarifies that a non-resident trust that becomes subject to subsection 94(3) for a particular taxation year, after not being subject to either it or existing paragraph 94(1)(c) for the preceding year, is deemed to become resident in Canada at the beginning of the particular year. As a result, the cost amount of each of the properties (other than taxable Canadian properties) held by the trust at the beginning of the particular year is deemed by subsection 128.1(1) to be the fair market value of the property at the beginning of the particular year. Note, in this regard, that paragraph 94(3)(c) complements the rule in subsection 94(6) in the case where a non-resident trust ceases to be an "exempt foreign trust" (as defined in subsection 94(1)). In this case, subsection 94(6) establishes the beginning of a new "stub" taxation year to which subsection 94(3) may apply. If subsection 94(3) does apply for that "stub" year, subsection 128.1(1) would apply with regard to the properties (other than taxable Canadian properties) held by the trust at the beginning of that "stub" year.

Paragraph 94(3)(d) imposes liabilities for a taxation year on persons who, at the end of the year, are "resident contributors" or "resident beneficiaries". Where subsection 94(3) applies to a trust for a taxation year, each of these persons is jointly and severally liable with the trust in respect of the trust's obligations under sections 150 to 180, including its Part I.1 obligations that arise as a consequence of subsection 180.1(4). Typically, the most significant obligation in this context is the obligation to pay tax instalments pursuant to section 156. However, the extent of the joint liability imposed by paragraph 94(3)(d) is limited by new subsection 94(7) — which is explained in the commentary below.

Note, in particular, that subsection 94(3) does not result in the creation of any obligations for a trust that is subject to subsection 94(3) to withhold tax on distributions to non-resident beneficiaries under Part XIII or to pay any tax under Part XII.2. As noted above, one of the effects of subsection 94(3) is that the trust is not liable in connection with distributions of Canadian-source income to the non-resident trust. However, the rules in new subsection 104(7.01) are designed so that there will be a reasonable level of Part I tax in respect of Canadian-source income received by the trust in the event the trust also distributes income to non-resident beneficiaries.

Related Provisions: 75(3)(c.2) — Reversionary trust rules do not apply to non-resident trust; 94(4) [proposed] — Excluded provisions; 94(5) [proposed] — Trust deemed to cease being resident in Canada; 94(7) [proposed] — Limit to amount recoverable under 94(3)(d); 104(7.01) — Limit to trust's deduction under 104(6); 233.2(4) — Annual information return by contributor; 233.3(3) — Annual information return by holder of interest.

(4) Excluded provisions — Paragraph (3)(a) does not apply for the purposes of

(a) the definition "exempt foreign trust" in subsection (1);

(b) computing any income or loss from property, or any taxable capital gain or allowable loss, because of the application of subsection 75(2);

(c) paragraph 107.4(1)(c) (other than subparagraph 107.4(1)(c)(i)), paragraph (a) of the definition "mutual fund trust" in subsection 132(6), and subparagraph (f)(ii) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1); and

(d) determining the liability of a person that arises because of the application of section 215, except as the Minister otherwise permits in writing.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(4) of the Act provides that the rules in subsection 94(3) treating non-resident trusts as resident in Canada do not apply for certain limited purposes:

- the definition "exempt foreign trust" — thus ensuring that there is no circularity due to fact that the definition "exempt foreign trust" is used in subsection 94(3);
- computing income or loss from property, or any taxable capital gain or allowable capital loss, because of the application of subsection 75(2) — thus providing that income generated from a property transferred by a non-resident trust to a reversionary trust is not attributed back if the non-resident trust is deemed to be resident in Canada under subsection 94(3);
- proposed paragraph 107.4(1)(c), other than subparagraph 107.4(1)(c)(i), and proposed subparagraph (f)(ii) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) [The measures were contained in a detailed Notice of Ways and Means Motion tabled on June 5, 2000.] — thus ensuring that proposed rules allowing in some cases for a rollover of property on transfers involving no change in beneficial ownership generally do not apply to transfers to a trust deemed to be resident in Canada by subsection 94(3); and
- paragraph (a) of the definition "mutual fund trust" in subsection 132(6) — a reference which makes it clear that a trust deemed to be resident in Canada by subsection 94(3) will not be treated as a mutual fund trust for any purpose.

Furthermore, except as otherwise permitted in writing by the Minister of National Revenue, subsection 94(3) does not relieve a payer of Canadian-source income the obligation to withhold under section 215 in connection with amounts received by a trust deemed to be resident of Canada by subsection 94(3). This is so even though such a trust is not liable for Part XIII tax on amounts paid or credited to it, because of the application of subparagraph 94(3)(a)(iii). The trust would be expected to apply for a refund of such tax, which would be given unless there are any outstanding liabilities of the trust with regard to Part I tax.

(5) Ceasing to reside in Canada — A trust is deemed to have ceased to be resident in Canada at any time where

(a) that time is in a particular period that, but for this subsection and subsection 128.1(4), would be a taxation year of the trust that immediately follows a taxation year of the trust throughout which the trust was resident in Canada because of the application of subsection (3);

(b) the trust is non-resident at the end of the particular period;

(c) there was a resident contributor to the trust, or a resident beneficiary under the trust, at the beginning of the particular period; and

(d) that time is the earliest time in the particular period at which there is neither a resident contributor to the trust nor a resident beneficiary under the trust.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(5) of the Act applies to a trust with regard to a particular period that (without reference to the combined application of subsections 94(5) and 128.1(4)) would be a taxation year of the trust that immediately follows a taxation year of the trust throughout which it is resident in Canada because of the application of subsection 94(3). If the trust is not resident in Canada at the end of the particular period (i.e., because the criteria in subsection 94(3) for deeming the trust to be resident in Canada are no longer satisfied), the trust is deemed to have ceased to reside in Canada at the earliest time in the particular period at which there is neither a "resident contributor" to the trust nor a "resident beneficiary" under the trust. These two definitions are explained in the commentary on subsection 94(1).

In such circumstances, the cessation of residence in Canada results in the application of paragraph 128.1(4)(a). As a consequence of that paragraph, a taxation year of the trust is considered to have ended immediately before the earliest time in the particular period described above. At the end of that taxation year, the criteria in subsection 94(3) are satisfied. Accordingly, the trust would be subject to tax under Parts I and I.1 on its world-wide income for that year because it is considered to be resident in Canada under subsection 94(3).

Related Provisions: 94(3)(a) [proposed] — Application to trust deemed resident in Canada.

(6) Becoming or ceasing to be an exempt foreign trust — Where at any time a trust becomes or ceases to be an exempt foreign trust (otherwise than because of becoming resident in Canada),

(a) the trust's taxation year that would otherwise include that time is deemed to have ended immediately before that time and a new taxation year of the trust is deemed to have begun at that time; and

(b) for the purpose of determining the trust's fiscal period after that time, the trust is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(6) of the Act generally provides that, if a trust becomes or ceases to be an exempt foreign trust at any time, the trust's taxation year is deemed to have ended immediately before that time, a new "stub" taxation year is deemed to have begun at that time and the trust is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time. However, subsection 94(6) does not apply where a trust ceases to be an exempt foreign trust because it becomes resident in Canada.

Subsection 94(3) may apply in respect of the later "stub" taxation year of the trust if the criteria set out in that subsection are satisfied at the end of that year. Where this is the case, the trust would be subject to tax under Parts I and I.1 on its world-wide income for that later "stub" year because it would be considered under subsection 94(3) to be resident in Canada for that year.

(7) Limit to amount recoverable — Notwithstanding subsection (3), the amount recoverable under paragraph (3)(d) at any time from a person in respect of a trust and a particular taxation year of the trust shall not exceed the recovery limit at that time of the person in respect of the trust and the particular year where

(a) except where subparagraph (b)(ii) would apply if the portion of that subparagraph after clause (b)(ii)(B) were read as "is not more than $10,000", the person has filed on a timely basis under section 233.2 all information returns required to be filed by the person before that time in respect of the trust (or within such later period as is acceptable to the Minister);

(b) either

(i) the person is liable under paragraph (3)(d) in respect of the trust and the particular year solely because the person was a resident beneficiary under the trust at the end of the particular year, or

(ii) at the end of the particular year, the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at the time it was made, of a contribution to the trust before the end of the particular year by

(A) the person, or

(B) another person not dealing at arm's length with the person, is not more than the greater of $10,000 and 10% of the total of all amounts each of which was the fair market value, at the time it was made, of a contribution to the trust before the end of the particular year; and

(c) it is reasonable to conclude that each transaction or event that occurred before the end of the particular year at the direction of, or with the concurrence of, the person satisfied the following conditions:

(i) none of the purposes of the transaction or event was to enable the person to minimize liability under paragraph (3)(d) in respect of the trust, and

(ii) the transaction or event was not part of a series of transactions or events any of the purposes of which was to enable the person to minimize liability under paragraph (3)(d) in respect of the trust.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94(7) of the Act allows for a limitation of the amount that may be recovered from a person who would otherwise be jointly and severally liable for the entire amount of the trust's tax obligations under the Act. Subsection 94(7) applies to a person in respect of a particular taxation year of a trust where three conditions are satisfied.

The first condition is that the person must have filed on a timely basis all information returns required to be filed by the person in respect of the trust under section 233.2 (or within such later period as is acceptable to the Minister of National Revenue). [Paragraph 94(7)(a).] However, the first condition need not be satisfied if the second condition (below) is satisfied because of the $10,000 contribution test referred to below.

The second condition is satisfied in respect of a particular taxation year of the trust:

- where the person is jointly and severally liable with the trust only because the person was a "resident beneficiary" under the trust at the end of the particular year, [Subparagraph 94(7)(b)(i).] or

- where, at the end of the particular year, the total fair market value (determined with reference to paragraphs 94(2)(c), (i) and (p) and subsection 94(9)) of contributions made to the trust by the person (or another person not dealing at arm's length with the person) is not more than the greater of $10,000 and 10% of the total fair market value of all contributions to the trust. [Subparagraph 94(7)(b)(ii).]

The third condition is satisfied in respect of a person and a particular taxation year of the trust where it is reasonable to conclude that each transaction or event that occurred before the end of the particular year at the direction of, or with the concurrence of, the person satisfied the following conditions:

- none of the purposes of the transaction or event was to enable the person to minimize liability under paragraph 94(3)(d) in respect of the trust, [Subparagraph 94(7)(c)(i).] and
- the transaction or event was not part of a series of transactions or events any of the purposes of which was to enable the person to minimize liability under paragraph 94(3)(d) in respect of the trust. [Subparagraph 94(7)(c)(ii).]

There are a number of transactions or events, or series of transactions or events, which may result in a failure to satisfy the third condition. For example, an artificial dilution of a person's relative contribution in the trust (i.e., below the 10% level) could well be impugned. Likewise, corporate distributions that have the effect of minimizing the impact of the three-year rule described in subsection 94(9) could also be offensive for these purposes.

Reference should be made in this context to the definition "contribution" in subsection 94(1), as well as to related rules in subsection 94(2).

Where subsection 94(7) applies to a person in respect of a taxation year of a trust, the amount recoverable at any time from the person in respect of the year is limited to the person's "recovery limit" in respect of the trust and the year. Under subsection 94(8), the amount of the recovery limit at any time is calculated as follows:

- ADD amounts payable and amounts previously paid by the trust to the person in respect of the person's beneficial interest in the trust;
- ADD previous proceeds from the disposition of the person's interest in the trust, not otherwise taken into account above;
- ADD the fair market value of benefits conferred by the trust on the person, not otherwise taken into account above;
- ADD the total fair market value (determined with reference to paragraphs 94(2)(c), (i) and (p) and subsection 94(9)) of contributions made to the trust by the person, to the extent that this amount exceeds the total of the first three amounts; and
- SUBTRACT previous recoveries by the CCRA under subsection 94(3) from the person in respect of the trust and the year or a preceding taxation year of the trust.

As indicated above, subsection 94(9) affects the calculation of the fair market value of a "contribution" to a trust. It applies where the contributed property is a share, a right to acquire a share, or other property primarily deriving its value from a share or a right to acquire a share.

For the purpose of determining whether the "recovery limit" limitation applies to a contributor to a trust in respect of a transfer to the trust and of determining the amount of the "recovery limit", the fair market value of contributed property is deemed by subsection 94(9) to be the greater of:

- its fair market value, otherwise determined, at the time it was transferred (see in this regard paragraph 94(2)(p)); and
- its fair market value (or the fair market value of substituted property) at the end of the third calendar year ending after its transfer to the trust.

Subsection 94(9) is intended to allow for a reasonable opportunity for recovery of tax by the CCRA in the context of a series of transactions involving the transfer of shares or similar property. For example, an estate freeze might occur under which common shares with a nominal initial fair market value are transferred directly or indirectly to a non-resident trust. In these circumstances, it would be inappropriate to limit a recovery of tax to the initial fair market value of the shares.

Related Provisions: 94(8) [proposed] — Recovery limit; 94(9) [proposed] — Determination of fair market value.

(8) Recovery limit — For the purpose of subsection (7), the recovery limit at a particular time of a person in respect of a trust and a particular taxation year of the trust is the amount, if any, by which the greater of

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is

(i) an amount paid before the particular time to the person by the trust because of the interest of the person as a beneficiary under the trust,

(ii) an amount the payment of which by the trust the person is at the particular time entitled to enforce because of the interest of the person as a beneficiary under the trust,

(iii) an amount (other than an amount described in subparagraph (i)) received before the particular time by the person on the disposition of an interest as a beneficiary under the trust, or

(iv) the fair market value of a benefit received or enjoyed by the person from or under the trust (other than a benefit described in any of subparagraphs (i) to (iii)), and

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at the time it was made, of a contribution to the trust before the particular time by the person,

exceeds

(c) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount recovered before the particular time from the person in connection with a liability of the person arising under subsection (3) in respect of the trust and the particular year or a preceding taxation year of the trust.

Technical Notes: See under 94(7).

Related Provisions: 94(9) [proposed] — Determination of fair market value.

(9) Determination of fair market value-special case — For the purposes of applying subparagraph (7)(b)(ii) and determining the recovery limit under subsection (8), where a contribution is made at any time by a person or partnership to a trust as a consequence of a transaction that is, or as a consequence of a series of transactions or events that includes, the transfer at that time to the trust of a particular property that is a share, a right to acquire a share, or other property primarily deriving its value from a share or a right to acquire a share, the fair market value of the contribution at the time it is made is deemed to be the greater of

(a) the fair market value of the contribution at that time, determined without reference to this subsection, and

(b) the fair market value of the particular property, or property substituted for the particular property, at the end of the third calendar year that ends after that time.

Technical Notes: See under 94(7).

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, s. 10, will amend s. 94 to read as above, applicable to taxation years of trusts that begin after 2000 [to be changed to "that begin after 2001", per Sept. 7/00 news release reproduced after 94.3 — ed.], except that the definition "contribution" in subsec. 94(1) shall not apply to

(a) a payment made to a trust before 2002 in satisfaction of any amount payable to the trust; or

(b) a repayment made before 2005, in accordance with terms of repayment established before June 23, 2000, to a trust of a loan made by the trust.

Notice of Ways and Means Motion, federal budget, February 16, 1999: Non-resident trusts and foreign-based investment funds

(8) That the provisions of the Act governing the taxation of

(a) trust beneficiaries and non-resident trusts, and

(b) taxpayers resident in Canada who hold interests in foreign-based investment funds

be modified in accordance with proposals described in the budget documents tabled by the Minister of Finance in the House of Commons on February 16, 1999.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 16, 1999: Taxation of trusts — Background

Trusts that are resident in Canada are subject to tax in Canada annually on their undistributed income.

Beneficiaries of resident trusts are taxable on distributions received from such trusts, to the extent that the distributions are made out of the income of the trust. Distributions made out of the capital of the trust are tax-free. As a result, the Canadian tax base is protected.

Generally, non-resident trusts are not taxable in Canada and income can be accumulated in such trusts on a tax-deferred basis. When such trusts pay little or no foreign tax on their accumulated income and capital gains, taxpayers making use of such trusts may benefit either from a deferral of tax or complete avoidance of tax. Avoidance occurs where the accumulated income is transformed into the capital of the trust, which is distributed to the Canadian beneficiaries tax-free.

Issue

The anti-avoidance rules in the Act attempt to tax income earned by non-resident trusts in certain circumstances in order to ensure that they are not used to defer Canadian tax on the income accumulating in the trusts. Current rules apply only to non-resident trusts with a Canadian beneficiary. However, these rules are not fully effective and relatively little of such income is taxed in Canada.

Canadian residents are able to transfer funds to non-resident trusts under circumstances designed to circumvent the application of existing anti-avoidance rules. The trust regimes in several tax-haven jurisdictions have been specifically modified in an attempt to permit Canadians to avoid the application of the anti-avoidance rules. A feature of such schemes is to disguise the fact that the non-resident trust has a Canadian resident beneficiary. A number of tax-haven jurisdictions have modified their trust laws so that no beneficiaries need to be designated, thus facilitating tax planning by Canadians in order to defer the taxation of the income accumulating in the non-resident trust. Arrangements between the Canadian transferors and the trustee ensure that the Canadian transferors retain effective control of the trust, or are able to designate who may ultimately receive capital of the trust, including its accumulated income.

Non-resident trusts can therefore offer higher-income Canadians the opportunity to defer or avoid Canadian tax on investment income that would otherwise be taxable in Canada.

[See also the portions reproduced under 94.1(1) — ed.]

Consultations will also be initiated on the following proposed modifications to the tax rules governing non-resident trusts:

- That where a Canadian resident transfers or loans property to a non-resident trust, the trust be treated as being resident in Canada and be taxed on all of its undistributed income, subject to a number of exceptions noted below. The Canadian resident transferor would be jointly (with the trust) liable for tax. Where a foreign income tax is imposed in respect of the undistributed income of the trust, a foreign tax credit would be provided. The proposed rules would apply whether or not the trust has a Canadian-resident beneficiary, since in practice it may not be possible to determine whether the property in the trust will be distributed to Canadian beneficiaries.
- That the proposed changes also deal with the distributions from trusts. Distributions out of current income of the trust would be taxed in the hands of the beneficiaries. As well, distributions out of any previously untaxed accumulated income of the trust would be subject to tax.
- That the following trusts be excluded from the application of the proposed rules:
  - trusts resident in the United States and subject to United States tax provisions;
  - non-resident trusts set up prior to immigrants' arrival in Canada, for a five-year period after immigration; and
  - non-resident trusts set up for the benefit of individuals with disabilities or children of divorced parents where the trust and beneficiaries are resident within the same country.
- Additional exceptions could be contemplated to remove from the rules non-resident trusts that are clearly not used to avoid or defer Canadian tax, such as bona fide foreign charitable trusts.
- The proposed rules would apply to any taxation year commencing after 1999, with respect to non-resident trusts to which a Canadian resident transfers or loans property on or after February 16, 1999, subject to the exceptions noted above. Other non-resident trusts to which a transfer or a loan of property was made by a Canadian resident before February 16, 1999, would be subject to the proposed rules for taxation years commencing after 2000.

The proposed changes are consistent with Revenue Canada devoting more resources to the audit of taxpayers whose investment activities extend beyond Canada.

Further details on the proposed legislative changes will be released soon to enhance the consultation process.

Department of Finance news release, November 30, 1999: Update on Proposals for the Taxation of Non-Resident Trusts and Foreign Investment Funds

The February 1999 budget announced that consultations would be initiated on proposed new approaches for the taxation of non-resident "family" trusts (NRTs) and foreign investment funds (FIFs).

The proposed approach for NRTs generally provides for them to be treated as resident in Canada during the period in which a contributor to the NRT was resident in Canada. The contributor would, in these circumstances, be jointly liable with the NRT for the NRT's resulting Canadian income tax liability on its worldwide income.

The proposed approach for FIFs provides for an annual allocation of a FIF's income to a Canadian unitholder. If insufficient information is available for a unitholder to adopt this approach, the unitholder is to be taxed on an annual basis on any increases in the fair market value of the unitholder's interest in the FIF.

The February 1999 budget also proposed that distributions from foreign trusts would generally be subject to an additional tax to the extent that the distributions represented income that had not been subject to Canadian income tax, and that the proposals would not apply to FIFs and NRTs based in the United States.

Further to consultations on these proposals and additional analysis within the Department, the following modifications to the package are proposed:

1. The additional tax on distributions from foreign trusts will not be implemented. The implementation of this tax would have raised concerns about fairness, double taxation and complexity. The strengthened taxation rules proposed for NRTs and FIFs will ensure that Canadian tax will generally be exigible whenever Canadian residents contribute to these vehicles.

2. The administrative advantages of an exemption for NRTs and FIFs based in the United States are reduced because of the elimination of the additional tax on distributions from foreign trusts. Moreover, there were concerns that this exemption would allow for structures that could have undermined the effectiveness of the rules. Consequently, a proposed exemption from the new rules for NRTs and FIFs based in the United States will not be implemented.

3. The proposed new rules for NRTs will apply in all cases to NRT taxation years that begin after 2000. The proposed rules for FIFs will apply in all cases to taxation years of Canadian investors that begin after 2000.

One technical question that has been frequently raised is that of the application of the five-year exemption under proposed rules for NRTs to trusts established after an emigrant becomes resident in Canada. It is proposed that this exemption be structured much like it is under the existing law, so that it is not restricted to trusts established before an emigrant becomes resident in Canada.

It is anticipated that draft legislation on NRTs and FIFs will be released early in 2000 in order to permit an additional period of consultation before it is incorporated in a bill.

(d) the extent to which any income, profits and gains that may reasonably be considered to be earned or accrued, whether directly or indirectly, for the benefit of any non-resident entity are subject to an income or profits tax that is significantly less than the income tax that would be applicable to such income, profits and gains if they were earned directly by the taxpayer, and

(e) the extent to which the income, profits and gains of any non-resident entity for any fiscal period are distributed in that or the immediately following fiscal period, that one of the main reasons for the taxpayer acquiring, holding or having the interest in such property was to derive a benefit from portfolio investments in assets described in any of subparagraphs (b)(i) to (ix) in such a manner that the taxes, if any, on the income, profits and gains from such assets for any particular year are significantly less than the tax that would have been applicable under this Part if the income, profits and gains had been earned directly by the taxpayer, there shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year the amount, if any, by which

(f) the total of all amounts each of which is the product obtained when

(i) the designated cost to the taxpayer of the offshore investment fund property at the end of a month in the year is multiplied by

(ii) the quotient obtained when the prescribed rate of interest for the period including that month is divided by 12

exceeds

(g) the taxpayer's income for the year (other than a capital gain) from the offshore investment fund property determined without reference to this subsection.

(2) Definitions — In this section,

"designated cost" to a taxpayer at any time in a taxation year of an offshore investment fund property that the taxpayer holds or has an interest in means the amount determined by the formula

A is the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property at that time (determined without reference to paragraphs 53(1)(m) and (q), subparagraph 53(2)(c)(i.3), paragraphs 53(2)(g) and (g.1) and section 143.2),

B is, where an additional amount has been made available by a person to another person after 1984 and before that time, whether by way of gift, loan, payment for a share, transfer of property at less than its fair market value or otherwise, in circumstances such that it may reasonably be concluded that one of the main reasons for so making the additional amount available to the other person was to increase the value of the property, the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which such an additional amount exceeds any increase in the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property by virtue of that additional amount,

C is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included in respect of the offshore investment fund property by virtue of this section in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year, and

(a) where the taxpayer has held or has had the interest in the property at all times since the end of 1984, the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at the end of 1984 exceeds the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property at the end of 1984, or

(b) in any other case, the total of

(i) the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at the particular time the taxpayer acquired the property exceeds the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property at the particular time, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that would have been included in respect of the property because of this section in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that began before June 20, 1996 if the cost to the taxpayer of the property were equal to the fair market value of the property at the particular time

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that was included in respect of the property because of this section in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that began before June 20, 1996, except that the designated cost of an offshore investment fund property that is a prescribed offshore investment fund property is nil;

Related Provisions: 94.1(3) — Pre-Feb. 15/84 property.

History: The description of A in the definition "designated cost" in subsec. 94.1(2) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 121(1), applicable after September 26, 1994, except that as it applies to taxation years that ended before April 27, 1995, the description of A shall be read as follows:

A is the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property at that time (determined without reference to paragraph 53(1)(m), subparagraph 53(2)(c)(i.3) and section 143.2),

The description formerly read:

A is the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property at that time (determined without reference to paragraph 53(1)(m)),

The description of D in the definition "designated cost" in subsec. 94.1(2) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 121(2), applicable to taxation years that begin after June 20, 1996. The description formerly read:

D is, where the taxpayer held or had the interest in the property at the end of 1984, the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the cost amount to the taxpayer of the property at that time,

Regulations: 6900 (prescribed offshore investment fund property).

"non-resident entity" means a corporation that is not resident in Canada, a partnership, organization, fund or entity that is not resident or is not situated in Canada or a trust with respect to which the rules in paragraph 94(1)(c) or (d) apply.

(3) Interpretation — Where subsection (1) is applied with respect to an offshore investment fund property that was

(a) held by the taxpayer on February 15, 1984,

(b) received as a stock dividend in respect of a share of the capital stock of a non-resident entity held by the taxpayer on February 15, 1984,

(c) received as a stock dividend in respect of a share of the capital stock of a non-resident entity that the taxpayer had previously received as described in paragraph (b), or

(d) substituted for a property held by the taxpayer on February 15, 1984 pursuant to an arrangement that existed on that date, the reference to "1984" in the descriptions of B and D in the definition "designated cost" in subsection (2) shall be read as a reference to "1985".

Origin of subsec. 94.1(3): R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Supp.) (formerly contained in the application rule in 1984, c. 45, s. 30, as amended by 1985, c. 45, s. 148).

Proposed Amendment — 94.1, 94.2, 94.3

Technical Notes: Existing section 94.1 of the Act applies where a taxpayer has invested in an offshore investment fund and one of the main reasons for the investment is to reduce or defer the tax liability that would have applied to the income generated from the underlying assets of the fund if such income had been earned directly by the taxpayer. In these circumstances, existing section 94.1 generally requires an amount to be included in computing the taxpayer's income from the investment. This amount is determined, in general terms, by multiplying the cost amount of the taxpayer's investment by a factor based on interest rates prescribed under Part XLIII of the Regulations.

Section 94.1 is replaced by provisions in new sections 94.1 to 94.3, which contain rules governing the tax treatment of interests in foreign investment entities (FIEs). Under the new rules, a taxpayer's investment motives are no longer relevant. In computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year, where a taxpayer so elects and has sufficient information to comply, new section 94.1 generally requires the inclusion of the taxpayer's share of FIE income for each FIE taxation year that ends in the taxpayer's taxation year. New section 94.2 applies in place of the rules in section 94.1 in all other cases. Under section 94.2, a taxpayer takes into account the annual increase or decrease in the fair market value of the taxpayer's interest in an FIE in computing the taxpayer's income from the FIE. Section 94.3 is designed to prevent double taxation with respect to amounts included in income under sections 94.1 and 94.2.

New section 94.1 applies to taxation years of Canadian investors that begin after 2000.

The table below provides an overview of new sections 94.1 to 94.3 and related provisions.

Issue	Summary	References
1. Which taxpayers are subject to the new FIE rules?	A. All taxpayers, except exempt taxpayers. Except as indicated in (C), below, FIE rules do not apply to non-resident taxpayers.	S. 94.1(2) to (4) and 94.2(3) and (4). "Exempt taxpayer" (s. 94.1(1)). Non-resident taxpayers: see also s. 94.1(3) and 94.2(5).
	B. Partnerships with members resident in Canada must allocate FIE income to those members.	Existing section 96, including exception in s. 96(1.9). See also s. 94.2(6) for application to cases where partnership members become resident in Canada.
	C. Controlled foreign affiliates.	New s. 95(2)(g.2).
2. What property is subject to the new FIE rules?	A. Participating interests (other than exempt interests) in foreign investment entities. However, if no taxation year of an FIE has ended before the end of the taxpayer's taxation year, the FIE rules do not apply to the taxpayer for the taxpayer's year in respect of the FIE.	S. 94.1(2). The following definitions in s. 94.1(1): "entity", "non-resident entity", "foreign investment entity", "exempt interest" and "participating interest".
	B. Where property described in (A) is a right to acquire property or is not capital property, it is not subject to section 94.1 but it is subject to s. 94.2.	S. 94.1(4) and 94.2(3).
	C. Interests in non-resident entities, where those interests track returns in respect of investment property. This property is subject only to s. 94.2, not to s. 94.1.	S. 94.2(9). See also amended s. 91(1).
	D. Interests in certain foreign insurance policies. This property is subject only to s. 94.2, not s. 94.1.	S. 94.2(10).
3. What is the difference in the tax treatment of FIE interests between s. 94.1 and s. 94.2?	A. Section 94.1. Taxes only investor's "share" of FIE's income (e.g., does not include FIE's share of unrealized gains).	S. 94.1(3).
	B. Section 94.2. Full appreciation/decline in fair market value recognized on an annual basis.	S. 94.2(4)
4. How will foreign affiliates of taxpayers resident in Canada be treated under new FIE rules?	Subject to s. 94.2(9) (tracked interests), a taxpayer's share of the capital stock of a controlled foreign affiliate is exempt from the new FIE rules. In certain cases, a taxpayer can elect to have a foreign affiliate treated as a controlled foreign affiliate.	Paragraph (a) of the definition "exempt interest".S. 94.1(12).
5. If a non-resident corporation that is an FIE pays out dividends, how are these dividends taxed?	A. General principle: existing rules apply.	Existing s. 90 and 113.
	B. Relief provided to prevent double taxation. This relief extends to taxable distribution from other FIEs (e.g., trusts).	S. 94.3.
	C. Special rules in the event that the dividends paid to another FIE.	S. 94.1(5)A(g).
6. In what circumstances is a taxpayer subject to sections 94.1 and 94.2, respectively?	A. S. 94.2 rule applies, except as expressly provided otherwise.	S. 94.1(2) to (4) and s. 94.1(3).
	B. Election to use s. 94.1 available.	S. 94.1(4)
	C. Requirement to use s. 94.2 where insufficient information to use s. 94.1.	S. 94.1(17)
	D. Requirement for FIEs to calculate own income with reference to s. 94.2.	S. 94.1(4)(e)
	E. Requirement to use s. 94.2 in the case of properties described in 2(B), (C) and (D), above.	See references in 2(B), (C) and (D).

The table above reflects two main variations from the outline of the proposals put forward for consultation for foreign investment funds in the 1999 budget papers and the November 30, 1999 press release issued by the Minister of Finance. First, in recognition of the complexity associated with proposed section 94.1 and the likelihood that most investors will not have sufficient information to comply with the section, the simpler mark-to-market regime has been made the "default" regime. Second, there is no exemption provided for foreign investment funds that distribute their income annually for the following reasons:

- these distributions may not necessarily be subject to immediate Canadian income tax;
- such an exemption could inappropriately allow for the use of tiered structures under which a fund that distributes annually itself invests, directly or indirectly, in a foreign investment fund that does not distribute annually; and
- to provide equality of treatment between domestic and foreign investment funds, it would be necessary to use income for Canadian tax purposes for the purpose of such an exemption.

However, income of this nature is not generally calculated by foreign investment funds and would not normally be known by investors.

94.1 Foreign Investment Entities — Accrual Treatment — (1) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this section and sections 94.2 and 94.3.

"carrying value" at any time of property of an entity means [note also amendments announced in Sept. 7/00 news release and Backgrounder item #9 reproduced after 94.3 — ed.]

(a) where a balance sheet of the entity is prepared as of that time in accordance with accounting principles substantially similar to generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada, the balance sheet is distributed not later than three months after that time to holders of participating interests in the entity at that time and the property is valued in the balance sheet, the amount at which the property is valued in the balance sheet; and

(b) in any other case, the amount at which the property would be valued for the purpose of the entity's balance sheet as of that time if a balance sheet of the entity were prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada at that time.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.1(1) of the Act defines a number of expressions for the purpose of section 94.1. These definitions are also relevant for the purposes of sections 94.2 and 94.3.

The "carrying value" of a property held by an entity at any time is the amount at which the property is valued as of that time for the purpose of the entity's balance sheet, except where

- the balance sheet was not prepared in accordance with accounting principles similar to generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada, or
- the balance sheet was not distributed within 3 months after that time.

The carrying value of a property is generally expected to be either the historical cost of the property or the fair market value of the property. In the event that a qualifying balance sheet is not prepared or distributed on a timely basis or the property is not expressly valued, a property's carrying value is the amount at which the property would have been valued using generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada.

The carrying value of property is relevant primarily for the purpose of determining whether a non-resident entity is an FIE. This determination is made at the end of the entity's taxation year. (For further detail, see the commentary on the definition "foreign investment entity".) However, it should be noted that the look-through rule in subsection 94.1(10) can affect the properties considered to be owned by an entity and the carrying values of the entity's properties. This look-through rule applies where the entity has a "significant interest" (defined in subsection 94.1(11)) in a corporation, partnership, or trust. For the purposes of the look-through rule, the time at which the determination of carrying value is made is the end of the taxation year of the first tier non-resident entity (whether or not lower tier entities share the same taxation year).

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 94.1(10) — Deemed carrying value.

"entity" includes a trust, a corporation, an organization and a fund, but does not include a partnership unless a contrary intent is evident.

Technical Notes: An entity includes a trust, a corporation, an organization and a fund. Subject to the comments below, it does not include a partnership. The new rules are designed so that, in the case of partnerships, members' shares of incomes and losses are allocated in accordance with section 96 (including new subsection 96(1.9), described in the commentary below).

An "entity" does, however, include a partnership to the extent that this intent is evident in section 94.1. The intent is evident in the definition "carrying value" and paragraph 94.1(10)(c), as it may be necessary to determine the carrying value of the assets of a partnership because of the operation of subsection 94.1(10).

"excluded investment business" of a corporation in a period means an investment business of the corporation in the period where, throughout the part of the period during which the business was carried on, all or substantially all of the corporation's assets used or held in the business are participating interests or debt issued by one or more other corporations

(a) each of which is related to the corporation or is a corporation in which the corporation has a significant interest; and

(b) the principal business carried on by each of which in the period is not an investment business.

Technical Notes: An "excluded investment business" is a type of "investment business" (as described in the commentary below) that is provided favourable tax treatment. The favourable treatment arises because of the reference to "excluded investment business" in the definition "qualifying corporation". A publicly traded share issued by a "qualifying corporation" is generally an "exempt interest" to which the FIE regime in sections 94.1 and 94.2 does not apply. In addition, there is a reference to an "excluded investment business" in subsection 94.1(12) which permits an election to be made by a taxpayer to treat a foreign affiliate principally carrying on an excluded investment business as a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer.

In general terms, an "excluded investment business" is a business of a corporation in which it finances the operations of related corporations that do not carry on investment businesses. Thus, an "excluded investment business" has a substantial link to active businesses (or, more precisely, to businesses that are not investment businesses).

More specifically, an "excluded investment business" of a particular corporation in a period is defined as an "investment business" of the particular corporation in the period where, throughout the part of the period throughout which the business was carried on, all or substantially all of the particular corporation's assets used or held in the business are participating interests or debt issued by one or more corporations:

- related to the particular corporation (or in which the particular corporation has a "significant interest", as defined in subsection 94.1(11)), and
- the principal businesses of which are not investment businesses.

Related Provisions: 94.1(11) — Significant interest.

"exempt interest" of a taxpayer in a foreign investment entity at any time means

(a) a participating interest held by the taxpayer at that time in a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer;

(b) property held by the taxpayer at that time that is a share of a class of the capital stock of a particular corporation or a right to acquire a share of the class, where

(i) the class is, throughout the part of the taxpayer's taxation year that includes that time (which year is in this definition referred to as the "relevant year") during which shares of the class (or rights to acquire shares of the class) are held by the taxpayer, widely-held, actively traded on a regular basis and listed on a prescribed stock exchange, and

(ii) either

(A) the particular corporation's principal business was not an investment business in the period referred to in subparagraph (i), or

(B) the particular corporation is a qualifying corporation in the period referred to in subparagraph (i);

(c) where the taxpayer is a financial institution (within the meaning assigned by subsection 142.2(1)) in the relevant year, a participating interest that is a mark-to-market property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 142.2(1)) for that year; and

(d) a participating interest of the taxpayer in a testamentary trust that, before that time, has never been acquired for consideration.

Technical Notes: An "exempt interest" of a taxpayer in an FIE is each of the following properties:

- a participating interest held by the taxpayer in a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (including an affiliate that is a controlled foreign affiliate because of an election under new subsection 94.1(12)),
- as described in greater detail below, certain shares and options in respect of publicly traded corporations,
- where the taxpayer is a financial institution (as defined in subsection 142.2(1)), a participating interest held by the taxpayer that is mark-to-market property (as defined in that same subsection), and
- a participating interest in a testamentary trust, provided the interest has not been acquired for consideration.

The rules in sections 94.1 and 94.2 generally do not apply in respect of "exempt interests". In most cases, the time of determination for whether a property is an "exempt interest" in an entity is the end of a taxation year of the entity. See, in this regard, subsection 94.1(2).

As noted above, an exempt interest includes certain shares and options with respect to publicly traded FIEs. Given the definition "foreign investment entity", most non-resident financial institutions and real estate development companies, and some resource companies, are expected to be classified as FIEs. Consequently, shares issued by these entities (as well as options in respect of these shares) would be subject to the rules in section 94.1 or 94.2 if it were not for the definition "exempt interest". Under paragraph (b) of the definition "exempt interest", the FIE rules will not apply to a taxpayer's shares and rights to acquire shares of a class of the capital stock of a non-resident corporation held during a taxation year of the taxpayer where, in the period in the year during which the property was held:

- the class is widely held, actively traded and listed on a prescribed stock exchange (note: stock exchanges listed in section 3200 or 3201 of the Regulations are to be prescribed for this purpose), and
- either
  - the corporation's principal business was not an investment business (as defined in subsection 94.1(1) and described in the commentary below) in the period, or
  - the corporation is a qualifying corporation in the period. (See commentary below on the definition "qualifying corporation".)

Related Provisions: 94.1(12) — Exemption by electing to use FAPI rules; 95(2)(g.2)(viii)(A) — Application to FAPI rules.

"exempt taxpayer" for a taxation year means

(a) an individual (other than a trust) who, before the end of the year, was resident in Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, not more than 60 months, but not including an individual who, before the end of the year, was never non-resident; and

(b) an entity the taxable income of which for a period any part of which occurs in the year is exempt from tax under this Part because of subsection 149(1) (otherwise than because of paragraph 149(1)(q.1), (t) or (z)).

Technical Notes: An individual is an "exempt taxpayer" for a taxation year where the individual, before the end of the year, was a resident of Canada for a period of, or periods the total of which is, 60 months or less. (Children who have always been resident in Canada cannot fall within the 60-month exception.)

The rules in new sections 94.1 and 94.2 do not apply in respect of periods during which a taxpayer qualifies as an exempt taxpayer, due to the reference to exempt taxpayers in paragraph 94.1(2)(a) and subsections 94.2(9) and (10). The 60-month exemption for new immigrants to Canada is similar to an exemption in the rules for non-resident trusts in existing section 94.

Tax-exempt entities to which subsection 149(1) applies are also included as exempt taxpayers. However, this inclusion does not apply to retirement compensation arrangements and qualifying environmental trusts for which alternative income tax rules are provided under Parts XI.3 and XII.4. The inclusion also does not apply to insurers to which paragraph 149(1)(t) applies, given the taxability of those insurers pursuant to subsection 149(4.1).

The express reference to tax-exempt entities is generally of significance for the purposes of calculating Part I tax only in the context of the narrow circumstances to which new subsection 94.2(16) applies. That subsection contemplates a case where a taxpayer ceases to be an "exempt taxpayer" and subsequently becomes an "exempt taxpayer". However, the reference to tax-exempt entities may also be of significance in the context of Part XI (foreign property limits), given that the application of sections 94.1 and 94.2 has an impact on the cost amount of participating interests in FIEs.

Related Provisions: 94.2(16) — Fresh start on change of status; 96(1.9) — Where exempt taxpayer is member of partnership.

"foreign bank" has the same meaning as in subsection 95(1).

Technical Notes: The definition "foreign bank" has the same meaning as in subsection 95(1). The expression is used in the definition "investment business".

"foreign investment entity" at any time means a non-resident entity at that time except where, at the end of its taxation year that includes that time,

(a) the entity would be an exempt foreign trust (within the meaning assigned by subsection 94(1)) if the definition "exempt trust" in subsection 233.2(1) were read without reference to paragraph (c) of that definition;

(b) the entity is

(i) a personal trust, and

(ii) not a non-discretionary trust; or

(c) the carrying value of all of the entity's investment property is not more than one-half of the carrying value of all of the entity's property.

Technical Notes: The new tax regime for FIEs in sections 94.1 and 94.2 generally applies only to participating interests in a foreign entity that is a "foreign investment entity".

A non-resident entity is generally a "foreign investment entity" throughout one of its taxation years where the total carrying value of its investment property is greater than 50% of the total carrying value of all of its property at the end of the year. In making this determination, the entity's property must be identified as either investment property or other property and it must be assigned a carrying value.

A foreign investment entity does not, however, include:

- an "exempt foreign trust" under subsection 94(1) (other than a widely-held mutual fund trust referred to in paragraph (c) of the definition "exempt trust" in existing subsection 233.2(1)), or
- a discretionary personal trust (or, more precisely, a trust that is not a "non-discretionary trust").

For more detail, see the commentary on the expressions "entity", "non-resident entity", "investment property" and "carrying value" in subsection 94.1(1). "Non-discretionary trust" is newly defined in subsection 248(1), with reference to the definition of the same expression in subsection 17(15).

Special rules in subsections 94.1(10) and (13) generally limit the circumstances in which a non-resident entity falls within the definition "foreign investment entity".

Related Provisions: 94.1(13) — Exception for qualifying dispositions and issues.

"investment business" of an entity in a period means a business carried on by the entity at any time in the period the principal purpose of which is to derive income from property (including interest, dividends, rents, royalties or any similar return on investment or any substitute for such a return), income from the insurance or reinsurance of risks, income from the factoring of trade accounts receivable, or profits from the disposition of indebtedness or properties described in any of paragraphs (a) to (d) or (f) to (l) of the definition "investment property", unless it is established that, throughout the part of the period during which the business was carried on by the entity, the business (other than any business conducted principally with persons with whom the entity does not deal at arm's length) is [note also exclusion announced in Sept. 7/00 news release and Backgrounder item #6 reproduced after 94.3 — ed.]

(a) a business carried on by the entity as a foreign bank, a trust company, a credit union or an insurance corporation, the activities of which are regulated under the laws of the country in which the business is principally carried on;

(b) the development of real estate for sale;

(c) the rental of real estate held by the entity if the management, maintenance, and other services in respect of the real estate are provided principally by the employees of the entity or of a corporation related to it; or

(d) the development of foreign resource property.

Technical Notes: The expression "investment business" is used in the definitions "exempt interest" and "investment property", as well as in subsection 94.1(12) (election to be a controlled foreign affiliate). The definition "investment business" is similar to the definition of the same expression in existing subsection 95(1). Note, however, that in this definition:

- there is no exception for traders and dealers in securities or for the lending of money, the leasing or licensing of property or the insurance or reinsurance of risks;
- there is a greater accommodation of real estate businesses and businesses involved in the development of foreign resource properties;
- there is no explicit requirement for a specific number of full-time employees for the exceptions to the definition to apply; and
- the supporting definitions and rules contained in subsections 95(1) to (2.4) are not relevant.

Letter from Department of Finance, September 15, 2000:

Dear [xxx]

We are responding to your letter dated July 26, 2000 concerning the draft legislation released by the Minister of Finance on June 22, 2000 dealing with foreign investment entities and non-residents trusts.

In particular, you are concerned that shares of a "high tech" corporation that derives its revenue from the licensing of its proprietary technology and software products would not be considered an exempt interest because the business of the corporation would be an investment business. Therefore, you are requesting confirmation that this result was not intended and that we would be prepared to recommend that the definition of investment business be amended to exclude such a business.

As you may be aware, the Minister of Finance announced on September 7, 2000, a number of modifications to the proposals. One of the proposed changes would modify the definition of investment business to exclude a business of developing or purchasing and developing of property for sale or licensing. This announcement should address your concerns.

Thank you for taking the time to express your views with respect to this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein

Letter from Department of Finance, July 25, 2000: See under 94.1(1)"participating interest".

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation.

"investment property" of an entity includes property that is [note also exclusions announced in Sept. 7/00 news release and Backgrounder item #5 reproduced after 94.3 — ed.]

(a) a share of the capital stock of a corporation;

(b) an interest in a partnership;

(c) an interest in a trust;

(d) an interest in any other entity;

(e) indebtedness, other than accounts receivable that arose from the sale of tangible property or services in the ordinary course of a business of the entity that is not an investment business;

(f) an annuity;

(g) a commodity or commodity future purchased or sold, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, on a commodities or commodities futures exchange (except a commodity manufactured, produced, grown, extracted or processed by the entity or a person to whom the entity is related, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b), or a commodity future in respect of such a commodity);

(h) real estate;

(i) a Canadian resource property or foreign resource property;

(j) currency;

(k) a derivative financial product (other than a commodity future to which the exception in paragraph (g) applies); or

(l) an interest, option, or right in respect of property included in any of paragraphs (a) to (k).

Technical Notes: The expression "investment property" includes a list of specified properties. Most of the specified properties (e.g., shares, partnership interests, real estate and resource properties) are also specified in the definition of the same expression in subsection 95(1). In addition to the properties also specified in the definition in subsection 95(1), "investment property" held by a particular entity includes:

- an interest in an organization, fund or other entity;
- most derivative financial products; and
- interests, options and rights in respect of the above properties.

It should be noted, however, that "investment property" in subsection 94.1(1) does not include accounts receivable that arise from the sale of tangible property or services in the ordinary course of a business (other than an "investment business", described above).

The definition is primarily relevant for purposes of the determining whether a non-resident entity is a "foreign investment entity".

Related Provisions: 94.1(12) — Election to use FAPI rules.

"non-resident entity" at any time means

(a) a corporation or trust that is non-resident at that time; and

(b) any entity (other than a corporation or trust)

(i) organized under the laws of a jurisdiction outside Canada, or

(ii) the governance of which is provided at that time under the laws of a jurisdiction outside Canada.

Technical Notes: One of the requirements for an entity to be an FIE to which sections 94.1 and 94.2 apply is that the entity must be a "non-resident entity".

In addition to non-resident corporations and trusts, a "non-resident entity" includes any other type of entity

- organized under the laws of a jurisdiction outside Canada, or
- the governance of which is provided under the laws of a jurisdiction outside Canada.

Related Provisions: 94(3)(a) [proposed] — Application to trust deemed resident in Canada.

"participating interest" in an entity means

(a) where the entity is a corporation,

(i) a share of the capital stock of the corporation, and

(ii) a right to acquire a share of the capital stock of the corporation;

(b) where the entity is a trust,

(i) a beneficial interest in the trust, and

(ii) a right to acquire a beneficial interest in the trust; and

(c) in any other case, an interest in the entity or a right to acquire an interest in the entity.

Technical Notes: A "participating interest" in an entity means a share of the capital stock of, or an interest in, the entity. It also includes a right to acquire such a share or interest.

Section 94.1 or 94.2 generally applies to a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in an FIE that is not an "exempt interest" of the taxpayer.

Letter from Department of Finance, July 25, 2000:

Dear [xxx]

I am responding to your letter dated July 17, 2000 concerning the draft legislation released by the Minister of Finance on June 22, 2000 on foreign investment entities and non-resident trusts. Your letter concerns the application of proposed new sections 94.1 and 94.2 of the Income Tax Act to the shareholders of [xxx] in respect of exchangeable shares that they are to receive as consideration for the disposition of shares of [Fxx] on the acquisition of control of [xxx].

We understand that [xxx] which is a corporation resident in the United States, is to incorporate a Canadian holding corporation (Holdco) to acquire the shares of [xxx] which is a corporation resident in Canada. We also understand that Holdco is to issue shares of its capital stock (Holdco shares) as consideration in respect of the acquisition by it of shares of the capital stock of [xxx] owned by the shareholders of [xxx] prior to the acquisition of control. The Holdco shares will provide the holder of the shares with a fight to acquire shares issued by [xxx].

The proposed definition of "participating interest" in the June 22, 2000 draft legislation does not explicitly address shares issued by an entity that are exchangeable for the shares in the capital stock of a non-resident entity. However, it would be keeping with the policy intent underlying the legislation that shares issued by a Canadian entity which are exchangeable into the shares issued by a non-resident entity, generally be treated as a "participating interest" in the non-resident entity. This letter therefore makes the assumption that Holdco shares would be "participating interests" in [xxx] and that, for the purposes of the proposed definition "exempt interest", the right to acquire the [Qxx] shares has been exercised by the Holdco shareholders.

Based on these assumptions, the treatment of the holders of the Holdco shares under the proposed new rules will then depend on the status of [Qxx] as a foreign investment entity and the status of the [xxx] shares as an exempt interest in a foreign investment entity. If [xxx] is not a foreign investment entity or the [xxx] shares are an exempt interest, the rules in sections 94.1 and 94.2 (including proposed subsection 94.2(9)) would not be expected to apply to the holders of the Holdco shares.

You have told us that [xxx] has recently made two public offerings of shares and, as a consequence, more than 50% of the company's assets are cash and near cash, being "investment properties", as defined in proposed subsection 94.1(1). It is anticipated that the cash and near cash will be used in the next year to acquire active business property or fund active business operations. Because of proposed subsections 94.1(13) and (15), in general the cash or near cash raised in a taxation year can be ignored in determining if [xxx] is a foreign investment entity at the end of that year. In the event that the cash and near cash is not used as contemplated, we would expect that [xxx] would be a foreign investment entity at the end of its first taxation year that ends after the year in which the public offerings occurred.

If [xxx] a foreign investment entity, the question remains whether the [xxx] shares would be an "exempt interest". To qualify as an exempt interest, the [xxx] shares must be of a class that is widely held, actively traded and listed on a prescribed stock exchange and the [xxx] shares must satisfy one of two additional criteria. One of these criteria is that the principal business of [xxx] must not be an "investment business" as defined in proposed subsection 94.1(1). The proposed definition would include a business the principal purpose of which is to derive income from property including royalties.

It is understood that the gross revenue of [xxx] is derived principally from royalties paid in the respect of the use of software developed by [xxx]. Consequently, under the definition proposed, the business of [xxx] is an investment business. Therefore, the [xxx] shares would not qualify as an exempt interest under the June 22, 2000 draft legislation. We are of the view, however, that the treatment of such a business as an "investment business" is unintended from a policy perspective.

Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the definition of an investment business be modified. The proposed modification would provide that, where the principal purpose of a corporation's business is to earn income from property that is royalty income, that business will not be an investment business where the royalty income is derived principally from property that was developed, produced or created by the corporation. I trust that such a modification would address your concerns.

Yours sincerely,
Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Related Provisions: 94.2(12) — Cost of participating interest.

"qualifying corporation" in a period means a particular corporation all or substantially all of the assets of which are, throughout the period, any combination of

(a) properties (other than investment properties); and

(b) shares and debt issued by one or more other corporations each of which

(i) is, at any time in the period, a corporation all of the shares of which (other than directors' qualifying shares) are held by

(A) the particular corporation,

(B) a corporation related to the particular corporation, or

(C) any combination of corporations described in clauses (A) and (B), and

(ii) is either

(A) a corporation the principal business of which throughout the period is

(I) an excluded investment business, or

(II) a business that is not an investment business, or

(B) a qualifying corporation in the period.

Technical Notes: Shares issued by a qualifying corporation are generally exempt from the FIE regime in sections 94.1 and 94.2 because of the definition "exempt interest" (described in the commentary above), provided the shares are widely-held, actively traded and listed on a prescribed stock exchange.

In general terms, a "qualifying corporation" is a corporation that (directly or indirectly) finances the active business operations of related corporations.

More specifically, a "qualifying corporation" in a period is defined as a particular corporation all or substantially all of the assets of which are, throughout the period, any combination of:

- properties (other than investment properties), and
- shares or debt issued by one or more other corporations each of which
  - — is, at any time in the period, a corporation all of the shares of which (other than directors' qualifying shares) are held by any combination of the particular corporation and related corporations, and
  - — either
    - — has as its principal business an excluded investment business or a business (other than an investment business), or
    - — is itself a qualifying corporation in the period.

Reference should also be made to the commentary on the definition "excluded investment business".

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 94.1(1)"exempt interest"(b)(ii)(B) — Share of qualifying corporation can be exempt interest.

"taxation year" of a non-resident entity means

(a) in the case of a corporation the accounts of which have ordinarily been made up for a period not exceeding 53 weeks, that period; and

(b) in any other case, a calendar year.

Technical Notes: The "taxation year" of a non-resident entity is a calendar year. However, if the entity is a corporation, its taxation year is the period, not exceeding 53 weeks, for which its accounts are ordinarily made up.

(2) Conditions for application of tax regime for foreign investment entities — [Note also amendments announced in Sept. 7/00 news release and Backgrounder items #1–3 reproduced after 94.3 — ed.] This subsection applies to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year in respect of a participating interest held in the particular year by the taxpayer in a non-resident entity where

(a) the taxpayer is not an exempt taxpayer for the particular year;

(b) a taxation year of the entity ended at or before the end of the particular year;

(c) at the end of the latest of the entity's taxation years referred to in paragraph (b), the entity was a foreign investment entity;

(d) if the interest or identical property to the interest was held by the taxpayer at the end of the latest of the entity's taxation years referred to in paragraph (b), none of the interest and each identical property was, at the end of that year, an exempt interest in respect of the taxpayer; and

(e) if neither the interest nor identical property to the interest was held by the taxpayer at the end of the latest of the entity's taxation years referred to in paragraph (b), none of the interest and each identical property was, at the latest time in the particular year at which the interest or identical property was held by the taxpayer, an exempt interest in respect of the taxpayer.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.1(2) of the Act sets out the common conditions for the application of the FIE rules in section 94.1(3) (accrual regime) and 94.2(4) (mark-to-market regime). For the accrual or mark-to-market regimes to apply to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year in respect of a participating interest held in the particular year by the taxpayer in a non-resident entity, all of the following conditions set out in subsection 94.1(2) must be satisfied:

- the taxpayer is not an "exempt taxpayer" for the particular year; [Paragraph 94.12(2)(a).]
- a taxation year of the entity ended at or before the end of the particular year and, at the end of the latest such taxation year of the entity, the entity was an FIE; [Paragraphs 94.1(2)(b) and (c).]
- where the interest or identical property to the interest was held by the taxpayer at the end of the latest such year, the interest or the identical property was not an "exempt interest" in respect of the taxpayer; [Paragraph 94.1(2)(d).] and
- where neither the interest nor identical property to the interest were held by the taxpayer at the end of the latest such year, the interest and each identical property was not an exempt interest while held in the particular year by the taxpayer. [Paragraph 94.1(2)(e).]

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 95(2)(g.2) — Application to FAPI rules.

(3) Income inclusion and deduction — Subject to subsection (4), where, at any time in a particular taxation year of a taxpayer, the taxpayer holds a participating interest, or two or more identical participating interests, in a non-resident entity and subsection (2) applies to the taxpayer for the particular year in respect of those interests, in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular year in respect of such of those interests that are held by the taxpayer at the end of a taxation year of the entity (in this subsection referred to as the "relevant interests") that ends in the particular year, except where the taxpayer is non-resident at the end of the entity's year,

(a) there shall be added the positive amount, if any, determined by the formula

where

A is the taxpayer's income allocation in respect of the relevant interests for the entity's year,

B is the taxpayer's loss allocation in respect of the relevant interests for the entity's year,

C is the specified tax allocation of the taxpayer for the entity's year in respect of the relevant interests, and

D is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount determined in respect of the taxpayer under subparagraph (b)(i) for the preceding taxation year of the entity in respect of the relevant interests or identical properties

exceeds

(ii) the amount determined for that preceding year in respect of the taxpayer under subparagraph (b)(ii) in respect of the relevant interests or identical properties; and

(b) there may be deducted the lesser of

(i) the absolute value of the negative amount, if any, determined by the formula in paragraph (a) in respect of the relevant interests for the entity's year, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount added under paragraph (a) in computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the relevant interests or identical properties for a preceding taxation year of the entity

exceeds

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deductible under this paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the relevant interests or identical properties for a preceding taxation year of the entity.

Technical Notes: Where the accrual regime does apply to a taxpayer for a particular taxation year in connection with one or more of a taxpayer's identical participating interests in a non-resident entity, subsection 94.1(3) provides:

- The taxpayer's "income allocation" in respect of those interests for a taxation year of the entity ending in the particular year is added in computing the amount included in the taxpayer's income under subsection 94.1(3), to the extent that the taxpayer held those interests at the end of the entity's year. (However, in order to clarify the application of section 114 to part-year residents and to ensure that section 94.1 does not affect the taxability of non-resident taxpayers, subsection 94.1(3) does not apply to a taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of an FIE's taxation year that ends in the taxpayer's year where the taxpayer is not resident in Canada at the end of the FIE's year.)
- The taxpayer's "loss allocation" in respect of those participating interests is deductible to the extent that there has previously been a net cumulative positive balance determined under subsection 94.1(3) in respect of the taxpayer for such property in respect of preceding taxation years of the entity. An unused loss allocation is carried forward to offset the total amount otherwise required to be computing the taxpayer's income under subsection 94.1(3) in respect of identical participating interests for a subsequent taxation year of the entity.
- A taxpayer's specified tax allocation in respect of the entity's year is treated in the same way as a loss allocation. However, unlike a loss allocation, a specified tax allocation can arise for the same entity's year as an income allocation. Where this is the case, the specified tax allocation can directly offset the income allocation. A taxpayer's specified tax allocation, as determined under subsection 94.1(8), represents the taxpayer's grossed-up share or income of profits tax paid by the entity in the year on account of a liability for income or profits tax for the entity's year or an earlier year of the entity. The taxpayer's share of taxes in respect of the liability year is determined with reference to the taxpayer's position in the entity at the end of the liability year.

The examples after the commentary on subsections 94.1(5) and (6) illustrate the operation of subsection 94.1(3).

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 94.1(4) — Exceptions; 94.1(5) — Income allocation; 94.1(7) — Loss allocation; 94.1(8) — Specified tax allocation; 94.3(2)(a)(ii) — Prevention of double taxation; 95(2)(g.2) — Application to FAPI rules.

(4) Exceptions — Subsection (3) applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of a participating interest held in the year by the taxpayer in a non-resident entity only where

(a) the taxpayer so elects in respect of the interest in prescribed form and files the election with the Minister not later than the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year;

(b) the taxpayer filed an election under paragraph (a) in respect of the interest (or property identical to it) for each preceding taxation year that began after 2000 and in which the interest or the identical property was held by the taxpayer;

(c) subsection (17) does not apply to the taxpayer for the year in respect of the interest;

(d) subsection 94.2(3) does not, because of subsection 94.2(9), apply to the taxpayer for the year or a preceding taxation year in respect of the interest or identical property to the interest;

(e) the taxpayer is not a foreign investment entity;

(f) the interest is not a right to acquire

(i) shares of the capital stock of the entity, or

(ii) an interest in the entity; and

(g) the interest would, if this Act were read without reference to subparagraph 39(1)(a)(ii.3) and section 94.2, be capital property.

Technical Notes: Notwithstanding the above, the mark-to-market regime, rather than the accrual regime, applies where the exceptions under subsection 94.1(4) apply. Subsection 94.1(4) provides that the accrual regime applies only to capital property and only where an election to use the accrual regime has been made at the earliest opportunity. Moreover, the accrual regime does not apply to a taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity in the following cases:

- where section 94.1 does not apply because of the operation of subsection 94.1(17) (insufficient information),

- where, because of subsection 94.2(9) (tracked interests), subsection 94.2(3) applies or has applied to the taxpayer in respect of the interest or identical property,
- where the taxpayer is itself an FIE, [See commentary on paragraph 94.1(5)A(a) for more detail.] or
- where the interest is an option or similar right to acquire.

Related Provisions: 95(2)(g.2)(ix) — Application to FAPI rules; 96(3) — Election by members of partnership.

(5) Income allocation — For the purpose of subsection (3), the income allocation of a particular taxpayer in respect of a participating interest, or two or more identical participating interests, of the particular taxpayer in a foreign investment entity for a particular taxation year of the entity is the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount that would be the income of the entity for the particular year if

(a) except for the purposes of section 91, paragraph (4)(e), subsection 107.4(1) and paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1), the entity had been a taxpayer resident in Canada throughout the entity's existence,

(b) each property held by the entity at the beginning of the entity's fresh start year in respect of the particular taxpayer had been

(i) disposed of by the entity immediately before that time for proceeds equal to its fair market value at that time, and

(ii) reacquired by the entity at that time at a cost equal to that fair market value,

(c) for the entity's fresh start year in respect of the particular taxpayer and for each following taxation year of the entity, each deduction in computing the entity's income that is contingent on a claim by the entity had been claimed by the entity to the extent, and only to the extent, designated by the particular taxpayer in prescribed form filed with the Minister with the particular taxpayer's return of income for the particular taxpayer's taxation year in which that fresh start year or the following year, as the case may be, ends,

(d) the entity had deducted the greatest amounts that it could have claimed or deducted as a reserve under sections 20, 138 and 140 for its taxation year that precedes its fresh start year in respect of the particular taxpayer,

(e) for the purposes of applying sections 37, 65 to 66.4 and 66.7, the entity had not existed before the entity's fresh start year in respect of the particular taxpayer,

(f) this Act were read without reference to subsections 20(11) and (12) and 104(4) to (6),

(g) where the particular taxpayer is a corporation resident in Canada, dividends received by the entity in the particular year from a foreign affiliate of the particular taxpayer were included in computing the income of the entity for the particular year only where

(i) the particular taxpayer did not have a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m)) in the affiliate at the time the dividends were received, or

(ii) taking into account the application of paragraphs (a) and (i), subsection 94.2(4) applied for the purpose of computing the entity's income for the particular year in respect of the entity's participating interest in the affiliate,

(h) where the entity holds at any time in the particular year a participating interest in a non-resident entity, the description of D in paragraph 94.2(4)(a) did not apply in respect of that interest, and

(i) the words "controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer" in paragraph (a) of the definition "exempt interest" referred to a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular taxpayer and not to a controlled foreign affiliate of the entity;

B is the fair market value of those interests at the end of the particular year; and

C is the fair market value of all participating interests in the entity (other than rights to acquire shares of the capital stock of, or interests in, the entity) at the end of the year.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.1(5) of the Act provides for the calculation of a taxpayer's income allocation in respect of participating interests in an FIE. A taxpayer's income allocation in respect of one or more identical participating interest in an FIE held by the taxpayer at the end of the FIE's taxation year is included in computing the taxpayer's income under subsection 94.1(3). In general terms, a taxpayer's income allocation in respect of participating interests in an FIE is the proportion of the FIE's income for a taxation year that the fair market value of those interests is of the fair market value of all participating interests in the FIE.

The calculation of a taxpayer's income allocation in respect of an FIE depends on a calculation of income for the FIE in accordance with rules set out in paragraphs 94.1(5)A(a) to (i). The calculation for a particular taxpayer generally only takes into account an FIE's taxation years that end after the particular taxpayer first holds a participating interest in the FIE in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2000. The first such FIE taxation year in respect of a taxpayer is defined in subsection 94.1(6) as the "fresh start year" of the FIE in respect of the taxpayer. This permits taxpayers to make independent calculations of an FIE's income for the purpose of determining income allocations under section 94.1.

The special rules that apply in calculating an FIE's income in respect of an investor taxpayer for the FIE's fresh start year and subsequent years are as follows:

- Subject to three exceptions, the FIE is generally treated as having been a taxpayer resident of Canada throughout its existence. [Paragraph 94.1(5)A(a).] First, this rule does not apply for the purposes of proposed subsection 107.4(1) or proposed paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1), [Proposed section 107.4 and a new definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) are contained in a detailed Notice of Ways and Means Motion tabled on June 5, 2000.] with the result that property that is transferred to the FIE without there being any change in the beneficial ownership of the property is considered to have been transferred to the FIE under subsection 69(1) at the fair market value of the property. Second, this rule does not apply for the purposes of section 91 with the result that the FIE will not itself be required to include an amount in respect of foreign accrual property income in computing the FIE's income. Third, this rule does not apply for the purposes of paragraph 94.1(4)(e) with the result that section 94.2 (rather that section 94.1) potentially applies in the event that the FIE owns a participating interest in another FIE.

- Each property held by the FIE at the beginning of the fresh start year is deemed to have been disposed of for its fair market value immediately before that time and reacquired for the same amount at that time. [Paragraph 94.1(5)A(b). Compare paragraph 149(10)(b).]
- Each discretionary deduction permitted in computing the FIE's income for the FIE's fresh start year and subsequent taxation years is deemed to have been claimed to the extent designated by the investor taxpayer. Thus, in calculating an income allocation in respect of the FIE, the investor taxpayer will be permitted to claim deductions such as capital cost allowance. [Paragraph 94.1(5)A(c).]
- The FIE is assumed to have deducted the greatest amounts permissible, for its taxation year preceding the fresh start year, under sections 20, 138 and 140. [Paragraph 94.1(5)A(d). Compare paragraph 149(10)(a.1).] These amounts are added in computing the FIE's income for the fresh start year, but appropriate deductions under these sections can be claimed for the fresh start year and subsequent taxation years. In the context of the reserve for life insurers under subsection 138(3), it is intended to amend paragraph (c) of the definition "reported reserve" in subsection 1408(1) of the Regulations so that the FIE can have a "reported reserve".
- The FIE is deemed not to have been in existence before the fresh start year for the purposes of sections 37, 65 to 66.4 and 66.7. [Paragraph 94.1(5)A(e). Compare paragraph 149(10)(c).] As a consequence, the scientific research and resource expenditure pools to which these sections refer are ignored, to the extent that these pools were generated before the fresh start year.
- The FIE is not permitted to deduct any amount under subsection 20(11) or (12) in respect of its foreign tax. [Paragraph 94.1(5)A(f).] However, foreign tax will be taken into account because the FIE's specified tax allocation (as determined under new subsection 94.1(8)) can offset amounts otherwise included in income under subsection 94.1(3).
- If the FIE is a trust, no amount is considered deductible under subsection 104(6) in determining its income for the year. [Paragraph 94.1(5)A(f).] Double taxation for the investor taxpayer is avoided through the application of new subsection 94.3(2). In addition, no deemed disposition day under subsection 104(4) is determined in respect of the trust, whether or not the FIE falls outside the restricted meaning of "trust" for this purpose under subsection 108(1).
- If the investor taxpayer is a corporation resident in Canada and the FIE is a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, any dividends received by the FIE from a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest (as determined under paragraph 95(2)(m)) are not included in the FIE's income. [Paragraph 94.1(5)A(g).] Note, that this rule does not apply in the event that the FIE's interest in the foreign affiliate is subject to the mark-to-market regime in subsection 94.2(4). However, an income inclusion resulting from the application of subsection 94.2(4) for the FIE in some cases can, however, be offset by the deduction provided under new subsection 94.3(2).
- Where the FIE has an interest in another FIE, there is no "deferral amount" taken into account in computing the FIE's income pursuant to new subsection 94.2(4). [Paragraph 94.1(5)A(h).] (The fresh start rule described above eliminates the need for a "deferral amount".)
- Participating interests in controlled foreign affiliates of the investor taxpayer (rather than controlled foreign affiliates of the FIE) are treated as "exempt interests" of the FIE. [Paragraph 94.1(5)A(i).]

A taxpayer's income allocation in respect of a participating interest in a FIE is the proportion of an entity's income for a taxation year (determined in accordance with the special rules detailed above) that the fair market value at the end of the year of the participating interest is of the fair market value at that time of all participating interests in the entity (other than rights to acquire shares of the capital stock of, or to acquire interests in, the entity).

For further details, see the related commentary on the expressions "foreign investment entity", "exempt interest" in subsection 94.1(1), as well as the commentary on subsection 94.1(5) (income allocation), subsection 94.1(7) (loss allocation) and subsection 94.1(8) (specified tax allocation).

The examples below illustrate the operation of subsections 94.1(3) and (5). It should be noted in this context that any negative amount otherwise resulting from the formula in paragraph 94.1(3)(a) is deemed to be nil as a result of the application of section 257.

Example 1

Canco owns shares in the capital stock of FIE-1, which like Canco has a calendar taxation year. Canco's income (loss) allocations for 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004 and 2005 are (100), 25, 90, (20) and 50, respectively.

Results

1. The amount included under subsection 94.1(3) in Canco's income for 2001 is nil (B = 100). The amount determined under subparagraph 94.1(3)(b)(i) for 2001 is 100, which can be carried forward to 2002.
2. The amount included under paragraph 94.1(3)(a) in Canco's income for 2002 is nil (A = 25, D = 100). The amount determined under subparagraph 94.1(3)(b)(i) for 2002 is 75, which can be carried forward to 2003.
3. The amount included under paragraph 94.1(3)(a) in Canco's income for 2003 is 15 (A = 90, D = 75). The amount determined under subparagraph 94.1(3)(b)(i) for 2003 is nil.
4. The amount included under paragraph 94.1(3)(a) in Canco's income for 2004 is nil (B = 20, D = 0). The amount deductible under paragraph 94.1(3)(b) is 15 (= the lesser of 20 and 15). The remaining $5 unused loss allocation can be carried forward to 2005.
5. The amount included under paragraph 94.1(3)(a) in Canco's income for 2005 is $45 (A = 50, D = 5).

Example 2

Canco owns shares in the capital stock of FIE-1, which like Canco has a calendar taxation year. Canco's income (loss) allocations for 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004 and 2005 are: (100), (125), (175), 300 and 150.

Results

1. The amount included under subsection 94.1(3) in Canco's income for 2001 is nil (B = 100). The amount determined under subparagraph 94.1(3)(b)(i) for 2001 is 100 (= B), which can be carried forward to 2002.
2. The amount included under paragraph 94.1(3)(a) in Canco's income for 2002 is nil (B = 125, D = 100). The amount determined under subparagraph 94.1(3)(b)(i) for 2002 is 225 (= B+D), which can be carried forward to 2003.
3. The amount included under paragraph 94.1(3)(a) in Canco's income for 2003 is nil (B = 175, D = 225). The amount determined under subparagraph 94.1(3)(b)(i) for 2003 is 400 (= B+D).
4. The amount included under paragraph 94.1(3)(a) in Canco's income for 2004 is nil (A = 300, D = 400). The amount deductible under paragraph 94.1(3)(b) is nil (= the lesser of 100 and nil). The remaining $100 unused loss allocation (= D – A) can be carried forward to 2005.
5. The amount included under paragraph 94.1(3)(a) in Canco's income for 2005 is $50 (A = 150, D = 100).

Example 3

1. Canco, FIE-1 and ABC Inc. each have taxation years that coincide with calendar years and each issue only one class of shares.

2. Canco is a corporation resident in Canada that holds 20% of the shares of the capital stock of an FIE (FIE-1).
3. FIE-1 owns 75% of the shares of the capital stock of ABC Inc.
4. ABC Inc. is not an FIE, but would be a controlled foreign affiliate of FIE-1 if FIE-1 were resident in Canada. Although ABC Inc. is a foreign affiliate of Canco, it is not a controlled foreign affiliate of Canco.
5. FIE-1 earns $5,000 in interest income in 2001. It also receives a dividend of $1,000 from ABC Inc.
6. The fair market value of FIE-1's shares in ABC Inc. increases by $6,500 in 2001. This increase in value ignores the $1,000 dividend paid from ABC Inc. (i.e., the increase in value would have been about $1,000 higher if no such dividends had been paid).

Results

1. Under subsection 94.1(3), Canco is required to include in computing income its income allocation in respect of its shares in the capital stock of FIE-1. For this purpose, FIE-1's income is generally computed as if FIE-1 were resident in Canada.
2. FIE-1's income includes the $5,000 of interest income (as per paragraph 12(1)(c)). However, the $1,000 dividend from ABC Inc. is disregarded because of paragraph 94.1(5)A(g). Because of the reference to section 91 in paragraph 94.1(5)A(a), it is not necessary to make any foreign accrual property income calculation in respect of ABC Inc.
3. Canco must therefore include $1,000 (i.e., 20% × $5,000) in computing its income by virtue of subsection 94.1(3).

Example 4

Same facts as in example 3, except that ABC Inc. is itself an FIE.

Results

1. The mark-to-market rules in section 94.2 will apply in the calculation of FIE-1's income in respect of its interest in ABC Inc.. See, in this regard, paragraph 94.1(4)(e).
2. For the purpose of computing Canco's income allocation in respect of its shares in FIE-1, FIE-1's income would include the $5,000 of interest (as per example 3), but not include any share of foreign accrual property income (as per example 3). However, FIE-1's income would include the $1,000 dividend paid in addition to its gain determined under subsection 94.2(4) in respect of its participating interest in ABC Inc. This gain so determined is $7,500, which is equal to the $6,500 increase in the value of shares plus the $1,000 dividend paid. However, for the purposes of computing Canco's income allocation, a deduction for the $1,000 dividend is permitted for FIE-1 because subsection 94.3(2) would have permitted the deduction if FIE-1 had been resident in Canada.
3. Consequently, Canco's income allocation in respect of its shares of the capital stock of FIE-1 is equal to $2,500 [i.e., ($5,000 + $7,500 + $1,000 – $1,000) × 20%)]. This amount is required to be included in computing Canco's income under subsection 94.1(3).

Related Provisions: 94.1(6) — Fresh start year; 95(2)(g.2) — Application to FAPI rules; 96(3) — Election by members of partnership.

(6) Fresh start year — For the purpose of subsection (5), the fresh start year of a foreign investment entity in respect of a taxpayer is the first taxation year of the entity

(a) that ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2000; and

(b) any time in which the taxpayer holds a participating interest in the entity.

Technical Notes: See under 94.1(5).

(7) Loss allocation — For the purpose of subsection (3), the loss allocation of a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest, or two or more identical participating interests, of the taxpayer in a foreign investment entity for a taxation year of the entity is the amount that would, if paragraphs (a) to (i) of the description of A in subsection (4) applied, be determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is a loss of the entity for the year from business or property;

B is the amount determined under paragraph 3(c) in respect of the entity for the year;

C is the fair market value of those interests at the end of the year; and

D is the fair market value of all participating interests in the entity (other than rights to acquire shares of the capital stock of, or interests in, the entity) at the end of the year.

Technical Notes: A taxpayer's "loss allocation" in respect of the taxpayer's participating interest in an entity is relevant for the purposes of determining the amounts deductible and included in computing income under new subsection 94.1(3) of the Act. In general, a taxpayer's loss allocation in respect of an FIE is the proportion of the FIE's net loss for the year that the fair market value of the taxpayer's participating interest in the FIE is of the fair market value of all participating interests in the FIE. More specifically, a taxpayer's loss allocation in respect of a participating interest of a taxpayer in an entity for a taxation year of the entity is determined as follows:

- ADD the entity's total losses for the year from businesses and properties,
- SUBTRACT the amount determined under paragraph 3(c) for the entity for the year (i.e., the total amount of its income from business and property and taxable capital gains in excess of allowable capital losses for the year), and
- MULTIPLY any positive remainder by the percentage that the fair market value of the interest represents of the fair market value of all participating interests in the entity (other than rights to acquire participating interests).

The determination of a taxpayer's loss allocation is subject to the same special rules that apply for the purposes of computing a taxpayer's income allocation under subsection 94.1(5) (e.g., the entity is generally deemed to be resident in Canada).

Related Provisions: 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

(8) Specified tax allocation — For the purpose of subsection (3), the specified tax allocation of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year of a non-resident entity in respect of a participating interest, or two or more identical participating interests, held by the taxpayer at the end of the particular year is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount determined, in respect of a taxation year of the entity (in this subsection referred to as the "liability year") that is the particular year or a preceding taxation year, by the formula

where

A is

(a) where the liability year ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2000, the income or profits tax paid in the particular year by the particular entity for the liability year, and

(b) in any other case, nil;

B is

(a) where the taxpayer did not hold those interests or identical properties at the end of the liability year, nil, and

(b) in any other case, the total fair market value of those interests and identical properties that are held by the taxpayer at the end of the liability year;

C is the fair market value of all participating interests in the entity (other than rights to acquire shares of the capital stock of, or interests in, the entity) at the end of the liability year; and

D is the taxpayer's relevant tax factor (within the meaning assigned by subsection 95(1)) for the particular year.

Technical Notes: Under new subsection 94.1(3) of the Act, a taxpayer is entitled to deduct the taxpayer's specified tax allocation in computing income, provided that sufficient amounts are otherwise included under subsection 94.1(3) in computing the taxpayer's income.

A taxpayer's specified tax allocation for an entity's taxation year in respect of a participating interest in an entity is determined under subsection 94.1(8). It represents the total of the taxpayer's shares of "grossed-up" taxes paid by the entity in the entity's year in respect of the entity's liability for income or profits taxes for the entity's year and preceding taxation years of the entity. The taxpayer's share is based on the taxpayer's percentage fair market value interest in the entity at the end of each of the entity's taxation years to which the tax liability relates. The gross-up available to a taxpayer is equal to 163% for corporations and 100% for individuals, as a result of the taxpayer's share of income profits being multiplied by the relevant tax factor (2.63 for corporations and 2 for individuals).

Income or profits tax is normally expected to be tax that is paid by an entity to a foreign government. However, it could also include income tax paid to the government of Canada or a province with respect to income earned by the entity from Canadian sources. In each case, only income or profits tax payable for taxation years of entities that end in a taxation year of a taxpayer that begins after 2000 is taken into account.

The example below illustrates the operation of subsections 94.1(3) and (8).

Example

In 1998, Mireille (a resident of Canada) purchased a 30% participating interest in an entity (FIE-1) that is an FIE. The rate of foreign tax applicable to FIE-1's income is 20%. FIE-1's taxation years coincide with calendar years. For the purposes of computing Mireille's income allocation and loss allocation in respect of the interest, the income (loss) and the foreign tax of FIE-1 for taxation years 2001 to 2004 are as follows:

Year	2001	2002	2003	2004	Total
Income (loss)	$ 100,000	(120,000)	$95,000	$130,000	$205,000
*Foreign tax paid	$20,000	Nil	Nil	$21,000	$41,000

Notes:

* Assume foreign tax paid in the same taxation year as liability arose.

 Assume that an equivalent amount is carried forward under the laws of the relevant foreign jurisdiction to reduce FIE-1's tax liabilities after 2002.

Results

Mireille's income allocations, loss allocations and specified tax allocations are shown in the table below, as are the resulting income inclusions and deductions under subsection 94.1(3). The specified tax allocations in the table below are obtained by multiplying the related figures in the above table by 30% (Mireille's percentage interest) and 2 (specified tax factor for Mireille). For example, for 2001 Mireille's specified tax allocation is $12,000 ($20,000 × 30% × 2).

Year	2001	2002	2003	2004
A. Income allocation	$30,000	nil	$28,500	$39,000
B. Specified tax allocation	$12,000	nil	nil	$12,600
C. Loss allocation (used)	nil	$18,000	nil	nil
D. Carry-forward offset used	nil	nil	$18,000	nil
E. Loss allocation/ tax allocation to carryforward	nil	$18,000	nil	nil
Amount included in income under subsection 94.1(3) (A - B - C - D)	$18,000	nil	$10,500	$26,400
Amount deducted in computing income under subsection 94.1(3) (D + C + B – A)	nil	$18,000	nil	nil

(9) Adjusted cost base — In computing the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of a participating interest in an entity at and after the end of a taxation year of the entity,

(a) there shall be added the amount, if any, added under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the interest for the entity's year (or that would have been so added if this Act were read without reference to subsection 56(4.1) and sections 74.1 to 75); and

(b) there shall be deducted the amount, if any, deducted under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the interest for the entity's year (or that would have been so deducted if this Act were read without reference to subsection 56(4.1) and sections 74.1 to 75).

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.1(9) of the Act provides for adjustments to the adjusted cost base (ACB) of a participating interest in an entity held by a taxpayer.

Paragraph 94.1(9)(a) provides for an addition to the ACB of a participating interest held by a taxpayer at the end of a taxation year of the entity, in respect of an amount included in computing the taxpayer's income under subsection 94.1(3) in respect of the interest and the year. Conversely, paragraph 94.1(9)(b) provides for a reduction to the ACB of a participating interest held by a taxpayer at the end of a taxation year of the entity, in respect of amounts deducted in computing the taxpayer's income under subsection 94.1(3) in respect of the interest and the year.

Related Provisions: 53(1)(m.1) — Addition to adjusted cost base; 53(2)(w) — Deduction from adjusted cost base; 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation.

(10) Property deemed owned by an entity — Where at any time a particular entity has a significant interest in a corporation, a partnership or a non-discretionary trust, for the purposes of this section and section 94.2 [note also exclusion of debt owing to arm's length financial institutions announced in Sept. 7/00 news release and Backgrounder item #8 reproduced after 94.3 — ed.],

(a) the carrying value at that time of each participating interest held at that time by the particular entity in the corporation, partnership or trust (and of each debt owing to the particular entity by the corporation, partnership or trust that is investment property of the particular entity) is deemed to be nil;

(b) the property owned at that time by the corporation is deemed to be owned at that time by the particular entity and to have a carrying value at that time equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the carrying value of the property to the corporation at that time,

B is the total of

(i) the fair market value at that time of the shares of the corporation owned at that time by the particular entity, and

(ii) the fair market value at that time of debts (other than debts that are not investment properties) owing at that time to the particular entity by the corporation, and

C is the total of

(i) the fair market value at that time of all the issued shares of the corporation outstanding at that time, and

(ii) the fair market value at that time of debts owing at that time by the corporation (other than debts that are not investment properties);

(c) the property owned at that time by the partnership is deemed to be owned at that time by the particular entity and to have a carrying value at that time equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

D is the carrying value of the property to the partnership at that time,

E is the total of

(i) the fair market value of the interests in the partnership owned at that time by the particular entity, and

(ii) the fair market value of debts (other than debts that are not investment properties) owing at that time to the particular entity by the partnership, and

F is the total of

(i) the fair market value at that time of all interests in the partnership, and

(ii) the fair market value at that time of debts owing by the partnership (other than debts that are not investment property); and

(d) the property owned at that time by the trust is deemed to be owned at that time by the particular entity and to have a carrying value at that time equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

G is the carrying value of the property to the trust at that time,

H is the total of

(i) the fair market value of the interests in the trust owned at that time by the particular entity, and

(ii) the fair market value of debts (other than debts that are not investment properties) owing at that time to the particular entity by the trust, and

I is the total of

(i) the fair market value at that time of all interests in the trust, and

(ii) the fair market value at that time of debts owing by the trust (other than debts that are not investment properties).

Technical Notes: New subsections 94.1(10) and (11) of the Act are relevant in determining whether a non-resident entity is an FIE. A non-resident entity is generally an FIE at any time if the carrying value of all of the entity's "investment property" is more than 50% of the "carrying value" of all its property at the end of the entity's taxation year that includes that time.

Where at any time an entity has a "significant interest" (as described below) in a corporation, partnership or non-discretionary trust, in determining the carrying value at that time of the entity's property, the carrying values of the entity's "participating interests" (as described in the commentary above) in the corporation, trust or partnership are deemed to be nil. Debt that is investment property (and that is owing to the entity by the corporation, partnership or trust) is also deemed to have a carrying value to the entity of nil. Instead, the entity is deemed to own the property of the corporation, trust or partnership. Each such property is deemed to have a carrying value to the entity based on the product of the property's carrying value to the corporation, trust or partnership and a percentage based on:

- the entity's percentage relative ownership (determined with reference to fair market value) of shares or interests in the corporation, partnership or trust, as the case may be, and
- the entity's percentage relative ownership (determined with reference to fair market value) in debt issued by the corporation, partnership or trust (other than debts that are not investment property), as the case may be.

Subsection 94.1(10) is intended to operate on an iterative basis. Thus, if there are tiers of entities each of which has a significant interest in the other, the intended effect of subsection 94.1(10) is to deem higher tier entities to own properties of lower tier entities on an iterative basis. For example, assume a non-resident entity (Foreignco-1) owns 100% of the shares in Foreignco-2 which in turn only owns 100% of shares in Foreignco-3 and that Foreignco-1, Foreignco-2 and Foreignco-3 have identical taxation year ends. The carrying values from properties in Foreignco-3 would, under subsection 94.1(10), become the carrying values of properties in Foreignco-2. Because subsection 94.1(10) operates on an iterative basis, the carrying value of those properties would be considered to be the carrying values of properties held by Foreignco-1.

Related Provisions: 94.1(11) — Significant interest; 94.2(2)(b) — Application of rule to s. 94.2; 94.2(9) — Tracked interests.

(11) Significant interest in an entity — For the purposes of subsection (10) and section 94.2, an entity has a significant interest in [note also extension to related persons announced in Sept. 7/00 news release and Backgrounder item #7 reproduced after 94.3 — ed.]

(a) a corporation at any time if at that time the entity holds shares of the capital stock of the corporation

(i) that would give the entity 25% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at an annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation, and

(ii) having a fair market value of 25% or more of the fair market value of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the corporation;

(b) a partnership at any time if at that time the entity holds an interest in the partnership having a fair market value of 25% or more of the fair market value of all interests in the partnership; and

(c) a non-discretionary trust at any time if at that time the entity holds interests in the trust having a fair market value of 25% or more of the fair market value of all interests in the trust.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.1(11) sets out the circumstances in which an entity is considered to have a "significant interest" in a corporation, partnership or non-discretionary trust for the purposes of subsection 94.1(10). An entity is considered to have a significant interest in a corporation, partnership, or non-discretionary trust where it holds shares or interests in the corporation, partnership or trust that have a fair market value equal to 25% or more of the fair market value of all the shares or interests in the corporation, partnership or trust and, in the case of a corporation the entity has shares entitling the entity to cast at least 25% of votes at an annual shareholders' meeting of the corporation.

Example

1. Jean, who resides in Canada, holds a participating interest in Foreignco, a non-resident corporation that is not a controlled foreign affiliate of Jean. Foreignco's principal activity is the carrying on of investment activities on behalf of its shareholders. Foreignco prepares its financial statements in accordance with accounting principles substantially similar to generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada.
2. The carrying values of Foreignco's assets at the end of its taxation year ending in the taxpayer's year are as follows:

guaranteed investment certificate	$10,000
shares of XYZ Inc. in which Foreignco has a significant interest	$20,000 shares of ABC Inc. in which Foreignco does not have a significant interest	$ 5,000
cash	$ 4,000
Total assets	$39,000

3. XYZ Inc. owns assets at that time that are used in the course of carrying on an active business, with a carrying value of $80,000. It also has investment property with a carrying value of $15,000.
4. The fair market value of the shares of XYZ Inc. held by Foreignco is $40,000 while the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of XYZ Inc. is $100,000 at that time.

Results

1. The guaranteed investment certificate, cash, and the shares of XYZ Inc. and ABC Inc. are all investment property by virtue of the definition "investment property" in subsection 94.1(1).
2. However, since Foreignco owns a significant interest in XYZ Inc., the special look-through rule in new subsection 94.1(10) applies. Under this look-through rule the carrying value of Foreignco's shares in XYZ Inc. is deemed to be nil. Instead, Foreignco is deemed to own the property that XYZ Inc. owns.
3. The carrying value of the XYZ property deemed to be owned by Foreignco is 40% of its carrying value to XYZ, since Foreignco's percentage ownership of shares is 40%.
4. Consequently, the carrying values of the investment property of Foreignco are:

guaranteed investment certificate	$10,000
shares of XYZ Inc.	nil shares of ABC Inc.	$ 5,000
cash	$ 4,000
investment property of XYZ Inc. (40% of $15,000)	$ 6,000
Total	$25,000

5. The total carrying value of the assets of Foreignco is:

Investment property (see above)	$ 25,000
assets of XYZ Inc. (other than investment property) (40% of $80,000)	$ 32,000
Total	$ 57,000

6. As a result, Foreignco is not an FIE because less than 50% of the carrying value of its property is investment property.

Related Provisions: 94.2(2)(b) — Application of rule to s. 94.2.

(12) Entity treated as controlled foreign affiliate — Where

(a) at a particular time in a particular taxation year of a taxpayer, the taxpayer, or a particular controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, holds a participating interest in a non-resident entity,

(b) a taxation year of the entity ends at or before the end of the particular year,

(c) the principal business of the entity in the particular year is an excluded investment business or a business that is not an investment business,

(d) the entity is, at the end of the particular year, a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest (as defined in paragraph 95(2)(m)),

(e) the taxpayer elects in prescribed form in the taxpayer's return of income for the particular year, and

(f) the taxpayer has not elected under this subsection in respect of the entity for any taxation year of the taxpayer that precedes the particular year, subject to subsection (17), the entity is deemed to be a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer throughout the period

(g) that begins at the earliest time in the particular year at which the entity is a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, and

(h) that ends at the earlier of

(i) the earliest subsequent time at which the entity is not a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, and

(ii) the end of the first subsequent taxation year of the taxpayer in which the principal business of the entity is an investment business (other than an excluded investment business).

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.1(12) of the Act permits a taxpayer to make an irrevocable election to treat its foreign affiliate (including an affiliate the shares which are held by the taxpayer's controlled foreign affiliate) as a controlled foreign affiliate for a particular taxation year and subsequent taxation years. This one-time election is available only if:

- a taxation year of the affiliate ends at or before the end of the particular year,
- the taxpayer has a "qualifying interest" (as defined in paragraph 95(2)(m)) in the affiliate, and
- the principal business of the affiliate is an excluded investment business or a business that is not an investment business (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)).

The election must be made in prescribed form in the taxpayer's tax return for the year. However, under subsection 94.1(17), the election may be rendered invalid in the event that the taxpayer cannot provide sufficient information to the Minister of National Revenue for the Minister to be able to determine amounts required to be included in the taxpayer's income under section 91. In addition, the election no longer has any effect if the corporation ceases to be a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or once the entity's principal business is an investment business (other than an excluded investment business).

In the period during which such an election is effective, a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer is deemed to be a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer. As a result, a share issued by the affiliate to the taxpayer would be an "exempt interest" under the definition in subsection 94.1(1). Sections 94.1 and 94.2 generally would not apply to the taxpayer's participating interest in the affiliate. However, the foreign accrual property income (FAPI) rules would apply and the taxpayer would be required to include in income under section 91 a percentage of any FAPI derived by the affiliate in the year. Notwithstanding an election under subsection 94.1(12), section 94.2 may still apply in the event that a taxpayer's interest in a controlled foreign affiliate is a tracked interest to which subsection 94.2(9) applies.

Related Provisions: 17(15) — Subsec. 94.1(12) ignored for CFA definition under s. 17; 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 94.1(16), (17) — Where demand for information not satisfied; 95(1)"controlled foreign affiliate" — CFA under 94.1(12) is a CFA for ss. 90–95; 96(3) — Election by members of partnership.

(13) Exception for qualifying dispositions and issues — For the purpose of determining whether an entity is a foreign investment entity at the end of a taxation year of the entity in which a qualifying disposition of that or another entity, or a qualifying issue of that or another entity, occurred, each investment property received by either entity as consideration for the qualifying disposition or the qualifying issue, and investment property substituted therefor, is deemed to have a carrying value of nil.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.1(13) of the Act provides a special rule under which investment property is deemed to have a carrying value of nil.

Subsection 94.1(13) applies where there is a "qualifying disposition" (as defined in subsection 94.1(14)) or a "qualifying issue" (as defined in subsection 94.1(15)).

Related Provisions: 94.1(14) — Qualifying disposition; 94.1(15) — Qualifying issue.

(14) Qualifying disposition — For the purpose of subsection (13), a qualifying disposition of an entity is a transaction or part of a series of transactions or events as a consequence of which the entity disposes, to a person with whom the entity deals at arm's length, of all or substantially all of the assets used or held for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business (other than an investment business) carried on by it.

Technical Notes: A "qualifying disposition" of an entity occurs where the entity disposes of all or substantially all of its assets used or held in a business (other than an investment business, as defined in the commentary above) in an arm's length transaction, either in a single transaction or as part of a series of transactions or events.

(15) Qualifying issue — For the purpose of subsection (13), a qualifying issue of an entity is an issue by the entity of a debt of, or a participating interest in, the entity to a person or partnership, otherwise than as part of a series of transactions or events that includes the disposition of a debt of, or a participating interest in, the entity (or another entity with which the entity does not deal at arm's length) by

(a) the person or partnership (or another person or partnership with which the person or partnership does not deal at arm's length);

(b) a trust in which the person or partnership (or another person or partnership with which the person or partnership does not deal at arm's length) is beneficially interested; or

(c) a partnership in which the person or partnership (or another person or partnership with which the person or partnership does not deal at arm's length) has a direct or indirect interest.

Technical Notes: A "qualifying issue" of an entity is essentially an issue to a person or partnership of a debt or participating interest, but with the qualification that a qualifying issue does not arise if the issue is part of a series of transactions or events that also includes the disposition of a debt or participating interest in the entity (or another non-arm's length entity) by the same person or partnership (or certain other non-arm's length parties). This qualification is meant to prevent the circular flow of funds from and to an entity giving rise to a "qualifying issue".

Where an entity has a "qualifying disposition" or "qualifying issue", the consideration received by the entity (cash, shares, and debt) will in most cases be "investment property", as defined in subsection 94.1(1). As a result, the entity (or another entity that has a significant interest in the entity) might otherwise become an FIE. To allow a potential grace period before an entity is classified as an FIE, investment property received as consideration received on the sale of the business or on a qualifying issue (and each investment property substituted for the investment property so received) is deemed, at the end of the taxation year in which the qualifying disposition or qualifying issue took place, to have a carrying value of nil.

(16) Demand for information — Subsection (17) applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year of the taxpayer where

(a) the Minister demands, in writing, from the taxpayer additional information for the purpose of enabling the Minister to make a determination of an amount that, but for subsection (17), would be required to be added or deducted (otherwise than under subsection 104(13)) in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year

(i) because of the application of section 91 and an election under subsection (12), or

(ii) because of the application of subsection (3) to a participating interest in an entity; and

(b) sufficient information to make the determination is not delivered to the Minister within 60 days (or within such longer period as is acceptable to the Minister) after the Minister sends the demand.

Technical Notes: New subsections 94.1(16) and (17) of the Act provide for the application of the mark-to-market rules in section 94.2 to a participating interest in an FIE, if insufficient information is available to determine amounts required to be added or deducted in a taxpayer's income in respect of the interest under subsection 94.1(3). The information required for this purpose would include a calculation of taxable capital gains from dispositions, calculated in Canadian dollars and with reference to the assumptions for the calculation of income set out in subsection 94.1(5).

If this information is not made available to the Minister on a timely basis on demand in respect of a participating interest in an entity, subsection 94.1(17) effectively provides that the rules in section 94.2, rather than the rules in section 94.1, apply in respect of the entity.

Similar rules apply in the event that insufficient information is provided to enable the appropriate calculation of a taxpayer's income arising from an election under subsection 94.1(12). The latter election would otherwise permit an affiliate to be treated as a controlled foreign affiliate. If insufficient information is provided in this context, the mark-to-market rules in section 94.2 will generally apply to the taxpayer if the affiliate is an FIE.

(17) Effect of insufficient information — Where this subsection applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year because of subsection (16), for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the year and following taxation years,

(a) where paragraph (16)(a) applies because of subparagraph (16)(a)(i),

(i) the election referred to in that subparagraph is deemed not to have been made, and

(ii) subsection (3) shall not apply in respect of the foreign affiliate that was the subject of the election; and

(b) where paragraph (16)(a) applies because of subparagraph (16)(a)(ii), subsection (3) shall not apply in respect of the entity referred to in that subparagraph.

Technical Notes: See under 94.1(16).

94.2 Foreign Investment Entities — Mark-to-market — (1) Definitions — In this section,

(a) the definitions in subsection 94.1(1) apply;

Technical Notes: New section 94.2 of the Act sets out new rules for the taxation of interests in FIEs.

Except as otherwise indicated, section 94.2 applies to taxation years of investors that begin after 2000.

New subsection 94.2(1) of the Act provides that the definitions in subsection 94.1(1) apply for the purposes of section 94.2.

(b) subject to subsections (6) and (13) to (17), "deferral amount" of a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in an entity means the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

where

A is

(i) if on June 22, 2000 the interest was capital property held by the taxpayer, 2/3, and

(ii) in any other case, 1 [to be changed to 2/3; see Sept. 7/00 news release and Backgrounder item #4 reproduced after 94.3 — ed.],

B is

(i) the fair market value of the interest at the first time in a particular taxation year of the taxpayer at which the taxpayer was resident in Canada where

(A) the taxpayer held the interest at the end of the preceding taxation year,

(B) at the end of that preceding year, the taxpayer was resident in Canada or the interest was taxable Canadian property,

(C) subsection (4) did not apply to the taxpayer for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the interest for any preceding taxation year, and

(D) subsection (4) applies to the taxpayer for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the interest for the particular year, and

(ii) nil in any other case, and

C is

(i) if subparagraph (i) of the description of B applies in respect of the interest, the cost amount of the property immediately before the first time in the particular year at which the taxpayer was resident in Canada, and

(ii) nil in any other case; and

Technical Notes: Subsection 94.2(1) also sets out the definitions "deferral amount" and "gross-up factor".

The deferral amount of a taxpayer generally represents the gain or loss (or, in the event that the interest was capital property held by the taxpayer on June 22, 2000, two-thirds of the gain or loss) in respect of the interest accrued to the time when the interest first became subject to the operation of the rules in section 94.2. The expression "deferral amount" in respect of a participating interest in an entity applies principally for the purpose of determining the value of D in the formula set out in subsection 94.2(4). Subsection 94.2(4) generally provides for the recognition of a deferral amount in respect of a participating interest on the disposition of the interest. Because of subsection 94.2(2), identical participating interests are considered to be disposed of in the order in which they were acquired.

For participating interests in FIEs acquired after 2000, each deferral amount will be nil in the typical cases where the rules in section 94.2 apply to a taxpayer's interest in an FIE for the year in which the interests were acquired.

The deferral amount is calculated, in conjunction with subsections 94.2(5) and subsection 128.1(4), so that gains and losses accruing while a taxpayer is not resident in Canada are ignored for the purposes of section 94.2, except in the unusual case where an interest in an FIE is taxable Canadian property.

Additional rules affecting the calculation of the deferral amount are contained in subsections 94.2(6) and (13) to (17), as described in the commentary below.

Related Provisions [para. 94.2(1)(b)]: 94.2(16)(c) — Deferral amount on fresh start re tax-exempt entity; 94.2(17) — Deferral amount on superficial disposition.

(c) "gross-up factor" for a deferral amount is

(i) if the amount determined for A in respect of the deferral amount is 2/3, 3/2, and

(ii) in any other case, 1.

Technical Notes: The "gross-up factor" for a deferral amount is 1, except where the 2/3 factor is relevant in computing the deferral amount. In the latter case, the "gross-up factor" is the reciprocal of the 2/3 factor (i.e., 3/2). For detail on the relevance of this definition, see the commentary on subsection 94.2(11).

(2) Rules of application — For the purposes of this section

(a) identical participating interests held by a taxpayer are deemed to be disposed of in the order in which they were acquired by the taxpayer, determined without reference to any other provision of this Act; and

(b) subsections 94.1(10) and (11) apply.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(2) of the Act provides rules of application for the purpose of section 94.2.

Paragraph 94.2(2)(a) provides that identical properties held by a taxpayer are deemed to be disposed of in the order in which they were acquired by the taxpayer. For this purpose, paragraph 94.2(2)(a) makes it clear that the various acquisitions that are deemed to occur under the Act (e.g., section 47) are not to be taken into account. This measure is relevant primarily for the purpose of determining the amount added or deducted from a taxpayer's income under subsection 94.2(4), especially with reference to the "deferral amount" referred to in the description of D in paragraph 94.2(4)(a).

Paragraph 94.2(2)(b) provides that the rules in subsections 94.1(10) and (11) (look-through rule for significant interests) also apply for the purposes of section 94.2. This measure is significant for the purposes of applying subsection 94.2(9) (tracked interests).

Related Provisions: 94.3(1) — Rule in 94.2(2)(a) applies to s. 94.3; 95(2)(g.2)(xi), (xii) — Application to FAPI rules; 104(4.1) — Mark-to-market property can be capital property for trust's 21-year deemed disposition.

(3) Where mark-to-market method applies — Subject to paragraph (5)(b), this subsection applies to a taxpayer throughout a taxation year in respect of a participating interest held in the year by the taxpayer in a non-resident entity where

(a) subsection (9) or (10) applies to the taxpayer for the year in respect of the interest; or

(b) both

(i) subsection 94.1(2) applies to the taxpayer for the year in respect of the interest, and

(ii) because of subsection 94.1(4), subsection 94.1(3) does not apply to the taxpayer for the year in respect of the interest.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94.2(3) of the Act sets out those circumstances where, subject to paragraph 94.2(5)(b), subsection 94.2(3) applies to a taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity. For the mark-to-market regime in subsection 94.2(4) to apply for a taxation year, subsection 94.2(3) must apply for the year.

For subsection 94.2(3) to apply to a taxpayer throughout a taxation year in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity, either:

- Subsection 94.1(2) applies to the taxpayer for the year in respect of the interest, but not result in the application of the accrual regime under subsection 94.1(3) because of the application of subsection 94.1(4). (For details, see the commentary on subsections 94.1(2) and (4).); or
- Subsections 94.2(9) (tracked interests) or 94.2(10) (foreign insurance policies) apply to the taxpayer for the year in respect of the interest.

Related Provisions: 39(1)(a)(ii.3) — Property excluded from capital gain calculation; 70(3.1) — Property excluded from "rights or things" calculation on death; 70(5.2)(e) — Deemed disposition on death; 85(1.1)(g)(ii.1) — Property excluded from s. 85 rollover eligibility; 94.2(4) — Application of mark-to-market rule; 94.2(9) — Tracked interests; 94.2(10) — Treatment of foreign insurance policies; 104(4.1) — Mark-to-market property can be capital property for trust's 21-year deemed disposition; 248(1)"inventory" — Property under 94.2(3) excluded from definition of inventory.

(4) Mark-to-market — Where subsection (3) applies to a taxpayer throughout a taxation year in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of the interest

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's proceeds from a disposition of the interest in the year (other than a disposition deemed to arise because of subsection 128.1(4) or 149(10)),

B is

(i) if the taxpayer held the interest at the end of the year, the fair market value of the interest at that time (determined before taking into account any amount payable at the end of the year from the entity in respect of the interest), and

(ii) in any other case, nil,

C is the total of all amounts (other than an amount to which the description of A applies) received by the taxpayer in the year from the entity in respect of the interest,

D is

(i) the taxpayer's deferral amount in respect of the interest, if

(A) the deferral amount is a positive amount,

(B) the interest was not disposed of by the taxpayer in the year, and

(C) the taxpayer elects in respect of the interest in prescribed form filed with the Minister not later than the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year,

(ii) the taxpayer's deferral amount in respect of the interest if

(A) the taxpayer disposed of the interest in the year, and

(B) no election was made under subparagraph (i) in respect of the interest by the taxpayer for a preceding taxation year, and

(iii) in any other case, nil,

E is the total of all amounts each of which is the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the interest in the year (otherwise than because of an acquisition deemed to arise because of subsection 128.1(4) or 149(10)),

F is

(i) if the taxpayer held the interest at the beginning of the year, the fair market value of the interest at that time (determined before taking into account any amount payable at that time from the entity in respect of the interest), and

(ii) in any other case, nil, and

G is

(i) if the interest was deemed by paragraph (10)(a) to be a participating interest in an entity for the preceding taxation year of the taxpayer, the amount that would be deductible under paragraph (b) in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year in respect of the interest if this subsection were read without reference to subparagraph (b)(i), and

(ii) in any other case, nil; and

(b) there may be deducted

(i) if the interest was deemed by paragraph (10)(a) to be a participating interest in an entity for the year, nil, and

(ii) in any other case, the absolute value of the negative amount, if any, determined by the formula in paragraph (a).

Technical Notes: Where subsection 94.2(3) applies to a participating interest in an FIE, paragraph 94.2(4)(a) requires a taxpayer to include in computing income, in respect of the interest, any positive amount resulting from the operation of the formula set out in paragraph 94.2(4)(a). Under paragraph 94.2(4)(b), the absolute value of any negative amount resulting from the operation of the same formula may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income. (Note, however, that losses in respect of foreign insurance polices are denied because of subparagraph 94.2(4)(b)(i). Instead, as described below, the denied losses are carried forward to offset later income inclusions.)

The amount determined under the formula for a taxpayer's taxation year in respect of a participating interest in an FIE is computed as follows:

- [A] ADD the proceeds of disposition in the year from any disposition by the taxpayer in the year of the interest (other than a disposition arising from the application of subsection 128.1(4) or 149(10), given that the value of B would take into account the fair market value of the interest at the time of such deemed dispositions);
- [B] where the taxpayer held the interest at the end of the year, ADD the fair market value of the interest at that time (determined before taking into account the FIE's liability in respect of any amount payable from the FIE in respect of the interest);
- [C] ADD the total payments received by the taxpayer in the year from the FIE, other than payments included in the value of A;
- [D] where the taxpayer so elects for a year during which the taxpayer did not dispose of the interest, ADD any positive deferral amount in respect of the interest;
- [D] where the taxpayer disposed of the interest in the year and the election referred to above has not been previously made, ADD the deferral amount in respect of the interest; [The value of D will reduce the amount determined under the formula in the event that the deferral amount is a negative amount.]
- [E] SUBTRACT the cost of the interest on any acquisition in the year of the interest (disregarding acquisitions arising because of the application of subsection 128.1(4) or 149(10), given that these acquisitions are taken into account in the value of F);
- [F] where the taxpayer held the interest at the beginning of the year, SUBTRACT the fair market value of the interest; and
- [G] in the case of a foreign insurance policy to which subsection 94.2(3) applies because of the operation of new subsection 94.2(10), SUBTRACT any loss denied for the preceding year because of the operation of subparagraph 94.2(4)(b)(i).

Ignoring the descriptions of D and G, the formula in paragraph 94.2(4)(a) in effect determines the net increase or decrease in the fair market value of a taxpayer's participating interest in an FIE for a taxation year.

The value of D represents a taxpayer's accrued gain or loss when a participating interest first becomes subject to section 94.2. The amount of this accrued gain or loss (or two-thirds of it, in the event so provided in the definition "deferral amount" in paragraph 94.2(1)(b)) is included in computing income under the description of D, but only for the taxation year in which the interest is disposed of unless the taxpayer elects for earlier recognition of a positive deferral amount. (An earlier recognition of a positive deferral amount may be beneficial for a taxpayer, particularly where section 94.3 applies.) Where the taxpayer is a trust, a disposition may occur as a consequence of the application of the 21-year deemed disposition rule. See, in this regard, new subsection 104(4.1).

Example

1. Leonard acquires a 1% interest in ABC Inc. in 1999 for $500. On June 22, 2000, it is capital property to Leonard. ABC Inc. is not an FIE in respect of the taxpayer at any time before 2003.
2. ABC Inc. becomes an FIE during 2003 and Leonard does not elect under subsection 94.1(4) to have the rules in section 94.1 apply. Leonard's interest in ABC Inc. does not qualify as an "exempt interest".
3. The fair market values of Leonard's participating interest at the beginning and at the end of year 2003 are $800 and $1,000 respectively.
4. Leonard disposes of his shares just before the end of 2004 for $1,200. ABC Inc. does not make any distributions to Leonard during his period of ownership.

Results

1. No amount is included in Leonard's income for 2001 and 2002 under either section 94.1 or 94.2. For 2003, Leonard is required to include $200 in income under the formula in paragraph 94.2(4)(a).
2. The $200 inclusion is determined as follows:
   - "A" is nil, since no participating interest in ABC Inc. is disposed of in 2003,
   - "B" is $1,000, the fair market value of the participating interest at the end of 2003,
   - "C" is nil since no payments are received in 2003,
   - "D" is nil since no participating interest is disposed of in 2003 and no election was otherwise made,
   - "E" is nil since no participating interest in ABC Inc. is acquired in 2003, and
   - "F" is $800, the fair market value of the participating interest at the beginning of 2003.
3. Although Leonard's participating interest has appreciated by $500 since the time of its acquisition, only $200 is required to be included in income under section 94.2 for 2003.
4. For 2004, the amount included in income under subsection 94.2(4) is $400, computed as follows:
   - "A" is $1,200, the proceeds of disposition of the participating interest,
   - "B" is nil since Leonard does not own any participating interest in ABC Inc. at the end of 2004,
   - "C" is nil since no payments or distributions were received in 2004,
   - "D" is $200, the deferral amount in respect of the interest — the "deferral amount" is two-thirds [The two-third factor applies because Leonard's interest in ABC Inc. is capital property held by Leonard on June 22, 2000.] of the amount by which $800 (the fair market value of the interest at the beginning of 2003 which is the first year in respect of which section 94.2 applies to the interest) exceeds $500 (the cost amount of the interest),

- "E" is nil since no participating interest in ABC Inc. is acquired in 2004, and
- "F" is $1,000, the fair market value of the participating interest at the beginning of 2004.

Related Provisions: 70(5.2)(e)(ii) — Taxpayer deemed not to hold property on death; 94.2(5) — Non-resident periods excluded; 94.2(10) — Treatment of foreign insurance policies; 94.2(11) — Change of status of entity; 94.2(12) — Cost of participating interest; 94.2(15) — Fresh start after emigration; 94.3(2)(a)(ii) — Prevention of double taxation; 96(3) — Election by members of partnership; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

(5) Non-resident periods excluded — Where a taxpayer is non-resident at any time in a taxation year

(a) for the purpose of subsection (4) (other than the description of D in paragraph (4)(a)), the year is deemed to be the period, if any, that begins at the first time in the year at which the taxpayer is resident in Canada and ends at the last time in the year at which the taxpayer is resident in Canada;

(b) except for the purposes of subsection (4) and paragraph (c), subsection (3) does not apply to the taxpayer at that time; and

(c) if the taxpayer is an individual who was non-resident throughout a particular period that is within the period described in paragraph (a), at any time in the particular period, the individual holds a participating interest in a non-resident entity and subsection (3) applies to the individual throughout the particular period in respect of the interest,

(i) for the purposes of section 114, the income or loss of the individual in respect of the interest for the particular period shall be determined without reference to this section, and

(ii) in computing the amount determined under paragraph 114(a) in respect of the individual for the year

(A) there shall be deducted any amount that would be included under paragraph (4)(a) in computing the individual's income in respect of the interest for the particular period if

(I) the value of D in paragraph (4)(a) were nil, and

(II) the particular period were a taxation year, and

(B) there shall be added any amount that would be deductible under paragraph (4)(b) in computing the individual's income in respect of the interest for the particular period if

(I) the value of D in paragraph (4)(a) were nil, and

(II) the particular period were a taxation year.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(5) of the Act provides special rules dealing with the application of section 94.2 for a taxation year to persons who are not resident in Canada throughout the year.

Under paragraph 94.2(5)(a), the amounts determined under section 94.2 are generally determined as if the taxation year of such a taxpayer excludes the period in the year during which the taxpayer is not resident in Canada. This rule, in conjunction with section 128.1, generally ensures that the increases and decreases in fair market values that are relevant in determining income inclusions and deductions under section 94.2 are the increases and decreases occurring while the taxpayer is resident in Canada. However, this rule does not affect the calculation of the taxpayer's deferral amount: paragraph 94.2(1)(b) (in conjunction with subsection 128.1(1)) already ensures that gains or losses accruing prior to becoming resident in Canada are not taken into account for the purposes of computing a taxpayer's deferral amount in respect of a participating interest in an FIE, except in the unusual case where the FIE interest is taxable Canadian property.

Paragraph 94.2(5)(a) also ensures that subsection 94.2(4) does not apply to a taxpayer for a taxation year throughout which the taxpayer is not resident in Canada.

Under paragraph 94.2(5)(b), subsection 94.2(3) generally does not apply to a taxpayer at a particular time if the taxpayer is not resident in Canada at the particular time. This has relevance for the purposes of a number of new provisions, including subparagraph 39(1)(a)(ii.3). This subparagraph has the effect of excluding, from a taxpayer's capital property, a property in respect of which subsection 94.2(3) applies and is intended to ensure that there is no double taxation with respect to the same economic gain. Paragraph 94.2(5)(b) thus ensures that a non-resident taxpayer cannot claim that a taxable Canadian property consisting of an FIE interest is not capital property on the basis of subparagraph 39(1)(a)(ii.3). (Note: non-resident taxpayers are generally subject to tax on taxable capital gains from their dispositions of taxable Canadian properties.)

Paragraph 94.2(5)(c) applies in the unusual case where an individual changes his or her Canadian residence status more than once in the same calendar year. For example, an individual might leave Canada near the beginning of a calendar year but return later in the same year. In the event that such an individual is considered not to reside in Canada during a period in the calendar year, the individual's period of non-residence would be included within the individual's taxation year and the rule in paragraph 94.2(5)(a) would have no effect. In order to not tax gains accrued while an individual was non-resident and to not provide relief for losses accrued during the same period, paragraph 94.2(5)(c) provides:

- for the purposes of section 114, the individual's income or loss from the individual's period of non-residence is determined without reference to section 94.2, and
- in computing the individual's taxable income under section 114,
  - there is deducted the fair market value appreciation of an interest in an FIE to which subsection 94.2(4) applies during the non-resident period (this fair market value appreciation would be reflected in the amount determined under subsection 94.2(4) in computing the taxpayer's income), and
  - there is added the fair market value decline of an interest in an FIE to which subsection 94.2(4) applies during the non-resident period (this fair market value decline would be reflected in the amount determined under subsection 94.2(4) in computing the taxpayer's income).

The example below illustrates the operation of paragraph 94.2(5)(c).

Example

Bernard emigrates from Canada on February 1, 2001 in order to start permanent employment elsewhere. After the position does not work out, he returns to Canada on December 1, 2001. Bernard owns an interest in an FIE to which section 94.2 applies. The fair market value of the interest in 2001 is $100 (January 1, 2001), $105 (February 1, 2001), $108 (December 1, 2001) and $107 (December 31, 2001). It is assumed that Bernard establishes that he did not reside in Canada from February 1, 2001 to December 1, 2001.

Results

1. Under section 94.2(4), the amount included in computing Bernard's income for 2001 is equal to $7 (B = 107, F = 100).
2. Paragraph 94.2(5)(c) permits a deduction for the purposes of paragraph 114(a) equal to $3 (i.e., $108 – $105) equal to the appreciation in the fair market value of the interest while Bernard was not resident in Canada. As a consequence, Bernard's taxable income in respect of the FIE interest for 2001 is equal to $4 (i.e., $7 minus $3).

(6) Foreign partnership — member becoming resident — Where, at a particular time in a fiscal period of a partnership, a person resident in Canada becomes a member of the partnership, or a person who is a member of the partnership becomes resident in Canada and immediately before the particular time no member of the partnership is resident in Canada,

(a) all amounts determined under this section shall be determined as if that period began at the first time in that period at which a member of the partnership was resident in Canada;

(b) for the purpose of the definition "deferral amount" in paragraph (1)(b), as it applies in respect of dispositions that occur after the particular time and before the first subsequent time to which this subsection applies in respect of the partnership, subsection (4) is deemed not to have applied to the partnership for any preceding fiscal period; and

(c) where, but for this paragraph, a negative deferral amount would be determined in respect of a participating interest held by the partnership immediately before the particular time, the deferral amount in respect of the interest is deemed to be nil.

Technical Notes: New subsections 94.2(6) to (8) of the Act provide special rules for partnerships having non-resident members. These subsections are analogous to rules in existing subsections 96(8) and (9) and are designed, in general terms, to prevent partnership losses that accrue while no partnership member is resident in Canada from being used in Canada. A further rule for partnership members is set out in new subsection 96(1.9).

More specifically, subsection 94.2(6) applies where a partnership begins to have members who reside in Canada. Under subsection 94.2(7), a corresponding rule applies in a similar fashion where a partnership ceases to have members who reside in Canada. In either case, for the purposes of determining amounts under section 94.2 portions of the fiscal period of the partnership in which no member is resident in Canada will generally be disregarded.

Where subsection 94.2(6) applies to a partnership at any time, the deferral amount for an FIE interest held by the partnership immediately before that time is computed with reference to the fair market value and the cost amount of the interest. However, if a negative deferral amount is otherwise determined with respect to the interest, the deferral amount is deemed to be nil.

Related Provisions: 94.2(8) — Application — anti-avoidance and partnership look-through rules.

(7) Foreign partnership — members ceasing to be resident — Where, at a particular time in a fiscal period of a partnership, a person resident in Canada ceases to be a member of the partnership, or a person who is a member of the partnership ceases to be resident in Canada and immediately after the particular time no member of the partnership is resident in Canada, all amounts determined under this section shall be determined as if that period ended at the last time in that period at which a member of the partnership was resident in Canada.

Technical Notes: As a consequence of subsections 94.2(6) and (7), amounts added or deductible under subsection 94.2(4) for a partnership in respect of an FIE interest will generally reflect increases or decreases in fair market value while the partnership has members resident in Canada. However, once the interest is disposed of, an amount reflecting gains accruing before any member became resident in Canada will be recognized because of the application of subsection 94.2(4).

Related Provisions: 94.2(8) — Application — anti-avoidance and partnership look-through rules.

(8) Application of subsecs. (6) and (7) — For the purposes of applying subsections (6) and (7) and this subsection,

(a) where it can reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons that a member of a partnership is resident in Canada is to avoid the application of subsection (6) or (7), the member is deemed not to be resident in Canada; and

(b) where a particular partnership is a member of another partnership at any time,

(i) each person or partnership that is at that time a member of the particular partnership is deemed to be a member of the other partnership at that time,

(ii) each person or partnership that becomes at that time a member of the particular partnership is deemed to become a member of the other partnership at that time, and

(iii) each person or partnership that ceases at that time to be a member of the particular partnership is deemed to cease to be a member of the other partnership at that time.

Technical Notes: Subsection 94.2(8) contains an anti-avoidance rule, which is aimed at preventing the insertion of nominal Canadian resident partners for tax planning purposes. This rule is parallel to the rule in existing subsection 96(9).

Subsection 94.2(8) also contains a look-through rule. It allows for the look-through of one or more tiers of partnerships for the purposes of determining whether a person is a member of a partnership.

Related Provisions: 96(9) — Parallel rule for foreign partnerships.

(9) Tracked interests — Subject to paragraph (5)(b), subsection (3) applies to a taxpayer throughout a particular taxation year of the taxpayer in respect of a participating interest in a non-resident entity where

(a) the taxpayer holds the interest at any time in the particular year;

(b) a taxation year of the entity ends at or before the end of the particular year;

(c) the taxpayer is not an exempt taxpayer for the particular year;

(d) the entitlement to receive payments from the entity in respect of the interest (or its fair market value) is determined primarily by reference to production, revenue, profit or cash flow from, the fair market value or the use of, or any similar criterion in respect of, a property or group of properties (each of which is referred to in paragraphs (e) and (f) as a "tracked property");

(e) at the end of the latest of the entity's taxation years described in paragraph (b), the tracked properties

(i) are not all of the properties that would be owned by the entity if this Act were read without reference to subsection 94.1(10), or

(ii) include properties that would not be owned by the entity if this Act were read without reference to subsection 94.1(10); and

(f) either

(i) at the end of the latest of the entity's taxation years described in paragraph (b), the total of all amounts each of which is

(A) the carrying value of an investment property that is a tracked property owned at the end of that year by the entity, or

(B) an amount that would, if this Act were read without reference to paragraph 94.1(10)(a), be the carrying value of a tracked property that is

(I) owned at the end of the year by the entity,

(II) deemed by paragraph 94.1(10)(a) to have a carrying value of nil, and

(III) either a participating interest in a foreign investment entity or indebtedness owing by a foreign investment entity, exceeds one-half of the total of

(C) all amounts each of which is the entity's carrying value of a tracked property owned by it at the end of that year, and

(D) the carrying value (determined without reference to paragraph 94.1(10)(a)) of a tracked property to which subclauses (B)(I) to (III) apply, or

(ii) at the end of the latest of the entity's taxation years described in paragraph (b)

(A) the entity, or another non-resident entity, owns an investment property (other than a tracked property owned by the entity), and

(B) it is reasonable to conclude that the production, revenue, profit or cash flow from the investment property, the increase in the fair market value of the investment property, or any other return on the investment property based on a similar criterion, is intended to enable the entity to satisfy all or part of an entitlement referred to in paragraph (d).

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(9) of the Act is an anti-avoidance rule intended to prevent the circumvention of sections 94.1 and 94.2 through the creation of "tracked interests" in entities that are not FIEs or through the creation of an interest in an FIE that would otherwise be an "exempt interest". Where subsection 94.2(9) applies with regard to a "tracked interest" for a taxation year, the mark-to-market regime in section 94.2(4) applies to a taxpayer for that year.

A participating interest held by a taxpayer in a particular non-resident entity in a taxation year is a "tracked interest" in the particular entity for a particular taxation year of the taxpayer where:

- a taxation year of the particular entity ended at or before the end of the particular year (the latest of which taxation years is referred to below as the "specified year"); [Paragraph 94.2(9)(b).]
- the taxpayer is not an exempt taxpayer for the particular year (see commentary on definition "exempt taxpayer" in subsection 94.1(1)); [Paragraph 94.2(9)(c).]
- the entitlement to receive payments from the particular entity in respect of the participating interest (or its fair market value) is determined primarily by reference to production, revenue, profit or cash flow from, the fair market value or the use of, or any other similar criterion in respect of, a property or group of properties (referred to below as the "tracked properties"); [Paragraph 94.2(9)(d).]
- in the event that all of the tracked properties are properties owned by the particular entity, they do not comprise the totality of the entity's properties. [Paragraph 94.2(9)(e).] (Note: the deemed ownership rule in subsection 94.1(10) is ignored for the purpose of determining whether this condition is satisfied.);
- either
  - the entity (or any other non-resident entity) owns an investment property (other than a tracked property owned by the entity) and it is reasonable to conclude that the production, revenue, profit or cash flow from that investment property, the increase in the fair market value of that investment property or any other return based on a similar criterion is intended to enable the entity to satisfy all or part of an entitlement in respect of a tracked interest, [Paragraph 94.2(9)(f)(ii).]] or
  - in general terms, the total carrying value of investment property owned by the entity that is included in the tracked properties is more than one-half of the total carrying value of all property owned by the entity that is included in the tracked properties. [Paragraph 94.2(9)(f)(i).]

More specifically, for the purpose of determining the above totals, the carrying value of investment property owned by an entity included in the tracked properties as of the end of the specified year is determined as follows:

- ADD the carrying value of investment property included in the tracked properties and owned by the particular entity (determined with reference to the definition "investment property" and the deemed ownership rule in subsection 94.1(10)); and
- ADD the carrying value (determined without reference to subsection 94.1(10)) of specified investment property owned by the particular entity and included in the tracked properties. The investment property so specified is the property that would otherwise have a deemed cost of nil under paragraph 94.1(10)(a) and that is either a participating interest in an FIE or indebtedness owing by an FIE. (The specified investment property represents debt or equity interests in entities in which the particular entity has a "significant interest", as defined by subsection 94.1(11).)

For the same purpose, the total carrying value of the total property included in the tracked properties is determined as of the end of the specified taxation year of the particular entity in the following manner:

- ADD the carrying value of each property owned by the particular entity that is included in the tracked properties. (This determination is made with reference to the look-through rule in subsection 94.1(10).); and
- ADD the carrying value (determined without reference to subsection 94.1(10)) of specified investment property referred to above.

It should be noted that tracked properties can include any property, whether or not owned by a taxpayer or a related group of which the taxpayer is a part. For example, if the fair market value of shares issued by a non-resident entity is tracked to the world-wide price of gold bullion, the tracked properties in question would be the world-wide supply of gold bullion. Whether subsection 94.2(9) applies or not in this case would typically depend on whether subparagraph 94.2(9)(f)(ii) applies to the non-resident entity.

It should also be noted that there is no exemption under subsection 94.2(9) with regard to an "exempt interest" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) in a non-resident entity. Thus, the mark-to-market rules can apply to a taxpayer in respect of shares of the capital stock of a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer.

Letter from Department of Finance, July 6, 2000:

Dear [xxx]

I am responding to your letters of June 26 and 29, 2000 regarding proposed section 94.2 of the Income Tax Act (the Act) and your request for an amendment to the section to limit the scope of those mark-to-market rules.

Proposed subsection 94.2(9) of the Act describes a "tracking share" which is subject to the mark-to-market rules in proposed section 94.2 of the Act. The result of the application of the section to the shareholder in respect of a tracking share is that the shareholder will be required to include in income for a taxation year, the growth in the market value of the share during the year.

Proposed subsection 94.2(9) of the Act is an anti-avoidance rule. It is intended to apply to tracking shares in circumstances where the value of and return on the tracking shares tracks the value of and return on investment property (as defined for that section) or interests in foreign investment entities (as defined for that section). It is not intended to apply to shares owned by a Canadian corporation where, directly or indirectly, the value of and return on the shares track the value of and return on shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the Canadian corporation, and where such shares would be a qualifying interest (as defined in paragraph 95(2)(m) of the Act) in the foreign affiliate of the corporation if owned by the corporation and the foreign affiliate is a qualifying corporation (as defined for that section).

In your letter, you describe a corporate structure in which a corporation resident in Canada holds tracking shares that track the value of and return on shares of a foreign affiliate (that is a qualifying corporation) of the corporation which represent a qualifying interest in the foreign affiliate. You have concluded that the mark-to-market rules in proposed section 94.2 of the Act apply inappropriately to the corporation in respect of the tracking shares. The result is that the growth in the market value of the tracking shares for a year must be included in the corporation's income for that year. Consequently, you are asking that the proposed section be amended to correct this anomaly.

We agree with your conclusion in the circumstances described in your letters. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the legislation in proposed section 94.2 of the Act be modified. The change would ensure that section 94.2 would not apply to require a corporation resident in Canada to include in computing income for a year the increase or decrease in the market value of tracking shares for the year where the following conditions are met. First, all or substantially all of the value and return on those tracking shares must track, directly or indirectly, the value and return on shares of a foreign affiliate of the corporation. Second, if those shares of that foreign affiliate of the corporation were owned by the corporation those shares would be a qualifying interest in the foreign affiliate (as defined in paragraph 95(2)(m) of the Act) of the corporation. Third, that foreign affiliate (the value of and return on the shares of which are tracked) must be a qualifying corporation (as defined for the purposes of section 94.2 of the Act). Finally, no other tracking shares may track those shares of the foreign affiliate.

I trust that this letter satisfies your concerns and meets requirements.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber

General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(10) Treatment of foreign insurance policies — Where, in a particular taxation year of a taxpayer (other than an exempt taxpayer for the particular year), the taxpayer holds a particular interest in an insurance policy that was neither issued in the course of carrying on an insurance business in Canada, the income from which is subject to tax under this Part, nor entered into solely in respect of risks that relate to activities occurring outside Canada or losses in respect of tangible property ordinarily situated outside Canada,

(a) subject to paragraph (b),

(i) for the purposes of applying subsections (3) and (4) and paragraph (d.1) of the definition "specified foreign property" in subsection 233.3(1) to the taxpayer in respect of the particular interest for the particular year,

(A) the particular interest is deemed at each time throughout the particular year that it is held by the taxpayer to be a participating interest in a non-resident entity,

(B) subject to paragraph (5)(b), subsection (3) is deemed to apply to the taxpayer throughout the particular year in respect of the particular interest, and

(C) the value of D in paragraph (4)(a) is deemed to be nil, and

(ii) section 12.2, paragraphs 56(1)(d) and (j) and 60(a) and (s) and sections 138 and 138.1 do not apply in respect of the particular interest for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

(b) paragraph (a) does not apply to an individual for a taxation year in respect of a policy an interest in which was acquired by the individual more than five years before the individual became resident in Canada unless, after the day that is five years before the day that the individual became resident in Canada, the individual paid premiums in respect of the policy that are in excess of the level that can reasonably be considered to have been contemplated at the time the first interest in the policy was acquired;

(c) an interest in an insurance policy is deemed to have been disposed of by a person at the end of a taxation year of the person for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value at that time where

(i) paragraph (a) did not apply to the person in respect of the interest for the year,

(ii) the person held the interest at the end of the year, and

(iii) paragraph (a) applies to the person in respect of the interest for the person's following taxation year;

(d) an interest in an insurance policy is deemed to have been acquired by a person at the beginning of a taxation year of the person at a cost equal to its fair market value at that time where

(i) paragraph (a) does not apply to the person in respect of the interest for the year,

(ii) the person held the interest at the beginning of the year, and

(iii) paragraph (a) applied to the person in respect of the interest for the person's preceding taxation year; and

(e) for the purposes of this subsection and subsection (4), the fair market value of an interest in an insurance policy, the proceeds of disposition of an interest in an insurance policy and amounts paid to a beneficiary in respect of an interest in an insurance policy shall each be determined without reference to benefits paid, payable or anticipated to be payable, under the policy as a consequence only of a death, sickness, disability or prescribed event.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(10) of the Act sets out the treatment under section 94.2 of an interest in a foreign insurance policy. For this purpose, a foreign insurance policy is one that is neither

- issued by an insurer in the course of carrying on business in Canada the income from which is subject to tax under Part I, nor
- entered into solely in respect of risks that relate to activities occurring outside Canada or losses in respect of tangible property ordinarily situated outside Canada.

Paragraph 94.2(10)(a) generally provides that, where a taxpayer (other than an exempt taxpayer) holds an interest in such an insurance policy, for the purposes of subsections 94.2(3) and (4) (and a corresponding foreign property reporting rule in subsection 233.3(1)) the particular interest is deemed to be a participating interest in a non-resident entity to which the mark-to-market rules in subsection 94.2(4) apply. However, the mark-to-market regime under subsection 94.2(4) applies differently to insurance policies in two respects. First, no deferral amount is calculated with regard to insurance policies. Second, losses are not deductible, but instead can be used to offset future income amounts otherwise arising under subsection 94.2(4). (As to the treatment of losses, see the commentary on subsection 94.2(4).) Paragraph 94.2(10)(a) also provides that, where the mark-to-market rules apply to an insurance policy, the other rules in the Act with regard to the taxation of insurance products do not apply.

Under paragraph 94.2(10)(b), paragraph 94.2(10)(a) does not apply in connection with a policy an interest in which was acquired more than five years before a taxpayer became resident in Canada. However, this exception does not apply if premiums in excess of the level originally contemplated under the policy have been paid within 5 years of the policyholder becoming resident in Canada or while the policyholder was resident in Canada.

In the event that an insurance policy is subject to paragraph 94.2(10)(a) for one taxation year but not subject to that paragraph for the preceding year, paragraph 94.2(10)(c) provides that the taxpayer is deemed, at the end of the preceding year, to have disposed of the taxpayer's interest in the insurance policy at its fair market value (determined with reference to paragraph 94.2(10)(e)).

In the event that an insurance policy is subject to paragraph 94.2(10)(a) for one taxation year but not subject to that paragraph for the following year, paragraph 94.2(10)(d) provides that the taxpayer is deemed, at the beginning of the following year, to have acquired the taxpayer's interest in the insurance policy at its fair market value (determined with reference to paragraph 94.2(10)(e)).

Paragraph 94.2(10)(e) provides that the fair market value of an interest in an insurance policy and other relevant amounts are determined without reference to benefits paid, payable and anticipated to be payable under the policy only as a consequence of a death, sickness, disability or other prescribed event. (Note: Presently, it is not anticipated that events will be prescribed for this purpose.)

Example

Assume that David, a long-term resident of Canada, pays premiums of $10,000 to an offshore insurer for a life insurance policy. The policy's cash surrender value is $9,000 and $10,700 at the end of 2002 and 2003 (respectively).

Results

1. For 2002, no amount is determined under paragraph 94.2(4)(a) because the cost of the policy exceeds the fair market value at the end of 2002.
2. No loss is permitted to be claimed under paragraph 94.2(4)(b). The amount of the denied loss is equal to $1,000.
3. For 2003, the amount included in income under paragraph 94.2(4)(a) is $700 (= $10,700 ("B"), minus $9,000 ("F"), minus $1,000 ("G")).
4. It should be noted, however, that it is possible that the fair market value could be higher that a policy's cash surrender value. This might be the case, for example, if cash surrender values under a policy were not provided on a consistent basis over time. If this were the case, the fair market value of a policy would be a question of fact.

Subsection 94.2(10), unlike the rest of section 94.2, is to apply to taxation years that begin after 2001.

Related Provisions: 233.3(1)"specified foreign property"(d.1) — Annual information reporting re interest in insurance policy.

(11) Change of status of entity — Where a participating interest is held by a taxpayer at the beginning of a taxation year, subsection (4) applied for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the interest for the preceding taxation year and that subsection does not apply for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the interest for the year (otherwise than because the taxpayer became an exempt taxpayer or ceased to reside in Canada),

(a) subject to paragraph (c), the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the interest at the beginning of the year at a cost equal to its fair market value at that time;

(b) where the interest is capital property at the beginning of the year, in computing the adjusted cost base after that time to the taxpayer of the interest

(i) except where the taxpayer has made an election in respect of the interest under clause (i)(C) of the description of D in paragraph (4)(a), there shall be deducted the product of any positive deferral amount in respect of the interest and the gross-up factor for the deferral amount, and

(ii) there shall be added the product of the absolute value of any negative deferral amount in respect of the interest and the gross-up factor for the deferral amount; and

(c) where paragraph (b) does not apply,

(i) except where the taxpayer has made an election in respect of the interest under clause (i)(C) of the description of D in paragraph (4)(a), there shall be deducted in computing the cost to the taxpayer of the interest the lesser of

(A) the product of any positive deferral amount in respect of the interest and the gross-up factor for the deferral amount, and

(B) the cost to the taxpayer of the interest, determined without reference to this subparagraph,

(ii) there shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of the interest the amount, if any, by which

(A) the amount determined under clause (i)(A) in respect of the interest

exceeds

(B) the amount determined under clause (i)(B) in respect of the interest, and

(iii) there shall be added in computing the cost to the taxpayer of the interest the product of the absolute value of any negative deferral amount in respect of the interest and the gross-up factor for the deferral amount.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(11) of the Act sets out rules that apply where a taxpayer holding a participating interest in an entity was subject to subsection 94.2(4) for a taxation year but is not subject, in respect of the interest, to subsection 94.2(4) for the following taxation year (otherwise than because the taxpayer ceased to reside in Canada or became an "exempt taxpayer", as defined in subsection 94.1(1)).

Where subsection 94.2(11) applies, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the particular interest at the beginning of the following taxation year at a cost equal to the fair market value of the particular interest at that time.

The subsection could apply, for example, where a taxpayer holds a share of the capital stock of a non-resident corporation and the share is not an "exempt interest", as defined in subsection 94.1(1). Assume that the taxpayer made no election under subsection 94.1(4) for section 94.1 to apply. If the entity subsequently becomes a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, subsection 94.2(4) would cease to apply.

Since the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the property at its fair market value at the beginning of the following year, all increases and decreases in the value of the interest from the time of its acquisition are reflected in the taxpayer's cost of the interest for tax purposes. However, only the gain or loss accruing while it was subject to subsection 94.2(4) has been brought into income. The gain or loss in value for the period from the time of acquisition to the time it became subject to subsection 94.2(4) has not been taken into consideration for tax purposes.

Accordingly, paragraph 94.2(10)(b) provides for a negative or positive adjustment to the adjusted cost base (ACB) of a participating interest held as capital property. Any positive "deferral amount" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)) in respect of the interest is deducted in computing the ACB of the interest, but the deduction is grossed-up by one-half in the event that the deferral amount was calculated with reference to two-thirds of the accrued gains. The ACB deduction does not, however, apply in the event that a positive deferral amount has already been taken into account because of an election under the description of D in paragraph 94.2(4)(a). The absolute value of any negative deferral amount (or three-halves of it where the 2/3 factor was used in computing the negative deferral amount) is added in computing the ACB of the interest. Where capital property is not involved, a corresponding decrease or increase in cost (rather than adjusted cost basis) is provided under paragraph 94.2(11)(c). To the extent that the decrease would otherwise result in a negative cost, the decrease is brought into the taxpayer's income under paragraph 94.2(11)(c).

Related Provisions: 53(1)(m.1) — Addition to adjusted cost base; 53(2)(w) — Deduction from adjusted cost base; 94.2(14) — Fresh start re change of status of entity.

(12) Cost of participating interest — Where a taxpayer's participating interest in a non-resident entity is disposed of by the taxpayer at a particular time in a taxation year and subsection (4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of the interest, for the purpose of determining the taxpayer's cost of the interest immediately before the particular time

(a) if the interest was held by the taxpayer at the beginning of the year, its cost to the taxpayer immediately before the particular time is deemed to be equal to the fair market value of the interest at the beginning of the year; and

(b) in any other case, its cost to the taxpayer immediately before the particular time is deemed to be equal to the amount that would be its cost to the taxpayer at the particular time if this Act were read without reference to this section (other than subsection (2)).

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(12) of the Act provides a rule for determining the cost at a particular time of a participating interest in an entity for a taxation year in the event that the interest is disposed of by the taxpayer in the year.

The cost to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition of the property is deemed to be its fair market value at the beginning of the taxpayer's taxation year. In the event that the property was not held by the taxpayer at that time, its cost immediately before the disposition is its cost determined without reference to subsections 94.2(4) and (12). In identifying property for these purposes, identical properties of a taxpayer are considered to be disposed of on a "first in, first out" basis, as a consequence of the application of subsection 94.2(2).

Under new paragraph (c.2) of the definition "cost amount" in subsection 248(1), the cost determined at a particular time for a property under subsection 94.2 (12) is also the "cost amount" of the property at the particular time.

Related Provisions: 248(1)"cost amount"(c.2) — Cost amount applies for entire Act.

(13) Deferral amount where same interest reacquired — Subject to subsections (14) to (17), where a taxpayer disposes of a participating interest in an entity at any time in a taxation year of the taxpayer and subsection (4) applies for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of the interest, for the purpose of applying subsection (4) to dispositions after that time the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the interest is nil.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(13) of the Act generally provides that a "deferral amount" in respect of a property of a taxpayer is deemed to be nil, after the property has been disposed of by the taxpayer at a time when the mark-to-market rules in subsection 94.2(4) applied to the property. This is of relevance to property that is reacquired by a taxpayer. However, subsection 94.2(13) is subject to rules in subsections 94.2(14) to (17).

It should be noted that identical properties of a taxpayer are considered to be disposed of on a "first in, first out" basis as a consequence of the application of subsection 94.2(2).

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation.

(14) Fresh start re change of status of entity — Where a participating interest is deemed by paragraph (11)(a) to have been acquired at a particular time by a taxpayer, for the purpose of applying subsection (4) to a subsequent disposition of the interest and a subsequent election in respect of the interest under clause (i)(C) of the description of D in paragraph (4)(a), the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the interest shall

(a) for the purpose of clause (i)(C) of the description of B in the definition "deferral amount" in paragraph (1)(b), be determined as if subsection (4) had not applied to the taxpayer in respect of the interest for taxation years that began before the particular time; and

(b) be determined without reference to the application of subsection (13) with regard to dispositions that occurred before the particular time.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(14) of the Act covers the case where a taxpayer's participating interest in an entity was initially subject to the rules in subsection 94.2(4) and ceases to be subject to those rules (otherwise than because of the taxpayer having become an "exempt taxpayer"). For example, subsection 94.2(14) could apply where an entity loses its status as an FIE.

In these circumstances, the deferral amount in respect of the participating interest is determined without reference to the past application of subsections 94.2(4) and (13). This rule is relevant only in the event that the same participating interest of the taxpayer again becomes subject to the rules in subsection 94.2(4).

Parallel "fresh start" rules are contained in subsection 94.2(15) and (16). All of these "fresh start" rules are expected to be only rarely invoked, given that more than one change in status of an investment or a taxpayer is required for the rules to become relevant. For further detail on the "deferral amount" defined in subsection 94.2(1), see the commentary on that definition.

(15) Fresh start after emigration of taxpayer — Where a taxpayer ceases at a particular time to be resident in Canada, for the purpose of applying subsection (4) to dispositions, and elections under clause (i)(C) of the description of D in paragraph (4)(a), that occur or that are made after the particular time, the deferral amount in respect of the taxpayer's participating interests shall

(a) for the purpose of clause (i)(C) of the description of B in the definition "deferral amount" in paragraph (1)(b), be determined as if subsection (4) had not applied to the taxpayer in respect of participating interests for taxation years that began before the particular time; and

(b) be determined without reference to the application of subsection (13) with regard to dispositions that occurred before the particular time.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(15) of the Act affects the calculation of the "deferral amount" in respect of a participating interest in an entity for a taxpayer who has ceased to reside in Canada. It is relevant in the event that, at a subsequent time, the taxpayer becomes resident in Canada again.

In these circumstances, the deferral amounts in respect of the taxpayer's FIE interests are determined without reference to the past application of subsections 94.2(4) and (13).

For further context, see the commentary above on the related fresh start rule in subsection 94.2(14).

(16) Fresh start re change of status of tax-exempt entity — Where

(a) a taxpayer was not an exempt taxpayer for a particular taxation year, and

(b) the taxpayer is an exempt taxpayer for the following taxation year because of the application of paragraph (b) of the definition "exempt taxpayer" in subsection 94.1(1), for the purpose of applying subsection (4) to dispositions, and elections under clause (i)(C) of the description of D in paragraph (4)(a), that occur or that are made after that following year, the deferral amount in respect of the taxpayer's participating interests shall

(c) for the purpose of clause (i)(C) of the description of B in the definition "deferral amount" in paragraph (1)(b), be determined as if subsection (4) had not applied to the taxpayer in respect of participating interests for taxation years that ended before that following year, and

(d) be determined without reference to the application of subsection (13) with regard to dispositions that occurred before that following year.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(16) of the Act affects the calculation of the "deferral amount" in respect of an interest in an entity for a taxpayer that initially was not an "exempt taxpayer" under paragraph (b) of that definition and then subsequently both obtains and loses that status.

In these circumstances, the deferral amounts in respect of the FIE interests of the taxpayer are determined without reference to the past application of subsections 94.2(4) and (13).

For further context, see the commentary on the related fresh start rule in subsection 94.2(14). In addition, it should be noted that amended subsection 149(10) applies to changes of tax-exempt status for taxpayers that are corporations. Where subsection 149(10) applies, the rules in subsection 94.2(16) do not apply.

(17) Superficial dispositions — Where a taxpayer disposes of a particular participating interest in an entity, the deferral amount in respect of the particular interest would otherwise be a negative amount and the disposition would, if the particular interest were a capital property and a loss arose on the disposition, give rise to a superficial loss (within the meaning that would be assigned by section 54 if the definition "superficial loss" in that section were read without the reference to subsection 40(3.4) in paragraph (h) of that definition),

(a) except for the purpose of applying paragraph (b) in respect of the disposition, the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the particular interest is deemed to be nil; and

(b) the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the property that would be the substituted property referred to in that definition if the assumptions described in this subsection applied is deemed to be equal to the deferral amount of the taxpayer in respect of the particular interest.

Technical Notes: New subsection 94.2(17) of the Act applies where a taxpayer disposes of a participating interest in an entity in respect of which a negative amount is determined under the description of D in the formula in subsection 94.2(4). This would be the case where there is a negative deferral amount associated with the interest. In these circumstances, the deferral amount is instead generally deemed to be nil if, during the period beginning 30 days before the disposition and ending 30 days after the disposition, identical property is acquired by the taxpayer or certain related persons.

Subsection 94.2(17) operates in a manner similar to the "superficial loss" rules for capital properties and is intended to prevent the premature realization of losses in respect of a property in which a taxpayer effectively retains an economic interest. "Superficial loss" has the same meaning as assigned in section 54, except that the definition for the purposes of subsection 94.2(17) does not contain the exception for transactions covered by subsection 40(3.4).

Property substituted for the particular property is, in these circumstances, considered to have the deferral amount associated with the property disposed of.

Definitions [s. 94.2]: "adjusted cost base" — 54, 248(1); "amount", "business" — 248(1); "Canada" — 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "capital property" — 54, 248(1); "carrying value" — 94.1(1), (10), 94.2(1)(a); "cost amount" — 248(1); "deferral amount" — 94.2(1)(b); "disposition" — 248(1); "entity", "exempt taxpayer" — 94.1(1), 94.2(1)(a); "foreign investment entity" — 94.1(1), (13), 94.2(1)(a); "filing-due date" — 248(1); "fiscal period" — 249.1; "gross-up factor" — 94.2(1)(c); "individual", "insurance policy" — 248(1); "investment property" — 94.1(1), 94.2(1)(a); "Minister", "non-resident" — 248(1); "non-resident entity" — 94.1(1), 94.2(1)(a); "owned" — 94.1(10); "participating interest" — 94.1(1), 94.2(1)(a); "person", "prescribed", "property" — 248(1); "resident", "resident in Canada" — 250; "significant interest" — 94.1(11); "taxation year" — 94.1(1), 94.2(1)(a), 249; "taxpayer" — 248(1); "tracked property" — 94.2(9)(d).

94.3 (1) Definitions and rules of application — The definitions in subsection 94.1(1), and paragraph 94.2(2)(a), apply in this section.

(2) Prevention of double taxation — Where at a particular time in a taxation year a taxpayer resident in Canada receives or becomes entitled to receive a payment from an entity in respect of a participating interest in the entity,

(a) there may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the amount included (otherwise than because of subsection 94.2(4)) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of the payment,

exceeds

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deductible

(I) under subsection 91(5) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of the payment, or

(II) under section 113 in computing the taxpayer's taxable income for the year in respect of the payment, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount added under subsection 94.1(3) or 94.2(4), in respect of the interest, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year

exceeds the total of

(B) all amounts each of which is an amount deducted under subsection 94.1(3) or subsection 94.2(4), in respect of the interest, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, and

(C) all amounts each of which is an amount deducted under this paragraph, in respect of the interest, in computing the taxpayer's income in respect of a payment in respect of the interest that was received or became receivable before the particular time; and

(b) if the interest is capital property at the particular time, in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest after the particular time there shall be deducted the amount deducted under paragraph (a) in computing the taxpayer's income.

Related Provisions: 53(2)(w) — Deduction from adjusted cost base; 87(2)(j.95) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation.

Technical Notes: Where a taxpayer resident in Canada has received a payment (a dividend, for example) in respect of a participating interest in an entity held by the taxpayer (otherwise than as consideration for the disposition of the interest), new section 94.3 of the Act permits a deduction designed to offset any net income inclusion resulting from the payment. The permitted deduction for a taxation year is equal to the lesser of:

- the amount included (otherwise than because of subsection 94.2(4)) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of the payment, less any increase in amounts deductible under subsection 91(5) or section 113 caused by the making of the payment, and
- the net amount included in computing the taxpayer's income under sections 94.1 and 94.2 in respect of the participating interest, less deductions for the taxpayer under subsection 94.3(2) in respect of previous payments in respect of the interest.

In the event that the participating interest is capital property, the amount deducted from income under subsection 94.3(2) in respect of the interest is also required to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base of the interest. Note that this deduction is not of relevance to property to which the mark-to-market rules in section 94.2 apply, given that such property will not be capital property as a consequence of the application of subparagraph 39(1)(a)(ii.3) and section 94.2.

Section 94.3 also allows income inclusions in respect of amounts payable (for example, amounts payable by an FIE that is a trust) to be similarly treated.

The example below illustrates the operation of section 94.3.

Example

1. A taxpayer resident in Canada, Canco, purchases a 20% interest in Foreignco, a non-resident corporation. Foreignco is an FIE. Participating interests in Foreignco do not qualify as "exempt interests". Both Canco and Foreignco have taxation years that coincide with calendar years. Canco makes an election under subsection 94.1(4) to have section 94.1 apply.
2. Canco's income allocation in respect of its participating interest in Foreignco for 2001 is $100,000, which is added in computing Canco's income under subsection 94.1(3). This is partially offset by a specified tax allocation of $30,000. Foreignco pays a dividend of $50,000 to Canco in 2001. Canco includes the dividend in income pursuant to section 90 and claims a deduction of $20,000 in computing its taxable income pursuant to subsection 113(1).

Results

1. Canco's deduction from income under section 94.3 is equal to $35,000, being the lesser of the net income inclusion as a result of the payment (= $50,000 minus $20,000) and the amount of the net income inclusions under subsection 94.1(3) ($100,000 minus $30,000).
2. The result would generally be the same if the $50,000 dividend were instead paid in a subsequent year.

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, s. 11, will amend s. 94.1 to read as above, and add ss. 94.2 and 94.3, applicable to taxpayer's taxation years that begin after 2000 [to be changed to "that begin after 2001", per Sept. 7/00 news release below — ed.], except that subsec. 94.2(10) does not apply to taxation years that begin before 2002.

Notice of Ways and Means Motion, federal budget, February 16, 1999: Non-resident trusts and foreign-based investment funds

(8) That the provisions of the Act governing the taxation of

(a) trust beneficiaries and non-resident trusts, and

(b) taxpayers resident in Canada who hold interests in foreign-based investment funds

be modified in accordance with proposals described in the budget documents tabled by the Minister of Finance in the House of Commons on February 16, 1999.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 16, 1999: Non-resident trust and foreign-based investment fund rules

Canadians have significantly increased their holdings of investments in foreign countries over the past ten years. This reflects the globalization of capital markets and recognizes the benefits of portfolio diversification. However, tax planning techniques have developed to create advantages from using foreign-based investment funds and non-resident trusts in comparison with Canadian-based investment vehicles.

The Income Tax Act contains provisions that are designed to prevent the use by taxpayers of foreign-based investment funds and non-resident trusts to avoid Canadian tax. The purpose of the rules is to ensure that an appropriate amount of Canadian tax is paid on the foreign investment income earned by taxpayers through such vehicles in order to provide a level playing field with Canadian-based investment vehicles.

There is growing evidence that the objectives of the current provisions of the Act are not being fully met and that high-income individuals are able, in some cases, to avoid Canadian tax by investing in foreign-based investment funds and by contributing property to non-resident trusts. Such an outcome is inconsistent with a fair and neutral tax system, erodes the Canadian tax base and is contrary to the policy intent of the current rules.

Background

Canadian investment funds are taxed annually on the income and capital gains accumulated in the funds but not allocated to investors. Investors in such funds are taxed annually on the income and capital gains of the funds allocated to them, as well as on any taxable capital gains arising on the disposition of their interest in the fund. As a result, the Canadian tax base is protected.

Investment funds located outside Canada are generally not subject to tax in Canada. Where such funds face little or no tax in their country of residence, Canadian investors holding interests in such vehicles may benefit from a significant deferral of tax on income and realized capital gains retained in the funds over the years. Furthermore, on the disposition of their interest in a foreign- based investment fund, investors may also be able to convert ordinary income to capital gains, which are taxed at a lower rate. These tax advantages have resulted in a growing number of Canadians investing in foreign-based funds.

Issue

The Income Tax Act contains rules that attempt to eliminate these tax advantages. Where a Canadian makes an investment in a foreign-based investment fund and one of the main reasons for acquiring, holding or having the interest in such property is to avoid Canadian tax, a notional annual allocation of income is imputed to the taxpayer and subject to tax. This notional amount is determined by multiplying the cost of the taxpayer's interest in the fund by a prescribed interest rate.

The current provision, however, has rarely been applied. Revenue Canada has had difficulty in enforcing this provision because of the frequent lack of information and the challenge of establishing that the interest in the foreign-based investment fund was acquired primarily to avoid Canadian tax. Although the provision may have been effective when first introduced in 1984, its impact has weakened over the years. When the provision has been applied, it has been criticized as subjecting to tax an arbitrary amount that may bear no relationship to the actual income accruing in the fund.

These deficiencies and the resulting erosion of the Canadian tax base necessitate the actions that the government is proposing in this budget.

Proposal

The budget sets forth an approach to address the deficiencies in the current rules governing foreign-based investment funds and non-resident trusts. The objective of the proposals is to enhance fairness in the tax system in relation to the taxation of income earned from investing in foreign-based investment funds and contributing property to non-resident trusts on the one hand, and income earned from investing in similar entities resident in Canada. These proposals would not prevent Canadians from investing in foreign-based investment funds or from contributing property to non-resident trusts, but are intended to ensure that there is no tax advantage in doing so.

Consultations will be initiated on the following proposed modifications to the tax rules governing foreign-based investment funds:

- That the proposed rules apply to interests in a foreign-based investment fund, subject to a number of exceptions noted below. Taxpayers would be subject, annually, to tax on their pro-rata share of all the undistributed income of the foreign-based investment fund where they have access to sufficient information about the income of the fund (the income accrual approach that applies in respect of controlled foreign affiliates of Canadian taxpayers), subject to a foreign tax credit for foreign income taxes paid by the fund. Alternatively, taxpayers would be required to add to or deduct from their income, as the case may be, the annual increase or decrease in the market value of their interest in the fund (the "mark-to-market" approach). These rules would replace the tax motivation test that "one of the main reasons for the taxpayer acquiring, holding or having an interest in a foreign-based investment fund was to avoid Canadian taxation". The rules would not apply where the foreign-based investment fund annually distributes or allocates to Canadian investors all of the fund's income to which those investors are entitled.
- That a foreign-based investment fund be defined as any non-resident corporation, trust, fund or other entity where more than 50 per cent of the cost of the entity's assets are investment properties. Look-through rules would apply in respect of significant investments in other entities for the purpose of making this determination. Where trusts are subject to the proposed non-resident trust rules, such trusts would not be subject to these rules.
- That investment funds situated in the United States not be subject to these rules since tax avoidance and deferral opportunities are not a concern through the use of such vehicles.
- That a five-year exception for temporary residents and new immigrants apply. Additional exemptions could be contemplated to remove from the rules foreign- based investment funds that are clearly not used to avoid or defer Canadian tax.
- That the proposed rules apply to any taxation year commencing after 1999, with respect to any interest in a foreign-based investment fund (in which the taxpayer does not already own an interest) not covered by the exceptions, acquired by a Canadian resident on or after February 16, 1999. All interests in any foreign-based investment fund not covered by the exceptions would be subject to the proposed rules for taxation years commencing after 2000.

Department of Finance news release, November 30, 1999: Update on Proposals for the Taxation of Non-Resident Trusts and Foreign Investment Funds

[See under 94 — ed.]

Department of Finance news release, September 7, 2000: Finance Minister Extends Consultation Period and Announces New Effective Date for Foreign Investment Entity and Trust Tax Proposals

Finance Minister Paul Martin today announced that the period of consultation on draft legislation regarding the taxation of non-resident trusts and foreign investment entities will be extended from September 1, 2000, as previously announced, to December 31, 2000. In addition, the implementation date will be delayed by one year, to taxation years beginning after 2001.

Proposals affecting the taxation of non-resident trusts and foreign investment entities were released with the 1999 federal budget to limit opportunities for Canadians to avoid Canadian income tax by transferring funds to offshore trusts or accounts. On November 30, 1999, Minister Martin announced a number of revisions to the proposals. On June 22, 2000, the Department released draft legislation and invited the public to submit comments by September 1, 2000. Extending this deadline to the end of the year responds to a number of requests for more time to provide comments.

Minister Martin also announced that interests in certain U.S. investment funds would be excluded from the application of the foreign investment entity proposals. The backgrounder to this press release contains details on this change and on other changes that are being proposed in response to submissions received to date.

In view of the issues identified in these submissions and the extension of the consultation period on these proposals, it is now proposed to introduce the rules with effect for taxation years that begin after 2001 rather than for taxation years beginning after 2000, as previously proposed. This will allow the Department of Finance to consider fully all comments received before the end of this year and to release a revised draft of the proposals early in 2001.

Interested parties wishing to comment on the draft legislation are invited to send written submissions before the end of the year to the following address: Tax Legislation Division, Department of Finance Canada, 17th Floor, East Tower, 140 O'Connor Street, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0G5.

BACKGROUNDER

Foreign Investment Entities

Further to the consultations to date on these proposals and additional analysis within the Department, the following modifications to the foreign investment entity (FIE) rules are proposed:

1. It is proposed that interests in United States investment funds that are considered "regulated investment companies" (RICs) for the purposes of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code be excluded from the application of the FIE rules. To qualify as a RIC, an investment fund must annually distribute 90 per cent or more of its income to its unitholders. It is understood that a number of U.S. funds (including those commonly referred to as DIAMONDS, SPDRs and NASDAQ-100) are RICs. As a result of this income distribution requirement, the policy underlying the FIE proposals — that of annual recognition of the FIE's income or growth — is largely met through the existing law. The Department is continuing to explore whether other foreign-based funds should be similarly exempted.

2. Modifications will be proposed to ensure that the cost amount of properties for the purposes of calculating the foreign content limit in registered pension plans and registered retirement savings plans is not impacted by the FIE rules.

3. Employee stock options held by taxpayers in respect of which subsection 7(1) of the Income Tax Act applies will not be subject to the proposed FIE rules.

4. Proposed paragraph 94.2(1)(b) of the Income Tax Act sets out the definition of "deferral amount". The deferral amount ensures that gains on a taxpayer's interest in a FIE that have accrued before the new rules are to come into effect are not taxed until the interest is disposed of by the taxpayer. The proposed rules released on June 22, 2000, ensure that these gains are taxed at a 2/3 inclusion rate in respect of capital property acquired on or before June 22, 2000. In view of concerns expressed, the 2/3 inclusion rate will be extended to apply to deferral amounts in respect of capital property acquired after June 22, 2000.

5. Under the proposals, a "foreign investment entity" is generally defined as a non-resident entity whose investment properties have a carrying value of more than 50 per cent of the total carrying value of all its property. Proposed paragraph 94.1(1) of the Income Tax Act sets out the definition of "investment property". It is proposed that the definition be modified to exclude property that is:

   - real estate used in a business (other than real estate principally used or held to derive rents or profits on its sale),
   - shares held by a corporation that are shares of its own capital stock (e.g., treasury shares),
   - a resource property used in a business (other than an investment business), and
   - indebtedness incurred in connection with a business (other than an investment business) and owing to a related person.

6. Generally speaking, where a taxpayer holds a share of a class of the capital stock of a corporation that is widely held and actively traded on a prescribed stock exchange and whose principal business is not an investment business, the taxpayer's interest in the share will not be subject to the proposed FIE rules. The term "investment business" is defined in proposed subsection 94.1(1) of the Income Tax Act as, generally, a business having a principal purpose of deriving income from property (interest, dividends, rents, royalties, etc.).

   However, the definition excludes certain businesses as investment businesses, and it is proposed that the definition be modified to also exclude a business of developing or purchasing and developing property (such as computer software and films but not investment property) for sale or licensing.

7. Proposed subsection 94.1(11) of the Income Tax Act sets out the circumstances in which an entity is considered to have a "significant interest" in a corporation, partnership or trust for the purposes of subsection 94.1(10). An entity is considered to have a significant interest in a corporation if it holds shares representing 25 per cent or more of the votes and value associated with all the corporation's shares. It is proposed that subsection 94.1(11) be modified to permit the shareholdings of an entity and persons related to the entity to be aggregated in determining whether the 25 per cent significant interest test has been satisfied. Similar changes are proposed in determining whether an entity has a significant interest in a partnership or trust.

8. An entity that has a "significant interest" in a corporation, partnership or non-discretionary trust is treated under proposed subsection 94.1(10) as owning its proportionate share of the property of the corporation, partnership or trust. The formula for determining this share is based on the relationship of the shares and debt owned by the entity to all the shares and debt issued by the corporation, partnership or trust. It is proposed to change this formula so that debts owing to arm's length financial institutions are excluded.

9. The term "carrying value" is defined in proposed subsection 94.1(1) of the Income Tax Act. The carrying value of property is, generally, the amount at which the property is valued for balance sheet purposes. The carrying value of a property is relevant primarily for the purpose of determining whether a non-resident entity is a foreign investment entity. The Department is reviewing the "carrying value" definition to ensure fair results and facilitate the use of the proposed rules by taxpayers. Particular consideration is being given to introducing an alternative method of valuing property in determining whether a non-resident entity is a foreign investment entity.

Definitions [s. 94.3]: "adjusted cost base" — 54, 248(1); "amount" — 248(1); "capital property" — 54, 248(1); "entity", "participating interest" — 94.1(1), 94.3(1); "resident in Canada" — 250; "taxable income" — 248(1); "taxation year" — 94.1(1), 94.3(1), 249; "taxpayer" — 248(1).

95. (1) Definitions for this subdivision — In this subdivision,

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)

95. Definitions re foreign affiliates — (1) In this subdivision (other than sections 94 to 94.3),

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 12(1), will amend the opening words of subsec. 95(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: Subsection 95(1) of the Act sets out definitions that are relevant for the purposes of sections 90 to 95.

Subsection 95(1) is amended so that these definitions do not apply for the purposes of sections 94 to 94.3, except where the definition applies for the purposes of the Act as a whole because of subsection 248(1). This amendment applies to taxation years that begin after 2000.

"active business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means any business carried on by the affiliate other than

(a) an investment business carried on by the affiliate, or

(b) a business that is deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business carried on by the affiliate;

Related Provisions: 95(1)"income from an active business" — What income included; 248(1) — Meanings of "active business" and "business".

History: The definition "active business" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"controlled foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada means a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that was, at that time, controlled by

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)"controlled foreign affiliate" opening words

"controlled foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada means a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that is, at that time, a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer because of subsection 94.1(12) or that is, at that time, controlled by

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 12(2), will amend the opening words of the definition "controlled foreign affiliate" in subsec. 95(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: As set out below, various definitions in subsection 95(1) are also being amended.

The income for a taxation year of a taxpayer resident in Canada includes, pursuant to subsection 91(1) of the Act, a specified percentage of the foreign accrual property income (FAPI) of any controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer. In order to eliminate overlap between the FAPI rules and the rules for foreign investment entities in sections 94.1 and 94.2, the latter rules do not apply in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a controlled foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada. An election is provided under new subsection 94.1(12) under which a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer can be treated as controlled foreign affiliate.

The definition "controlled foreign affiliate" is amended to make a cross-reference to foreign affiliates that are deemed by subsection 94.1(12) to be controlled foreign affiliates. Given the wording in subsection 94.1(12), this reference is not technically necessary but is meant to serve as a useful clarification of the potential application of subsection 94.1(12).

(a) the taxpayer,

(b) the taxpayer and not more than four other persons resident in Canada,

(c) not more than 4 persons resident in Canada, other than the taxpayer,

(d) a person or persons with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, or

(e) the taxpayer and a person or persons with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length;

Related Provisions: 17(15)"controlled foreign affiliate" — Definition applicable to loan by corporation to non-resident; 128.1(1)(d) — Foreign affiliate becoming resident in Canada deemed to have been controlled foreign affiliate; 233.4(4) — Reporting requirements; 248(1)"controlled foreign affiliate" — Definition applies to entire Act; 256(6), (6.1) — Meaning of "controlled".

History: Paras. (c) to (e) of "controlled foreign affiliate" in subsec. 95(1) substituted for para. (c) by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 71(1), applicable to taxation years commencing after July 13, 1990. Para. (c) formerly read:

(c) a related group of which the taxpayer was a member;

"excluded property" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means any property of the foreign affiliate that is

(a) used or held by the foreign affiliate principally for the purpose of gaining or producing income from an active business,

(b) shares of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer where all or substantially all of the property of the other foreign affiliate is excluded property, or

(c) an amount receivable the interest on which is, or would be if interest were payable thereon, income from an active business by virtue of subparagraph (2)(a)(ii), and, for the purposes of the definitions "foreign affiliate" in this subsection and "direct equity percentage" in subsection (4) as they apply to this definition, where at any time a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer has an interest in a partnership,

(d) the partnership shall be deemed to be a non-resident corporation having capital stock of a single class divided into 100 issued shares, and

(e) the affiliate shall be deemed to own at that time that proportion of the issued shares of that class that

(i) the fair market value of the affiliate's interest in the partnership at that time

is of

(ii) the fair market value of all interests in the partnership at that time;

Related Provisions: 85.1(4) — Exception to share-for-share exchange rules where foreign affiliate's property is substantially all excluded property.

History: That portion of the definition "excluded property" following para. (c) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 71(2), applicable after 1989. That portion formerly read:

and for the purpose of this definition, where a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer has an interest in a partnership and the fair market value of the interest is equal to or greater than 10% of the fair market value of all interests in the partnership, the partnership shall be deemed to be another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer and the interest of the foreign affiliate in the partnership shall be deemed to be shares of the capital stock of that other foreign affiliate;

"foreign accrual property income" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, for any taxation year of the affiliate, means the amount determined by the formula

$$(A + A.1 + A.2 + B + C) - (D + E + F + G + H)$$

$$(A + A.1 + A.2 + B) - (D + E + F + G + H)$$

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 12(3), will amend the formula in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: See under 95(1)"foreign accrual property income"C.

A is the amount that would, if section 80 did not apply to the affiliate for the year or a preceding taxation year, be the total of the affiliate's incomes for the year from property and businesses (other than active businesses) determined as if each amount described in clause

(2)(a)(ii)(D) that was paid or payable, directly or indirectly, by the affiliate to another foreign affiliate of either the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length were nil where an amount in respect of the income derived by the other foreign affiliate from that amount that was paid or payable to it by the affiliate was added in computing its income from an active business, other than

(a) interest that would, by virtue of paragraph 81(1)(m), not be included in computing the income of the affiliate if it were resident in Canada,

(b) a dividend from another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer,

(c) a taxable dividend to the extent that the amount thereof would, if the dividend were received by the taxpayer, be deductible by the taxpayer under section 112, or

(d) any amount included because of subsection 80.4(2) in the affiliate's income in respect of indebtedness to another corporation that is a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or of a person resident in Canada with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length,

A.1 is twice the total of all amounts included in computing the affiliate's income from property or businesses (other than active businesses) for the year because of subsection 80(13),

A.2 is the amount determined for G in respect of the affiliate for the preceding taxation year,

B is such portion of the affiliate's taxable capital gains for the year from dispositions of property, other than dispositions of excluded property to which none of paragraphs (2)(c), (d) and (e) apply, as may reasonably be considered to have accrued after its 1975 taxation year,

C is where the affiliate is a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, the amount that would be required to be included in computing its income for the year if

(a) subsection 94.1(1) were applicable in computing that income,

(b) the words "earned directly by the taxpayer" in that subsection were replaced by the words "earned by the person resident in Canada in respect of whom the taxpayer is a foreign affiliate",

(c) the words "other than a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or a prescribed non-resident entity" in paragraph 94.1(1)(a) were replaced by the words "other than a prescribed non-resident entity or a controlled foreign affiliate of a person resident in Canada of whom the taxpayer is a controlled foreign affiliate", and

(d) the words "other than a capital gain" in paragraph 94.1(1)(g) were replaced by the words "other than any income that would not be included in the taxpayer's foreign accrual property income for the year if the value of C in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection 95(1) were nil and other than a capital gain",

Proposed Repeal — 95(1)"foreign accrual property income"C

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 12(4), will repeal the description of C in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: The FAPI of a controlled foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada is allocated to the taxpayer in accordance with subsection 91(1). Under its definition in subsection 95(1), FAPI includes certain amounts that would be included in the affiliate's income under existing subsection 94.1(1) if that subsection were read in the manner specified in the description of C of the definition.

Existing section 94.1 is being repealed. Accordingly, the description of C in the definition "foreign accrual property income" is also repealed. There are, however, special rules in new paragraph 95(2)(g.2) with regard to the application of sections 94.1 to 94.3 for the purposes of computing FAPI.

D is the total of the affiliate's losses for the year from property and businesses (other than active businesses) determined as if there were not included in the affiliate's income any amount described in any of paragraphs (a) to (d) of the description of A and as if each amount described in clause (2)(a)(ii)(D) that was paid or payable, directly or indirectly, by the affiliate to another foreign affiliate of either the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length were nil where an amount in respect of the income derived by the other foreign affiliate from that amount that was paid or payable to it by the affiliate was added in computing its income from an active business,

E is such portion of the affiliate's allowable capital losses for the year from dispositions of property, other than dispositions of excluded property to which none of paragraphs (2)(c), (d) and (e) apply, as may reasonably be considered to have accrued after its 1975 taxation year,

F is the amount claimed by the taxpayer, which amount may not be greater than the amount prescribed to be the deductible loss of the affiliate for the year,

G is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of amounts determined for A.1 and A.2 in respect of the affiliate for the year, and

exceeds

(b) the total of all amounts determined for D to F in respect of the affiliate for the year, and

H is

(a) where the affiliate was a member of a partnership at the end of the fiscal period of the partnership that ended in the year and the partnership received a dividend at a particular time in that fiscal period from a corporation that was, for the purposes of sections 93 and 113, a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer at that particular time, the portion of the amount of that dividend that is included in the value of A in respect of the affiliate for the year and that is deemed by paragraph 93.1(2)(a) to have been received by the affiliate for the purposes of sections 93 and 113, and

(b) in any other case, nil;

Related Provisions: 40(3)(d) — Deemed gain where ACB would become negative; 53(1)(m) — ACB of offshore investment fund property; 95(2) — Determination of certain components of FAPI; 152(6.1) — Reassessment to apply FAPI loss carryback; 248(1)"foreign accrual property income" — Definition applies to entire Act; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: The formula in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) amended to add " + H" by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 73(1), applicable after November 1999.

The description of A.1 in the definition "foreign accrual property income" amended by the said c. 17, subsec. 73(2) to replace the reference to the expression "4/3 of" with a reference to the word "twice", applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 except that, where a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer includes February 28, 2000 or October 17, 2000, or began after February 28, 2000 and ended before October 17, 2000, the reference to the word "twice" shall be read as a reference to the expression "the fraction that is the reciprocal of the fraction in para. 38(a), as amended by 2001, c. 17, that applies to the foreign affiliate for the year, multiplied by".

The description of F in the definition "foreign accrual property income" amended by the said c. 17, subsec. 73(3), applicable to foreign affiliates' taxation years that begin after November 1999. The description of F formerly read:

F is the amount prescribed to be the deductible loss of the affiliate for the year and the five immediately preceding taxation years, and

The description of H in the definition "foreign accrual property income" added by the said c. 17, subsec. 73(4), applicable after November 1999.

Paras. (c) and (d) added to the description of C in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 122(2), para. (c) applicable to taxation years that end after November 1991, para. (d) applicable to taxation years that begin after June 19, 1996.

The formula in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) amended, and the descriptions of A.1 and A.2 added, by 1995, c. 21, subsecs. 32(1), (2), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994. The formula formerly read:

$$(A + B + C) - (D + E + F)$$

The opening words of the description of A in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 78(2), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the amended description of A applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation year of such foreign affiliate.

In these instances, for taxation years that end after February 21, 1994, the opening words of the description of A should be read as follows (1995, c. 21, subsec. 78(1)):

A is the amount that would, if section 80 did not apply to the affiliate for the year or a preceding taxation year, be the total of the affiliate's incomes for the year from property and businesses (other than active businesses), other than

The description of D in the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsec. 95(1) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(2), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the amended legislation applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

The description of D formerly read:

"foreign accrual tax" applicable to any amount included in computing a taxpayer's income by virtue of subsection 91(1) for a taxation year in respect of a particular foreign affiliate of the taxpayer means

(a) the portion of any income or profits tax that was paid by

(i) the particular affiliate, or

(ii) any other foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of a dividend received from the particular affiliate and that may reasonably be regarded as applicable to that amount, and

(b) any amount prescribed in respect of the particular affiliate to be foreign accrual tax applicable to that amount;

"foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada means a non-resident corporation in which, at that time,

(a) the taxpayer's equity percentage is not less than 1%, and

(b) the total of the equity percentages in the corporation of the taxpayer and of each person related to the taxpayer (where each such equity percentage is determined as if the determinations under paragraph (b) of the definition "equity percentage" in subsection (4) were made without reference to the equity percentage of any person in the taxpayer or in any person related to the taxpayer) is not less than 10%, except that a corporation is not a foreign affiliate of a non-resident-owned investment corporation;

History: The definition "foreign affiliate" in subsec. 95(1) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(1), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the amended legislation applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

The definition formerly read:

"foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer (other than a non-resident-owned investment corporation) resident in Canada means a corporation (other than a corporation resident in Canada), in which, at that time, the taxpayer's equity percentage was not less than 10%;

"foreign bank" means an entity that would be a foreign bank within the meaning assigned by the definition of that expression in section 2 of the Bank Act if

(a) that definition were read without reference to the portion thereof after paragraph (g) thereof, and

(b) the entity had not been exempt under section 12 of that Act from being a foreign bank;

Related Provisions: 94.1(1)"foreign bank" — Definition applies to foreign investment entity rules.

History: The definition "foreign bank" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"income from an active business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer for a taxation year includes, for greater certainty, any income of the affiliate for the year that pertains to or is incident to that business but does not include

(a) other income that is its income from property for the year, or

(b) its income for the year from a business that is deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business carried on by the affiliate;

Related Provisions: 95(1)"active business" — Businesses excluded; 95(1)"income from property" — Extended meaning of income from property.

History: The definition "income from an active business" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"income from property" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer for a taxation year includes its income for the year from an investment business and its income for the year from an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, but, for greater certainty, does not include its income for the year that is because of subsection (2) included in its income from an active business or in its income from a business other than an active business;

History: The definition "income from property" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(3), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new definition applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

"investment business" of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means a business carried on by the affiliate in a taxation year (other than a business deemed by subsection (2) to be a business other than an active business carried on by the affiliate) the principal purpose of which is to derive income from property (including interest, dividends, rents, royalties or any similar returns or substitutes therefor), income from the insurance or reinsurance of risks, income from the factoring of trade accounts receivable, or profits from the disposition of investment property, unless it is established by the taxpayer or the affiliate that, throughout the period in the year during which the business was carried on by the affiliate,

(a) the business (other than any business conducted principally with persons with whom the affiliate does not deal at arm's length) is

(i) a business carried on by it as a foreign bank, a trust company, a credit union, an insurance corporation or a trader or dealer in securities or commodities, the activities of which are regulated in the country in which the business is principally carried on, or

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)"investment business"(a)(i)

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 12(5), will amend subpara. (a)(i) of the definition "investment business" in subsec. 95(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: "Investment business" of a foreign affiliate means a business carried on by the foreign affiliate the principal purpose of which is to derive income from property. However, an arm's length business carried on by a foreign bank, trust company, credit union, insurance corporation or securities trader is excluded from the definition "investment business" where the business is regulated in the country in which the business is principally carried on and a 5-employee test is satisfied.

The definition is amended to clarify that the regulation of the business must be under the laws of the country. This language corresponds to a similar definition of the same expression in new subsection 94.1(1).

(ii) the development of real estate for sale, the lending of money, the leasing or licensing of property or the insurance or reinsurance of risks, and

(b) the affiliate or, where the affiliate carries on the business as a member of a partnership (except where the affiliate is a specified member of the partnership in a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year), the partnership employs

(i) more than 5 employees full time in the active conduct of the business, or

(ii) the equivalent of more than 5 employees full time in the active conduct of the business taking into consideration only the services provided by its employees and the services provided outside Canada to the affiliate or the partnership by the employees of

(A) a corporation related to the affiliate (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)), or

(B) members of the partnership (other than a member of the partnership that was a specified member of the partnership in a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year)

where the corporation or members referred to in clause (A) or (B) receive compensation from the affiliate or the partnership for the services provided to the affiliate or the partnership by those employees the value of which is not less than the cost to such corporation or members of the compensation paid or accruing to the benefit of those employees that performed the services during the time the services were performed by those employees;

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)"investment business"(b)

Letter from Department of Finance, December 18, 2000:

Dear Mr. Nikolakakis:

We are responding to your letters of July 19, July 26 and November 20, 2000 concerning paragraph (b) of the definition "investment business" in subsection 95(1), the interaction of subsection 95(2.2) and paragraph 95(2)(f), and the scope of paragraph 95(2)(a.3) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In your letter of July 19, 2000, you submitted that the definition "investment business" in subsection 95(1) of the Act unfairly discriminates against certain very common forms of business organizations to which an affiliate may be a party. You requested an amendment to paragraph (b) of the definition to remove this discrimination and to treat, in the investment business definition, limited partners and limited partnerships in the same fashion as general partners and general partnerships.

We are sympathetic to your request. Consequently it will be recommended to the Minister of Finance that paragraph (b) of the definition "investment business" in subsection 95(1) of the Act be amended. The amendment will ensure that limited partners and limited partnerships are treated in the same manner as general partners and general partnerships in the investment business definition. It will be recommended that the amendment be applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates ending after 1999. This will be achieved by modifying the definition "specified member" of a partnership, for this purpose, so that the definition in subsection 248(1) of the Act is read without reference to paragraph (a) of that definition.

Thank you for bringing these matters to our attention.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(a) such foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(ii) in any other case, the percentage determined in prescribed manner;

Related Provisions: 95(1) — Foreign accrual property income; 95(1) — Foreign affiliate; 95(4) — Equity percentage.

"relevant tax factor" means

(a) where the taxpayer is an individual, 2, or

(b) where the taxpayer is a corporation, the quotient obtained when one is divided by the percentage set out in paragraph 123(1)(a);

Proposed Amendment — 95(1)"relevant tax factor"

"relevant tax factor" of a person or partnership for a taxation year means

(a) in the case of a corporation (or a partnership all the members of which, other than non-resident persons, are corporations), the quotient obtained when 1 is divided by the percentage set out in paragraph 123(1)(a) in respect of the year, and

(b) in any other case, 2.

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 12(6), will amend the definition "relevant tax factor" in subsec. 95(1) to read as above, applicable after 2000.

Technical Notes: The existing definition "relevant tax factor" provides that the "relevant tax factor" for an individual is 2 and for a corporation is the reciprocal of the basic corporate tax rate (i.e., 1/.38, or 2.63).

Under new section 94.1, the "relevant tax factor" is relevant in determining the extent to which relief is provided for investors in foreign investment entities in respect of income or profits taxes payable by those entities. (See, in this regard, subsection 94.1(8).) Partnerships may hold interests in such entities, in which case it may become necessary to compute a relevant tax factor in respect of a partnership.

The definition "relevant tax factor" is amended so that the relevant tax factor for a partnership is 2, except where its members consist entirely of corporations resident in Canada and non-resident persons. In the latter case, the "relevant tax factor" is 2.63.

This amendment applies after 2000.

"surplus entitlement percentage", at any time, of a taxpayer in respect of a foreign affiliate has the meaning assigned by regulation; and Regulations: 5905(13).

"taxation year" in relation to a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer means the period for which the accounts of the foreign affiliate have been ordinarily made up, but no such period may exceed 53 weeks.

Related Provisions: 95(1) — Foreign affiliate; 249 — Taxation year.

"trust company" includes a corporation that is resident in Canada and that is a loan company as defined in subsection 2(1) of the Canadian Payments Association Act.

History: The definition "trust company" added to subsec. 95(1) by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 122(4), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there was a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the amendment applies to taxation years of the foreign affiliate that end after 1994 unless

(a) the foreign affiliate had requested the change in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which the foreign affiliate was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the foreign affiliate's first taxation year that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time when that taxation year would have begun if the change had not occurred.

(i) the income

(A) is derived by the particular affiliate from activities that can reasonably be considered to be directly related to the active business activities carried on in a country other than Canada by

(I) any other non-resident corporation to which the particular affiliate and the taxpayer are related throughout the year, or

(II) the taxpayer, where the taxpayer is a life insurance corporation resident in Canada throughout the year, and

(B) would be included in computing the amount prescribed to be the earnings or loss from an active business carried on in a country other than Canada of

(I) the non-resident corporation to which the particular affiliate and the taxpayer are related throughout the year, or

(II) the taxpayer, where the taxpayer is a life insurance corporation resident in Canada throughout the year

if it were a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer and the income were earned by it,

(ii) the income is derived from amounts that were paid or payable, directly or indirectly, to the particular affiliate or a partnership of which the particular affiliate was a member

(A) by

(I) a non-resident corporation to which the particular affiliate and the taxpayer are related throughout the year, or

(II) a partnership of which a non-resident corporation to which the particular affiliate and the taxpayer are related throughout the year is a member and of which that non-resident corporation is not a specified member at any time in a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year to the extent that those amounts that were paid or payable are for expenditures that would, if the non-resident corporation or the partnership were a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, be deductible by it in the year or a subsequent year in computing the amounts prescribed to be its earnings or loss from an active business, other than an active business carried on in Canada,

(B) by

(I) another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year, or

(II) a partnership of which another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year is a member and of which that other affiliate is not a specified member at any time in a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year to the extent that those amounts that were paid or payable are for expenditures that were or would be, if the partnership were a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, deductible in the year or a subsequent taxation year by the other affiliate or the partnership in computing the amounts prescribed to be its earnings or loss from an active business, other than an active business carried on in Canada,

(C) by a partnership of which the particular affiliate is a member and of which the particular affiliate is not a specified member at any time in a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year to the extent that those amounts that were paid or payable were for expenditures that would be, if the partnership were a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, deductible in the year or a subsequent year in computing the amounts prescribed to be its earnings or loss from an active business carried on by it outside Canada,

(D) by another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer (in this clause referred to as the "second affiliate") to which the particular affiliate and the taxpayer are related throughout the year to the extent that the amounts are paid or payable by the second affiliate

(I) under a legal obligation to pay interest on borrowed money used for the purpose of earning income from property, or

(II) on an amount payable for property acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from property

where

(III) the property is excluded property of the second affiliate that is shares of a foreign affiliate (other than the particular affiliate) of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year (in this clause referred to as the "third affiliate"),

(IV) the second and third affiliates are resident in and subject to income taxation in the same country, and

(V) the amounts paid or payable are relevant in computing the liability for income taxes in that country of the members of a group of corporations composed of the second affiliate and one or more other foreign affiliates of the taxpayer (the shares of which are excluded property) that are resident and subject to income taxation in that country and in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year, or

(E) by the taxpayer, where the taxpayer is a life insurance corporation resident in Canada (in this clause referred to as the "insurer"), to the extent that those amounts that were paid or payable were for expenditures that are deductible in the year or a subsequent taxation year by the insurer in computing its income or loss from carrying on its life insurance business outside Canada and are not deductible in the year or a subsequent taxation year in computing its income or loss from carrying on its life insurance business in Canada,

(iii) the income is derived by the particular affiliate from the factoring of trade accounts receivable acquired by the particular affiliate or a partnership of which the particular affiliate was a member from a non-resident corporation to which the particular affiliate and the taxpayer are related throughout the year to the extent that the accounts receivable arose in the course of an active business carried on in a country other than Canada by the non-resident corporation, or

(iv) the income is derived by the particular affiliate from loans or lending assets acquired by the particular affiliate or a partnership of which the particular affiliate was a member from a non-resident corporation to which the particular affiliate and the taxpayer are related throughout the year to the extent that the loans or lending assets arose in the course of an active business carried on in a country other than Canada by the non-resident corporation;

(a.1) [income from sale of property] — in computing the income from a business other than an active business for a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer there shall be included the income of the affiliate for the year from the sale of property (which, for the purposes of this paragraph, includes the income of the affiliate for the year from the performance of services as an agent in relation to a purchase or sale of property) where

(i) it is reasonable to conclude that the cost to any person of the property (other than property that was manufactured, produced, grown, extracted or processed in Canada by the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length in the course of carrying on a business in Canada and that was sold to non-resident persons other than the affiliate or sold to the affiliate for sale to non-resident persons) is relevant in computing the income from a business carried on by the taxpayer or a person resident in Canada with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length or is relevant in computing the income from a business carried on in Canada by a non-resident person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, and

(ii) the property was not manufactured, produced, grown, extracted or processed in the country under whose laws the affiliate was formed or continued and exists and is governed and in which the affiliate's business is principally carried on, unless more than 90% of the gross revenue of the affiliate for the year from the sale of property is derived from the sale of such property (other than a property described in subparagraph (ii) the cost of which to any person is a cost referred to in subparagraph (i)) to persons with whom the affiliate deals at arm's length (which, for this purpose, includes a sale of property to a non-resident corporation with which the affiliate does not deal at arm's length for sale to persons with whom the affiliate deals at arm's length) and, where this paragraph applies to include income of the affiliate from the sale of property in the income of the affiliate from a business other than an active business,

(ii) a property situated in Canada, or

Proposed Amendment — 95(2)(a.3)

Letter from Department of Finance, December 18, 2000:

Dear Mr. Nikolakakis:

We are responding to your letters of July 19, July 26 and November 20, 2000 concerning paragraph (b) of the definition "investment business" in subsection 95(1), the interaction of subsection 95(2.2) and paragraph 95(2)(f), and the scope of paragraph 95(2)(a.3) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In your letter of November 20, 2000, you requested that we amend subsection 95(2)(a.3) to preclude its application in respect of an affiliate's income from lease obligations relating to the use of property outside of Canada by persons having no material connection with the relevant taxpayer. You also requested that we confirm our willingness to recommend such an amendment to the Minister of Finance.

We are sympathetic to your request. Therefore, it will be recommended to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended. The amendment will provide that paragraph 95(2)(a.3) of the Act does not apply to the income derived by a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer from lease obligations of persons (other than the taxpayer or persons that do not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer) relating to the use of property outside of Canada. It will be recommended that the amendment be made effective for taxation years of foreign affiliates that begin after 1999. It will also be recommended that a taxpayer be permitted to elect to have the amendment apply in respect of all the foreign affiliates of the taxpayer in respect of their taxation years commencing after 1994, which was the application date when it was first introduced.

Thank you for bringing these matters to our attention.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(a.4) [income from partnership debt and lease obligations] — in computing the income from a business other than an active business for a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer there shall be included (to the extent not included under paragraph (a.3) in such income of the affiliate for the year) that proportion of the income of the affiliate for the year derived directly or indirectly from indebtedness and lease obligations (which, for the purposes of this paragraph, includes the income of the affiliate for the year from the purchase and sale of indebtedness and lease obligations on its own account) in respect of a business carried on outside Canada by a partnership (any portion of the income or loss of which for fiscal periods of the partnership that end in the year is included or would, if the partnership had an income or loss for such fiscal periods, be included directly or indirectly in computing the income or loss of the taxpayer or a person resident in Canada with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length) that

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is the income or loss of the partnership for fiscal periods of the partnership that end in the year that are included directly or indirectly in computing the income or loss of the taxpayer or a person resident in Canada with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is the income or loss of the partnership for fiscal periods of the partnership that end in the year

unless more than 90% of the gross revenue of the affiliate derived directly or indirectly from indebtedness and lease obligations was derived directly or indirectly from indebtedness and lease obligations of non-resident persons with whom the affiliate deals at arm's length (other than indebtedness and lease obligations of a partnership described in this paragraph) and where this paragraph applies to include a proportion of the income of the affiliate for the year in the income of the affiliate from a business other than an active business

(iii) those activities carried out to earn such income of the affiliate for the year shall be deemed to be a separate business, other than an active business, carried on by the affiliate, and

(iv) any income of the affiliate that pertains to or is incident to that business shall be deemed to be income from a business other than an active business and for the purpose of this paragraph, where the income or loss of a partnership for a fiscal period that ends in the year is nil, the proportion of the income of the affiliate that is to be included in the income of the affiliate for the year from a business other than an active business shall be determined as if the partnership had income of $1,000,000 for that fiscal period;

(b) [services deemed not active business] — where a controlled foreign affiliate of a taxpayer provides services or an undertaking to provide services and

(i) the amount paid or payable in consideration therefor

(A) is deductible in computing the income from a business carried on in Canada by any person in relation to whom the affiliate is a controlled foreign affiliate or by a person related to that person, or

(B) was paid or payable by a person other than the taxpayer and can reasonably be considered to relate to an amount that was deductible by the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer in computing the income of that taxpayer or person from a business carried on in Canada, or

(ii) the services are performed or are to be performed by any person referred to in subparagraph (i) who is an individual resident in Canada, the provision of those services or the undertaking to provide those services shall be deemed to be a separate business, other than an active business, carried on by the affiliate, and any income from that business or that pertains to or is incident to that business shall be deemed to be income from a business other than an active business;

(ii) the cost to the disposing affiliate of any shares of any class of the capital stock of the acquiring affiliate receivable by the disposing affiliate as consideration for the disposition shall be deemed to be that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the total of the relevant cost bases to it, immediately before the disposition, of the shares disposed of exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration receivable for the disposition (other than shares of the capital stock of the acquiring affiliate) that

(A) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of those shares of the acquiring affiliate of that class

is of

(B) the fair market value, immediately after the disposition, of all shares of the capital stock of the acquiring affiliate receivable by the disposing affiliate as consideration for the disposition,

(iii) the disposing affiliate's proceeds of disposition of the shares shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the cost to it of all shares and other property receivable by it from the acquiring affiliate as consideration for the disposition, and

(iv) the cost to the acquiring affiliate of the shares acquired from the disposing affiliate shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the disposing affiliate's proceeds of disposition referred to in subparagraph (iii);

(d) [foreign merger] — where there has been a foreign merger in which the shares owned by a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation that was a predecessor foreign corporation immediately before the merger were exchanged for or became shares of the capital stock of the new foreign corporation or the foreign parent corporation, subsection 87(4) applies to the foreign affiliate as if the references in that subsection to

(ii) "predecessor corporation" were read as "predecessor foreign corporation",

(iii) "new corporation" were read as "new foreign corporation or the foreign parent corporation", and

(i) each capital property of the new foreign corporation that was a capital property of a predecessor foreign corporation immediately before the merger shall be deemed to have been disposed of by the predecessor foreign corporation immediately before the merger for proceeds of disposition equal to the cost amount of the property to the predecessor foreign corporation at that time; and

(ii) for the purposes of this subsection and the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection (1), the new foreign corporation shall, with respect to any disposition by it of any capital property to which subparagraph (i) applied, be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the predecessor foreign corporation that owned the property immediately before the merger, but for greater certainty nothing in this paragraph shall affect the determination of whether any property of a predecessor foreign corporation is disposed of on a foreign merger other than one to which this paragraph applies;

(e) [windup of foreign affiliate] — except as otherwise provided in paragraph (e.1), where on the dissolution of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer (in this paragraph referred to as the "disposing affiliate") one or more shares of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer have been disposed of to a shareholder that is another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer,

(i) the disposing affiliate's proceeds of disposition of each such share and the cost thereof to the shareholder shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the relevant cost base to the disposing affiliate of the share immediately before the dissolution, and

(ii) the shareholder's proceeds of disposition of the shares of the disposing affiliate shall be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which the total of

(A) the cost to the shareholder of the shares of the other foreign affiliate, as determined in subparagraph (i), and

(B) the fair market value of any property (other than the shares referred to in clause (A)) disposed of by the disposing affiliate to the shareholder on the dissolution,

(e.1) [windup of foreign affiliate] — where there has been a liquidation and a dissolution of a foreign affiliate (in this paragraph referred to as the "disposing affiliate") of a taxpayer in respect of which, immediately before the liquidation, the taxpayer's surplus entitlement percentage was not less than 90%, other than a liquidation and a dissolution where, under the income tax law of the country in which the disposing affiliate was resident immediately before the liquidation, a gain or loss was recognized by the disposing affiliate in respect of any capital property distributed by it in the course of the liquidation to another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer resident in that country, the following rules apply:

(i) each capital property of the disposing affiliate that was so distributed to another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer shall be deemed to have been disposed of by the disposing affiliate for proceeds of disposition equal to the cost amount of the property to the disposing affiliate immediately before the distribution,

(ii) for the purposes of this subsection and the definition "foreign accrual property income" in subsection (1), the other affiliate shall, with respect to any disposition by it of capital property to which subparagraph (i) applied, be deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, the disposing affiliate, and

(iii) the other affiliate's proceeds of disposition of the shares of the capital stock of the disposing affiliate disposed of in the course of the liquidation shall be deemed to be the adjusted cost base of those shares to the other affiliate immediately before the disposition;

(f) [capital gains and losses of foreign affiliate] — except as otherwise provided in this subsection, each taxable capital gain and each allowable capital loss of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer from the disposition of property shall be computed in accordance with Part I, read without reference to section 26 of the Income Tax Application Rules, as though the affiliate were resident in Canada

(i) where that gain or loss is the gain or loss of a controlled foreign affiliate from the disposition of property to which paragraph (c), (d) or (e) or 88(3)(a) applies or from any other disposition of property (other than excluded property), in Canadian currency, and

(ii) in any other case, on the assumption that the currency of the country in which the affiliate is resident or such other currency as is reasonable in the circumstances (in this subparagraph referred to as the "calculating currency") were the currency of Canada and, where subsection 39(2) is applicable, on the further assumptions that

(A) the reference in that subsection to "the currency or currencies of one or more countries other than Canada relative to Canadian currency" were read as a reference to "one or more currencies other than the calculating currency relative to the calculating currency", and

(B) the references therein to "of a country other than Canada" were read as references to "of a country other than the country of the calculating currency", except that in computing any such gain or loss from the disposition of property owned by the affiliate at the time it last became a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer there shall not be included such portion of the gain or loss, as the case may be, as may reasonably be considered to have accrued during the period that the affiliate was not a foreign affiliate of

(iii) the taxpayer,

(iv) any person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length,

(v) any person with whom the taxpayer would not have been dealing at arm's length if the person had been in existence after the taxpayer came into existence,

(vi) any predecessor corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) of the taxpayer or of a person described in subparagraph (iv) or (v), or

(vii) any predecessor corporation (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 87(2)(l.2)) of the taxpayer or of a person described in subparagraph (iv) or (v);

Proposed Amendment — 95(2)(f)

Letter from Department of Finance, December 18, 2000: See under 95(2.2).

Proposed Amendment — 95(2)(f)

Letter from Department of Finance, February 12, 2001:

Dear Mr. Nikolakakis:

. . . . .

Scope of Paragraph 95(2)(f)

You are also concerned that pre-acquisition transactions on income account rather than on capital account can result in FAPI in the year in which a non-resident corporation becomes a foreign affiliate. You are concerned that paragraph 95(2)(k) does not fully address this concern and as a result you are requesting an amendment to paragraph 95(2)(f) of the Act. You want to extend the scope of paragraph 95(2)(f) so that FAPI will not include income accruing or realised before a particular non-resident corporation becomes a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada.

Your request has merit and, consequently, we will recommend to the Minister of Finance (the "Minister") that an amendment be made to paragraph 95(2)(f) of the Act. This amendment will have the effect of excluding from the FAPI of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer the income of the foreign affiliate that is accrued or realised before it becomes a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer.

[See also under 95(2)(i) — ed.]

. . . . .

Effective Date

It will be recommended that the amendments be made effective for taxation years commencing after announcement date. It will also be recommended that taxpayer be permitted to elect to have the amendments apply to the 1994 and subsequent taxation years of foreign affiliates where the taxpayer so elects in respect of all the taxpayer's foreign affiliates.

Thank you for taking the time to express your concerns and we trust this letter addresses most of them.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(g) [currency fluctuation] — where, because of a fluctuation in the value of the currency of a country other than Canada relative to the value of Canadian currency, a particular foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout a taxation year of the particular affiliate has earned income or incurred a loss or realized a capital gain or a capital loss in the year, in reference to

(i) a debt obligation that was owing to

(A) another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year or any other non-resident corporation to which the particular affiliate and the taxpayer are related throughout the year (referred to in this paragraph as a "qualified foreign corporation"), or

(B) the particular affiliate by a qualified foreign corporation,

(ii) the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of a share of the capital stock of, or the reduction of the capital of, the particular affiliate or another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year, or

(iii) the disposition to a qualified foreign corporation of a share of the capital stock of another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest throughout the year, that income, gain or loss, as the case may be, is deemed to be nil;

Proposed Amendment — 95(2)(g)

Letter from Department of Finance, February 12, 2001:

Dear Mr. Nikolakakis:

. . . . .

Foreign Currency Reporters

You are concerned that paragraph 95(2)(g) might not apply to treat as nil any foreign exchange gain or loss realized by a foreign affiliate where the affiliate's calculating currency and the currency in which the relevant loan or other instrument are both foreign currencies. This would have an impact on the surpluses of a foreign affiliate in respect of a corporation resident in Canada.

You have requested the extension of paragraph 95(2)(g) to cover foreign-to-foreign currency fluctuations. However, it is not clear to us that the rationale for paragraph 95(2)(g), which was intended to provide relief in respect of foreign exchange gains that would otherwise be considered to arise upon the conversion into Canadian currency, extends to cases involving the affiliate's calculating currency.

Hedging Arrangements

You are concerned that although paragraph 95(2)(g) applies to foreign exchange gains and losses arising in respect of the primary transaction, it does not apply in respect of any hedging arrangements intended to neutralize the foreign exchange exposure arising in connection with such transactions. You feel this is inappropriate and to address this concern the scope of paragraph 95(2)(g) ought to be expanded to cover hedging arrangements connected to the primary transaction.

We agree, and are prepared to recommend an amendment to the Act comparable to paragraph 95(2)(g) which would apply to deem foreign currency hedging gains and losses to be nil where they are connected to foreign currency gains and losses deemed to be nil under paragraph 95(2)(g).

Effective Date

It will be recommended that the amendments be made effective for taxation years commencing after announcement date. It will also be recommended that taxpayer be permitted to elect to have the amendments apply to the 1994 and subsequent taxation years of foreign affiliates where the taxpayer so elects in respect of all the taxpayer's foreign affiliates.

Thank you for taking the time to express your concerns and we trust this letter addresses most of them.

Yours sincerely,

(xii) the amount determined under paragraph 94.2(1)(b) did not include the portion of that amount that can reasonably be considered to have accrued during the period that the particular affiliate was not a foreign affiliate of any person described in any of subparagraphs (f)(iii) to (vii);

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 12(7), will add para. 95(2)(g.2) [expected to change to (g.3)], applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 2000 [to be changed to "after 2001"; see Sept 7/00 news release after 94.3].

Technical Notes: Subsection 95(2) provides rules for determining the income of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada. These rules apply for the purposes of sections 90 to 95.

The rules in new paragraph 95(2)(g.2) set out the manner in which sections 94.1 to 94.3 apply for the purpose of computing the FAPI of a particular foreign affiliate of a Canadian taxpayer for a particular taxation year of the affiliate:

- The exemption in the definition "exempt interest" for controlled foreign affiliates is treated as if it referred only to controlled foreign affiliates of the Canadian taxpayer (not of the particular affiliate). [Subparagraph 95(2)(g.2)(i).]
- The measures in sections 94.1 and 94.2 that would otherwise restrict their application to residents in Canada are ignored. [Subparagraph 95(2)(g.2)(ii), (x) and (xi).]
- The Canadian taxpayer, rather than the particular affiliate, claims deductions relevant in determining the particular affiliate's income allocation or loss allocation in respect of a participating interest in a foreign investment entity held by the particular affiliate. [Subparagraphs 95(2)(g.2)(iii) and (iv).] These claims are only relevant for taxation years of the particular affiliate that begin after 2000, once the particular affiliate holds an interest in the foreign investment entity and is a controlled foreign affiliate of the Canadian taxpayer. [Clause 95(2)(g.2)(viii)(B).]
- The exclusion of dividends under paragraph 94.1(5)A(g) applies only where the Canadian taxpayer is resident in Canada, in connection with dividends received by the particular affiliate from foreign affiliates of the Canadian taxpayer (not of the particular affiliate) in which the Canadian taxpayer (not the particular affiliate) has a qualifying interest (determined under paragraph 95(2)(m)). [Subparagraphs 95(2)(g.2)(v) and (vi).]

- In the event that the particular affiliate has a participating interest in a particular foreign investment entity and the particular entity has a participating interest in another non-resident entity, the application of sections 94.1 and 94.2 to the particular entity is determined as if the exclusion from the application of those sections for controlled foreign affiliates referred to in paragraph (a) of the definition "exempt interest" in subsection 94.1(1) were for controlled foreign affiliates of the Canadian taxpayer (not controlled foreign affiliates of the particular entity). [Clause 95(2)(g.2)(viii)(A).] This rule applies instead of the rule in paragraph 94.1(5)A(i). [Subparagraph 95(2)(g.2)(vii).]
- The Canadian taxpayer (rather than the particular affiliate) is permitted to make an election under subsection 94.1(4) or subparagraph 94.2(4)(a)D(i) in connection with the particular affiliate's participating interests in foreign investment entities. [Subparagraph 95(2)(g.2)(ix).]
- The particular affiliate's deferral amount determined under paragraph 94.2(1)(b) does not include the portion of the amount that can reasonably be considered to have accrued during the period that the particular affiliate was not a foreign affiliate of the Canadian taxpayer and certain other specified persons. [Subparagraph 95(2)(g.2)(xii).]

(h) [Repealed]

(i) [settlement of debt relating to excluded property] — any gain or loss of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer from the settlement or extinguishment of a debt that related at all times to the acquisition of excluded property shall be deemed to be a gain or loss from the disposition of excluded property;

Proposed Amendment — 95(2)(i)

Letter from Department of Finance, February 12, 2001:

Dear Mr. Nikolakakis:

Relationship between 39(2) and 95(2)(f)

You have requested that the relationship between subsection 39(2) and paragraph 95(2)(f) of the Act be clarified.

Where subsection 39(2) applies, it deems the taxpayer to have a gain or loss from the disposition of "currency". You point out that it is not clear how paragraph 95(2)(f) applies in respect of such a gain, since it is not clear that the "currency" referred to in subsection 39(2) would be regarded as excluded property. Paragraph 95(2)(i) deems any gain or loss of a foreign affiliate from the settlement or extinguishment of a debt that related to the acquisition of excluded property to be a gain or loss from the disposition of excluded property. Subsection 39(2) and paragraph 95(2)(i) could both apply to the same transaction.

You have requested that we amend the Act to require a separate calculation of foreign exchange gains or losses with respect to excluded property.

We are prepared to recommend an amendment to paragraph 95(2)(i) that would deem any gain or loss of a foreign affiliate arising under subsection 39(2) to be a gain or loss from the disposition of excluded property where the gain or loss is from the settlement or extinguishment of a debt related to excluded property or of related hedging agreements. We are also prepared to recommend a new paragraph in subsection 95(2) that would require a separate determination of foreign exchange gains and losses under subsection 39(2) for excluded property and other property.

Scope of 95(2)(i)

You are also concerned that paragraph 95(2)(i) does not apply where loan proceeds were used for legitimate active business purposes other than to acquire excluded property. You are requesting that we amend paragraph 95(2)(i) to include indebtedness that was used "principally for the purpose of producing income from an active business".

We will recommend an amendment to paragraph 95(2)(i) of the Act which will treat debt as excluded property where all or substantially all of the proceeds of the indebtedness was used for earning active business income, acquiring excluded property or a combination thereof.

Effective Date

It will be recommended that the amendments be made effective for taxation years commencing after announcement date. It will also be recommended that taxpayer be permitted to elect to have the amendments apply to the 1994 and subsequent taxation years of foreign affiliates where the taxpayer so elects in respect of all the taxpayer's foreign affiliates.

Thank you for taking the time to express your concerns and we trust this letter addresses most of them.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(j) [ACB of partnership interest] — the adjusted cost base to a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer of an interest in a partnership at any time shall be such amount as is prescribed by regulation;

(k) [change in business — fresh start rule] — where, in a particular taxation year, a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer

(ii) is deemed by paragraph (a.1), (a.2), (a.3) or (a.4) to carry on a separate business, other than an active business, and, in the preceding taxation year, that paragraph did not apply to deem the affiliate to be carrying on that separate business,

(iii) the affiliate shall be deemed

(A) to have begun to carry on the foreign business in Canada at the later of the time the particular year began or the time that it began to carry on the foreign business, and

(B) to have carried on the foreign business in Canada throughout that part of the particular year and each such subsequent taxation year in which the foreign business was carried on by it,

(iv) where the foreign business of the affiliate is a business in respect of which, if the foreign business were carried on in Canada, the affiliate would be required by law to report to a regulating authority in Canada such as the Superintendent of Financial Institutions or a similar authority of a province, the affiliate shall be deemed to have been required by law to report to and to have been subject to the supervision of such regulating authority, and

(v) paragraphs 138(11.91)(c) to (f) apply to the affiliate for the particular year in respect of the foreign business as if

(i) indebtedness owing by persons with whom the affiliate deals at arm's length who are resident in the country in which the affiliate was formed or continued and exists and is governed and in which the business is principally carried on, or

(ii) trade accounts receivable owing by persons with whom the affiliate deals at arm's length,

(ii) shares of the affiliate having a fair market value of not less than 10% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the affiliate and for the purpose of this paragraph

(iii) where, at any time, shares of a corporation are owned or are deemed for the purposes of this paragraph to be owned by another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "holding corporation"), those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by each shareholder of the holding corporation in a proportion equal to the proportion of all such shares that

(A) the fair market value of the shares of the holding corporation owned at that time by the shareholder

is of

(B) the fair market value of all the issued shares of the holding corporation outstanding at that time,

(iv) where, at any time, shares of a corporation are property of a partnership or are deemed for the purposes of this paragraph to be property of a partnership, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by each member of the partnership in a proportion equal to the proportion of all such shares that

(A) the member's share of the income or loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time

is of

(B) the income or loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time and for the purpose of this subparagraph, where the income and loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time are nil, that proportion shall be computed as if the partnership had income for the period in the amount of $1,000,000, and

(v) where, at any time, a person is a holder of convertible property issued by the affiliate before June 23, 1994 the terms of which confer on the holder the right to exchange the convertible property for shares of the affiliate and the taxpayer elects in its return of income for its first taxation year that ends after 1994 to have the provisions of this subparagraph apply to the taxpayer in respect of all the convertible property issued by the affiliate and outstanding at that time, each holder shall, in respect of the convertible property held by it at that time, be deemed to have, immediately before that time, tion authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation; or

(b) the first taxation year of the particular foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that it would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation year of the particular foreign affiliate,

(a.3) in computing the income from a business other than an active business for a taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer there shall be included the income of the affiliate for the year derived directly or indirectly from indebtedness (other than a specified deposit with a prescribed financial institution) and lease obligations (which, for the purposes of this paragraph, includes the income of the affiliate for the year from the purchase and sale of indebtedness and lease obligations on its own account)

(i) of persons resident in Canada, or

(ii) in respect of businesses carried on in Canada

unless more than 90% of the gross revenue of the affiliate derived directly or indirectly from indebtedness (other than a specified deposit with a prescribed financial institution) and lease obligations was derived directly or indirectly from indebtedness and lease obligations of non-resident persons with whom the affiliate deals at arm's length and, where this paragraph applies to include income of the affiliate for the year in the income of the affiliate from a business other than an active business,

(i) another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or any other non-resident corporation with which the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, or

(ii) the affiliate by another foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or any other non-resident corporation with which the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length,

(h) [share transactions — currency fluctuation] — where, by virtue of a fluctuation in the value of the currency of a country other than Canada relative to the value of the Canadian dollar, a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer has realized a taxable capital gain or an allowable capital loss in a taxation year on

The para. formerly read:

(d) where there has been a foreign merger in which the shares owned by a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation that was a predecessor foreign corporation immediately before the merger were exchanged for or became shares of the capital stock of the new foreign corporation, subsection 87(4) applies to the foreign affiliate as if the references in that subsection to

Proposed Amendment — 95(2.2)

Letter from Department of Finance, December 18, 2000:

Dear Mr. Nikolakakis:

We are responding to your letters of July 19, July 26 and November 20, 2000 concerning paragraph (b) of the definition "investment business" in subsection 95(1), the interaction of subsection 95(2.2) and paragraph 95(2)(f), and the scope of paragraph 95(2)(a.3) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In your letter of July 26, 2000, you informed us that, in administering subsection 95(2)(f) of the Act, the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency was not applying subsection 95(2.2) of the Act. While the scope of subsection 95(2.2) of the Act appears to encompass paragraph 95(2)(f), the provision is not completely suitable for that paragraph. Consequently, you have requested that we recommend an amendment to the Act that would introduce a new subsection similar to subsection 95(2.2) that would be more suitable for paragraph 95(2)(f) of the Act. You have also requested that we confirm our willingness to recommend such an amendment to the Minister of Finance.

For the reasons cited in your letter, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to introduce a new subsection which will specifically address the situation outlined in your letter. The effect of this provision would be to treat a non-resident corporation as becoming a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer at the beginning of the non-resident corporation's taxation year in which it last became a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer. This provision would apply where it became a foreign affiliate as a result of an acquisition of shares and it remained a foreign affiliate at the end of the year. It will not apply for the purpose of determining if any taxable capital gain or allowable capital loss realized by the non-resident corporation in that year or a subsequent year may reasonably be considered to have accrued during the period that the non-resident corporation was not a foreign affiliate of the persons described in subparagraphs 95(2)(f)(iii) to (vii) of the Act. It will be recommended that this new provision have application to taxation years of foreign affiliates ending after 1999.

Thank you for bringing these matters to our attention.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 95(2.2)

Letter from Department of Finance, February 12, 2001:

Dear Mr. Nikolakakis:

Relationship between 95(2.2)(b) and 251(5)(b)

You are concerned that the application of paragraph 251(5)(b) to a right to acquire shares makes paragraph 95(2.2)(b) of the Act ineffective once the right is exercised and control of non-resident corporation is acquired in a taxation year. Paragraph 95(2.2)(b) is intended to address the "related throughout the year" requirement in paragraph 95(2)(a) of the Act in respect of certain non-resident corporations which have become, or have ceased to be related to a particular corporation resident in Canada and a foreign affiliate of such a corporation during the taxation year. You are requesting that we amend paragraph 95(2.2)(b) so that it would no longer be subject to paragraph 251(5)(b) as it applies in respect of the right that results in the acquisition of the shares.

We are prepared to recommend to the Minister that paragraph 95(2.2)(b) be amended to deal with this concern. The amendment would ensure that the existence of a right to acquire shares of a non-resident corporation referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act that was exercised and the exercise of which resulted in the non-resident corporation becoming related in the year to the corporation resident in Canada would not preclude subsection 95(2.2)(b) from deeming the non-resident to be related to the corporation resident in Canada throughout the year.

Precise effect of 95(2.2)

You are concerned that the scope of paragraph 95(2.2) of the Act is not adequately defined. As a consequence, you are recommending that the subsection be amended to ensure that it does not apply for the purposes of paragraph 95(2)(a) of the Act in respect of transactions occurring before a non-resident corporation actually becomes related to the corporation resident in Canada.

We agree that clarification would be helpful and are prepared to recommend another amendment to subsection 95(2.2) of the Act, whereby transactions described in paragraph 95(2)(a) that occur before a non-resident corporation becomes related are excluded from the scope of subsection 95(2.2).

Effective Date

It will be recommended that the amendments be made effective for taxation years commencing after announcement date. It will also be recommended that taxpayer be permitted to elect to have the amendments apply to the 1994 and subsequent taxation years of foreign affiliates where the taxpayer so elects in respect of all the taxpayer's foreign affiliates.

Thank you for taking the time to express your concerns and we trust this letter addresses most of them.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

(a) the income is derived by the affiliate in the course of a business conducted principally with persons with whom the affiliate deals at arm's length carried on by it as a foreign bank, a trust company, a credit union, an insurance corporation or a trader or dealer in securities or commodities, the activities of which are regulated in the country under whose laws the affiliate was formed or continued and exists and is governed and in which the business is principally carried on, and

(b) the income is derived by the affiliate from trading or dealing in the indebtedness (which, for this purpose, consists of income from the actual trading or dealing in the indebtedness and interest earned by the affiliate during a short term holding period on indebtedness acquired by it for the purpose of the trading or dealing) with persons (in this subsection referred to as "regular customers") with whom it deals at arm's length who were resident in a country other than Canada in which it and any competitor (which is resident in the country in which the affiliate is resident and regulated in the same manner the affiliate is regulated in the country under whose laws the affiliate was formed or continued and exists and is governed and in which its business is principally carried on) compete and have a substantial market presence, and, for the purpose of this subsection, an acquisition of indebtedness from the taxpayer shall be deemed to be part of the trading or dealing in indebtedness described in paragraph (b) where the indebtedness is acquired by the affiliate and sold to regular customers and the terms and conditions of the acquisition and the sale are substantially the same as the terms and conditions of similar acquisitions and sales made by the affiliate in transactions with persons with whom it deals at arm's length.

History: Subsec. 95(2.4) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 46(6), applicable to taxation years of foreign affiliates of taxpayers that begin after 1994 except that, where there has been a change in the taxation year of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, the new subsection applies to taxation years of such foreign affiliate of the taxpayer that end after 1994, unless

(b) the first taxation year of such foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time that that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation of such foreign affiliate.

(2.5) Definitions for para. (2)(a.3) — For the purpose of paragraph (2)(a.3),

"excluded income" and "excluded revenue" for a taxation year in respect of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer mean, respectively, income or revenue, that is

(a) derived directly or indirectly from a specified deposit with a prescribed financial institution,

(b) derived directly or indirectly from a lease obligation of a person (other than the taxpayer or a person that does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer) relating to the use of property outside Canada, or

(c) included in computing the affiliate's income for the year from carrying on a business through a permanent establishment in Canada;

"specified deposit" means a deposit of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada with a prescribed financial institution resident in Canada where

(b) the income from the deposit is income of the affiliate for the year that would, but for paragraph (2)(a.3), be income from an active business carried on by the affiliate principally with persons with whom the affiliate deals at arm's length in the country under whose laws the affiliate was formed or continued and exists and is governed and in which the business is principally carried on by it and the deposit was held by the affiliate in the course of carrying on that part of the business conducted with non-resident persons with whom the affiliate deals at arm's length or that part of the business conducted with a person with whom the affiliate was related where it can be demonstrated that the related person used or held the funds deposited in the course of a business carried on by the related person with non-resident persons with whom the related person and the affiliate deal at arm's length.

(ii) the taxpayer had authority to act for the partnership;

(b) unless the agreement, designation or election is invalid because of paragraph (a), each other person who was a member of the partnership during the fiscal period shall be deemed to have made or executed the agreement, designation or election; and

(a) where, at or before the particular time, the partnership held depreciable property of a prescribed class (other than taxable Canadian property),

(i) no amount shall be included in determining the amounts for any of A, C, D and F to I in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection 13(21) in respect of the acquisition or disposition before the particular time of the property, and

(9) Idem — For the purpose of applying subsection (8), where it can reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons that there is a member of the partnership who is resident in Canada is to avoid the application of that subsection, the member shall be deemed not to be resident in Canada.

Proposed Amendment — 96(9)

(9) Application of foreign partnership rule — For the purposes of applying subsection (8) and this subsection,

(i) each person or partnership that is, at that time, a member of the particular partnership is deemed to be a member of the other partnership at that time,

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 13(3), will amend subsec. 96(9) to read as above, applicable to fiscal periods that begin after June 22, 2000.

Technical Notes: Subsection 96(8) provides rules that apply where, at a particular time, a Canadian resident becomes a member of a partnership, or a person who is a member of such a partnership becomes a resident of Canada. Where, immediately before the particular time no member of the partnership was resident in Canada, these rules apply in computing the income of the partnership for fiscal periods ending after the particular time. In general terms, the rules in subsection 96(8) are designed to prevent losses accrued while a partnership had no Canadian resident partners from being used to reduce Canadian income tax liabilities.

Subsection 96(9) provides that, where one of the main reasons that there is a member of the partnership who is resident in Canada is to avoid the application of subsection 96(8), that member will, for the purpose of applying subsection 96(8), be considered not to be resident in Canada.

Subsection 96(9) is amended to provide an explicit look-through rule for the purposes of subsection 96(8) so that members of partnerships may be identified through one or more tiers of partnerships which are members of other partnerships. Amended subsection 96(9) is consistent with new subsection 94.2(8).

History: Subsec. 96(9) added by 1994, c. 21, s. 44, applicable to a particular partnership where a person or partnership becomes a member of the particular partnership after December 21, 1992, or where a member of the particular partnership becomes resident in Canada after August 30, 1993.

Proposed subsection 104(1.1) applies for the purpose of identifying beneficiaries under a trust for the purpose of subsection 104(1), as well as for the purposes of proposed subparagraph 73(1.02)(b)(ii) and proposed paragraph 107.4(1)(e). Those provisions use the expression "beneficiary". Proposed subsection 104(1.1) deems a person or partnership not to be a "beneficiary" under a trust at a particular time for the purposes of those various provisions where the person or partnership is beneficially interested in the trust at the particular time solely because of a contingent right described in subsection 104(1.1).

It is proposed that subsection 104(1.1) be amended to also apply for the purpose of paragraph (b) of the definition "resident beneficiary" in new subsection 94(1), so that contingent rights described in subsection 104(1.1) will not result in a person being treated as a "resident beneficiary". For more detail on the implications of status as a resident beneficiary, see new subsection 94(3).

(2) Taxed as individual — A trust shall, for the purposes of this Act, and without affecting the liability of the trustee or legal representative for that person's own income tax, be deemed to be in respect of the trust property an individual, but where there is more than one trust and

(a) substantially all of the property of the various trusts has been received from one person, and

(b) the various trusts are conditioned so that the income thereof accrues or will ultimately accrue to the same beneficiary, or group or class of beneficiaries, such of the trustees as the Minister may designate shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be in respect of all the trusts an individual whose property is the property of all the trusts and whose income is the income of all the trusts.

Related Provisions: 127.53(2), (3) — Multiple trusts must share minimum tax exemption; 248(1)"individual" — Trust is an individual.

Proposed Addition — 104(4.1)

(4.1) Mark-to-market property — Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the determination of whether property is capital property for the purpose of subsection (4) shall be made without reference to subparagraph 39(1)(a)(ii.3) and section 94.2.

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 14(2), will add subsec. 104(4.1), applicable to trust taxation years that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: New subsection 104(4.1) provides that, for the purposes of the 21-year deemed disposition rule in subsection 104(4), a property's status as capital property is determined without reference to new subparagraph 39(1)(a)(ii.3) and new section 94.2. The latter provisions have the effect of providing that interests in foreign investment entities to which subsection 94.2 applies are not classified as capital property. In the event that such an interest is deemed to have been disposed of because of the application of subsection 104(4), there is a recognition of the "deferral amount" pursuant to subsection 94.2(4).

This amendment applies to trust taxation years that begin after 2000.

(5) Depreciable property [deemed disposition] — Every trust is, at the end of each day determined under subsection (4) in respect of the trust, deemed to have disposed of each property of the trust (other than exempt property) that was a depreciable property of a prescribed class of the trust for proceeds equal to its fair market value at the end of that day and to have reacquired the property immediately after that day at a capital cost (in this subsection referred to as the "deemed capital cost") equal to that fair market value, except that

(a) where the amount that was the capital cost to the trust of the property immediately before the end of the day (in this paragraph referred to as the "actual capital cost") exceeds the deemed capital cost to the trust of the property, for the purpose of sections 13 and 20 and any regulations made for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(a) as they apply in respect of the property at any subsequent time,

(i) the capital cost to the trust of the property on its reacquisition shall be deemed to be the amount that was the actual capital cost to the trust of the property, and

(ii) the excess shall be deemed to have been allowed under paragraph 20(1)(a) to the trust in respect of the property in computing its income for taxation years that ended before the trust reacquired the property;

(b) for the purposes of this subsection, the reference to "at the end of a taxation year" in subsection 13(1) shall be read as a reference to "at the particular time a trust is deemed by subsection 104(5) to have disposed of depreciable property of a prescribed class"; and

(c) for the purpose of computing the excess, if any, referred to in subsection 13(1) at the end of the taxation year of a trust that included a day on which the trust is deemed by this subsection to have disposed of a depreciable property of a prescribed class, any amount that, on that day, was included in the trust's income for the year under subsection 13(1) as it reads because of paragraph (b), shall be deemed to be an amount included under section 13 in the trust's income for a preceding taxation year.

Related Provisions: 70(9.1) — Transfer of farm property from spouse's trust to settlor's children; 104(5.3) — Election by trust to postpone deemed disposition; 104(5.8) — Trust transfers; 104(6) — Deduction in computing income of trust; 108(1) — "accumulating income"; 108(1)"cost amount"(a.1) — Cost amount before death of taxpayer; 108(1)"trust" — Exclusions to meaning of "trust"; 108(6) — Where terms of trust are varied.

History: The opening words of subsec. 104(5) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 78(7), applicable to days after December 23, 1998 that are determined under subsection 104(4), as amended. The opening words formerly read:

(5) Idem [depreciable property] — Every trust shall, at the end of each day determined under subsection (4) in respect of the trust, be deemed to have disposed of each property of the trust that was a depreciable property of a prescribed class of the trust for proceeds equal to its fair market value at the end of that day and to have reacquired the property immediately thereafter at a capital cost (in this subsection referred to as the "deemed capital cost") equal to that fair market value, except that

Subparas. 104(5)(a)(i) and (ii) substituted by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 46(1), applicable to days determined under subsec. 104(4) that are after 1992. Those subparas. formerly read:

(i) the capital cost to the trust of the property shall be deemed to be the amount that was the actual capital cost to the trust of the property, and

(ii) the excess shall be deemed to have been allowed to the trust in respect of the property under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing income for taxation years before the reacquisition by the trust of the property, and any other amount allowed to the trust in respect of the property under that paragraph in computing income for those years shall be deemed to be nil;

Subsec. 104(5) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 42(1), applicable to taxation years of trusts ending after February 11, 1991 except that with respect to those days determined under subsec. 104(4) (as amended) that are before 1993, subsec. 104(5) shall be read without reference to the amendments made by subsection (1), and the portion of subsec. 104(5) preceding para. (c) shall be read as follows:

(5) Every trust shall, at the end of each day determined under subsection (4) in respect of the trust, be deemed to have disposed of all depreciable property of a prescribed class of the trust for proceeds equal to

(a) where the fair market value of that property at the end of the day exceeds the undepreciated capital cost thereof to the trust at the end of the day, the amount of that undepreciated capital cost plus ½ of the excess, and

(b) in any other case, the fair market value of that property at the end of that day plus ½ of the amount, if any, by which the undepreciated capital cost thereof to the trust at the end of that day exceeds that fair market value,

and to have reacquired each such depreciable property of that class immediately thereafter at a capital cost (in this subsection referred to as the "deemed capital cost") equal to that proportion of the proceeds determined under paragraph (a) or (b), as the case may be, that the amount that was the fair market value of that property is of the total of the amounts that were the fair market values of all properties of that class at the end of that day, except that

Subsec. 104(5) formerly read:

(5) Idem — Every trust shall, on each day determined under subsection (4) in respect of the trust, be deemed to have disposed of all depreciable property of a prescribed class of the trust for proceeds equal to,

(a) where the fair market value of that property on that day exceeds the undepreciated capital cost thereof to the trust on that day, the amount of that undepreciated capital cost plus ½ of the amount of the excess, and

and to have reacquired each such depreciable property of that class immediately thereafter at a capital cost (in this subsection referred to as the "deemed capital cost") equal to that proportion of the proceeds determined under paragraph (a) or (b), as the case may be, that the amount that was the fair market value of that property on that day is of the total of the amounts that were the fair market values of all properties of that class on that day, except that

(c) where the amount that was the capital cost to the trust of any particular property of that class exceeds the deemed capital cost to the trust of the property, for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) as they apply in respect of the property at any subsequent time,

(i) the capital cost to the trust of the property shall be deemed to be the amount that was the capital cost to the trust of the property, and

(ii) the excess shall be deemed to have been allowed to the trust in respect of the property under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing income for taxation years before the reacquisi-

tion by the trust of the property, and any other amount allowed to the trust in respect of the property under that paragraph in computing income for those years shall be deemed to be nil,

(d) for the purposes of this subsection, the words "at the end of a taxation year," in subsection 13(1) shall be deemed to read "at the particular time a trust is deemed by subsection 104(5) to have disposed of depreciable property of a prescribed class," and

(e) for the purpose of computing the excess, if any, referred to in subsection 13(1) at the end of the taxation year of a trust that included a day on which the trust is deemed by this subsection to have disposed of all depreciable property of a prescribed class, any amount that, on that day, was included in the trust's income for the year by virtue of subsection 13(1) as it reads by virtue of paragraph (d), shall be deemed to be an amount included in the taxpayer's income by virtue of section 13 for a prior taxation year.

Proposed Addition — 104(7.01)

(7.01) Trusts deemed to be resident in Canada — Where a trust is deemed by subsection 94(3) to be resident in Canada for a taxation year for the purpose of computing the trust's income for the year, the maximum amount deductible under subsection (6) in computing its income for the year is deemed to be the amount, if any, by which

(a) the maximum amount that, but for this subsection, would be deductible under subsection (6) in computing its income for the year, exceeds the lesser of

(b) the total of

(i) the designated income of the trust for the year (within the meaning assigned by subsection 210.2(2)), and

(ii) all amounts each of which is 50% of an amount paid or credited in the year to the trust that would, if this Act were read without reference to subparagraph 94(3)(a)(iii) and sections 216 and 217, be an amount as a consequence of the payment or crediting of which the trust would have been liable to tax under Part XIII, and

(c) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the maximum amount that, but for this subsection, would be deductible under subsection (6) in computing its income for the year

exceeds

(ii) the maximum amount that would be deductible in computing its income for the year if this section were read without reference to this subsection and if the only amounts that became payable in the year to a beneficiary were amounts that became payable in the year to

(A) a partnership (other than a partnership that is a Canadian partnership on the day that would be determined under paragraph 214(3)(f) in respect of the amount if the assumptions set out in subparagraph (b)(ii) applied), or

(B) a non-resident person on the day that would be determined under paragraph 214(3)(f) in respect of the amount if the assumptions set out in subparagraph (b)(ii) applied.

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 14(4), will add subsec. 104(7.01), applicable to trust taxation years that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: New subsection 104(7.01) restricts the amount that a trust, that is deemed by subsection 94(3) to be resident in Canada, can deduct in computing its income in the event that the trust has Canadian-source income and makes distributions to beneficiaries not resident in Canada.

Subsection 104(7.01) effectively acts as a proxy for taxes under Parts XII.2 and XIII. Trusts to which new subsection 94(3) applies are not subject to Part XII.2 because of an existing exemption for non-resident trusts in Part XII.2. They are also exempt from collecting Part XIII tax because they are not treated as resident in Canada for this purpose. Further, because of new subparagraph 94(3)(a)(iii), they are exempt from Part XIII tax on payments made to them. (The latter Part XIII exemption is new. Existing subparagraph 94(1)(c)(ii) allows a tax credit to be claimed under section 126 in connection with Part XIII tax.)

More specifically, the amount by which the maximum deduction under subsection 104(6) for a taxation year is reduced under subsection 104(7.01) is equal to the lesser of two amounts:

- the total of
  - the trust's "designated income" for the year (as defined in Part XII.2), which essentially consists of taxable capital gains from taxable Canadian property and income from businesses carried on in Canada, and
  - 50% of all amounts paid or credited in the year to the trust that would, disregarding express provisions to the contrary in the Act, be subject to Part XIII tax; and
- the portion of the maximum deduction under subsection 104(6) that is attributable to amounts that become payable in the year (determined with reference to subsection 104(24)) to non-resident persons and to partnerships (other than Canadian partnerships, referred to in section 102).

The example below illustrates the operation of new subsection 104(7.01).

Example

1. Trust X is an offshore trust established by Stefan, a long-term resident of Canada. The primary beneficiaries under the trust are Linda (a resident of Canada) and Bart (a resident of the United States).
2. Trust X receives $400 of dividends from a taxable Canadian corporation and has $1,200 of other income.
3. Trust income of $1,250 for 2001 is made payable to Bart. The remaining $350 is made payable to Linda.
4. Trust X is assumed to have designated $400 of dividends under subsection 104(19).

Results

1. Trust X is deemed by new subsection 94(3) to be resident in Canada for the purposes of computing its income.
2. Before taking into account subsection 104(6), Trust X's income is $1,600. Note, in this regard, that the dividends are included in computing the trust's income because of a proposed amendment to subsection 104(19). [This refers to an amendment to subsection 104(19) contained in a detailed Notice of Ways and Means Motion tabled on June 5, 2000.]
3. Before taking into account new subsection 104(7.01), the maximum deduction under subsection 104(6) is also $1,600.
4. Because of subsection 104(7.01), the maximum deduction under subsection 104(6) is reduced to $1,400 (i.e., $1,600 minus the lesser of: (50% × $400) and ($1,600 - $1,250)).
5. Assuming that the trust claims a deduction of $1,400, the trust would consequently have income of $200. If a tax rate of 50% were assumed, the trust would be liable for Canadian income tax of $100. (Note: The trust is expressly exempted from a Part XIII tax liability under new subparagraph 94(3)(a)(iii).) Disregarding this exemption, Part XIII tax liability would also have been $100 (i.e., 25% of $400).

New subsection 104(7.01) applies to trust taxation years that begin after 2000.

Related Provisions: 104(24) — Whether amount payable.

(7.1) Capital interest greater than income interest — Where it is reasonable to consider that one of the main purposes for the existence of any term, condition, right or other attribute of an interest in a trust (other than a personal trust) is to give a beneficiary a percentage interest in the property of the trust that is greater than the beneficiary's percentage interest in the income of the trust, no amount may be deducted under paragraph (6)(b) in computing the income of the trust.

(7.2) Avoidance of subsec. (7.1) — Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, where

(a) a taxpayer has acquired a right to or to acquire an interest in a trust, or a right to or to acquire a property of a trust, and

(b) it is reasonable to consider that one of the main purposes of the acquisition was to avoid the application of subsection (7.1) in respect of the trust, on a disposition of the right (other than pursuant to the exercise thereof), the interest or the property, there shall be included in computing the income of the taxpayer for the taxation year in which the disposition occurs the amount, if any, by which

(c) the proceeds of disposition of the right, interest or property, as the case may be, exceed

(d) the cost amount to the taxpayer of the right, interest or property, as the case may be.

(8) [Repealed under former Act]

(9) [Repealed under former Act]

(10) Where property owned for non-residents — Where all the property of a trust is owned by the trustee for the benefit of non-resident persons or their unborn issue, in addition to the amount that may be deducted under subsection (6), there may be deducted in computing the income of the trust for a taxation year for the purposes of this Part, such part of the dividends and interest received by the trust in a year from a non-resident-owned investment corporation as are not deductible under that subsection in computing the income of the trust for the year.

Related Provisions: 104(11) — Dividend received from non-resident-owned investment corporation; 212(9) — Exemptions from withholding tax.

(11) Dividend received from non-resident-owned investment corporation — Where any part of the dividends received in a taxation year by a trust described in subsection (10) from a non-resident-owned investment corporation are deductible under that subsection in computing the income of the trust for the year, for the purposes of Part XIII the trust shall be deemed to have paid to a non-resident person on the last day of the year an amount equal to that part, as income of the non-resident person from the trust.

Related Provisions: 212(1)(c) — Estate or trust income; 212(9) — Exemptions from non-resident withholding tax.

(a) the total of all amounts designated under subsection (14) by the trust in respect of the year, and

(b) the accumulating income of the trust for the year.

(21.3) Net taxable capital gains of trust determined — For the purposes of this section, the net taxable capital gains of a trust for a taxation year is the amount, if any, by which the total of the taxable capital gains of the trust for the year exceeds the total of

(a) its allowable capital losses for the year, and

Proposed Amendment — 104(21.3)(a)

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is an allowable capital loss (other than an allowable business investment loss) of the trust for the year from the disposition of a capital property, and

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 14(5), will amend para. 104(21.3)(a) to read as above, applicable to trust taxation years that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: Subsection 104(21.3) defines the expression "net taxable capital gains". The expression is used in subsections 104(21) and (21.2), which permit a trust to flow its taxable capital gains realized in a year through to a beneficiary who has received a portion of the trust's income for the year. The trust can flow through its taxable capital gains to beneficiaries only to the extent of its net taxable capital gains for the year.

Under subsection 104(21.3), the net taxable capital gains of a trust for a taxation year equals the amount, if any, by which its total taxable capital gains for the year exceeds the total of two amounts:

- its total allowable capital losses for the year, and
- the amount deducted by it under paragraph 111(1)(b) in computing its taxable income for the year (i.e., deduction of carried-over net capital losses for years preceding and the 3 years immediately following the year).

Subsection 104(21.3) is amended so that allowable business investment losses (ABILs) are disregarded for the purpose of the first of the two amounts. Accordingly, ABILs will not result in a reduction of taxable capital gains that may be flowed through to beneficiaries under trusts and against which allowable capital losses can be claimed.

This amendment applies to trust taxation years that begin after 2000.

(b) the amount, if any, deducted under paragraph 111(1)(b) in computing its taxable income for the year.

(a) the beneficiary is deemed to have realized capital gains (in this subsection referred to as the "deemed gains") from the disposition of capital property in the beneficiary's taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends equal to the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount determined when the amount of the allocated gain is divided by the fraction in paragraph 38(a) that applies to the trust for the particular taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the amount claimed by the beneficiary not exceeding the beneficiary's exempt capital gains balance for the year in respect of the trust;

(b) notwithstanding subsection (21) and except as a consequence of the application of paragraph (a), the amount of the allocated gain shall not be included in computing the beneficiary's income for the beneficiary's taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends;

(c) the trust shall disclose to the beneficiary in prescribed form the portion of the deemed gains that are in respect of capital gains realized on dispositions of property that occurred before February 28, 2000, after February 27, 2000 and before October 18, 2000, and after October 17, 2000 and, if it does not do so, the deemed gains are deemed to be in respect of capital gains realized on dispositions of property that occurred before February 28, 2000; and

(d) where a trust so elects under this paragraph in its return of income for the year,

(i) the portion of the deemed gains that are in respect of capital gains from dispositions of property that occurred before February 28, 2000 is deemed to be that proportion of the deemed gains that the number of days that are in the particular year and before February 28, 2000 is of the number of days that are in the particular year,

(ii) the portion of the deemed gains that are in respect of capital gains from dispositions of property that occurred in the year and in the period that began at the beginning of February 28, 2000 and ended at the end of October 17, 2000, is deemed to be that proportion of the deemed gains that the number of days that are in the year and in that period is of the number of days that are in the particular year, and

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 14(6), will amend subsec. 104(24) to read as above, applicable to trust taxation years that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: The determination of when an amount becomes payable in a taxation year is relevant for a number of purposes, including the determination of the amount deductible under subsection 104(6). Under subsection 104(24), an amount (e.g., income payable to a beneficiary) is deemed not to have become payable in the year to a beneficiary unless it was paid in the year to the beneficiary or the beneficiary was entitled in the year to enforce payment of the amount.

Subsection 104(24) is amended so that it also applies for the purpose of new subsection 104(7.01), which is described in the commentary above.

Related Provisions: 94(3)(a) [proposed] — Application to trust deemed resident in Canada; 94(4) — FAPI does not include "amount payable" to beneficiary; 104(18) — Trust for person under age 21.

Selected Cases [subsec. 104(24)]: Langer Family Trust v. MNR, [1992] 1 C.T.C. 2119 (TCC); appealed to FCTD (April 16, 1992), File T-907-92 (No deduction where income not "paid in the year to the person").

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-286R2: Trusts — amount payable; IT-342R: Trusts — income payable to beneficiaries; IT-381R3: Trusts — capital gains and losses and the flow-through of taxable capital gains to beneficiaries.

107.4 (1) Qualifying disposition — For the purpose of this section, a "qualifying disposition" of a property means a disposition of the property by a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "contributor") as a result of a transfer of the property to a particular trust where

(a) the disposition does not result in a change in the beneficial ownership of the property;

(b) the proceeds of disposition would, if this Act were read without reference to this section and sections 69 and 73, not be determined under any provision of this Act;

(c) if the particular trust is non-resident, the disposition is not

(i) by a person resident in Canada or by a partnership (other than a partnership each member of which is non-resident), or

(ii) a transfer of taxable Canadian property from a non-resident person who was resident in Canada in any of the ten calendar years preceding the transfer;

(d) the contributor is not a partnership, if the disposition is part of a series of transactions or events that begin after December 17, 1999 that includes the cessation of the partnership's existence and a subsequent distribution from a personal trust to a former member of the partnership in circumstances to which subsection 107(2) applies;

(e) unless the contributor is a trust, there is immediately after the disposition no absolute or contingent right of a person or partnership (other than the contributor or, where the property was co-owned, each of the joint contributors) as a beneficiary (determined with reference to subsection 104(1.1)) under the particular trust;

(f) the contributor is not an individual (other than a trust described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1)), if the particular trust is described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1);

(g) the disposition is not part of a series of transactions or events

(i) that begins after December 17, 1999 and that includes the subsequent acquisition, for consideration given to a personal trust, of a capital interest or an income interest in the trust,

(ii) that begins after December 17, 1999 and that includes the disposition of all or part of a capital interest or an income interest in a personal trust, other than a disposition solely as a consequence of a distribution from a trust to a person or partnership in satisfaction of all or part of that interest, or

(iii) that begins after June 5, 2000 and that includes the transfer to the particular trust of particular property as consideration for the acquisition of a capital interest in the particular trust, if the particular property can reasonably be considered to have been received by the particular trust in order to fund a distribution (other than a distribution that is proceeds of disposition of a capital interest in the particular trust);

(h) the disposition is not, and is not part of, a transaction

(i) that occurs after December 17, 1999, and

(ii) that includes the giving to the contributor, for the disposition, of any consideration (other than consideration that is an interest of the contributor as a beneficiary under the particular trust or that is the assumption by the particular trust of debt for which the property can, at the time of the disposition, reasonably be considered to be security);

(i) subsection 73(1) does not apply to the disposition and would not apply to the disposition if

(i) no election had been made under that subsection, and

(ii) section 73 were read without reference to subsection 73(1.02); and

(j) if the contributor is an amateur athlete trust, a cemetery care trust, an employee trust, an inter vivos trust deemed by subsection 143(1) to exist in respect of a congregation that is a constituent part of a religious organization, a related segregated fund trust (as defined by section 138.1), a trust described in paragraph 149(1)(o.4) or a trust governed by an eligible funeral arrangement, an employees profit sharing plan, a registered education savings plan or a registered supplementary unemployment benefit plan, the particular trust is the same type of trust.

107.4 (1) For the purpose of this section, a "qualifying disposition" of a property means a transfer of the property to a particular trust that was not a disposition of the property for the purpose of subdivision c because of paragraph (e) of the definition "disposition" in section 54, except where

(a) if the transfer is from another trust to the particular trust,

(i) each trust can reasonably be considered to act as agent for the same beneficiary or beneficiaries in respect of the property transferred, or

(ii) the transferee trust can reasonably be considered to act as agent for the transferor trust in respect of the property transferred; and

(b) in any other case, it is reasonable to consider that the particular trust acts as agent in respect of the property transferred.

(2) Application of paragraph (1)(a) — For the purpose of paragraph (1)(a),

(a) except where paragraph (b) applies, where a trust (in this paragraph and subsection (2.1) referred to as the "transferor trust"), in a period that does not exceed one day, disposes of one or more properties in the period to one or more other trusts, there is deemed to be no resulting change in the beneficial ownership of those properties if

(i) the transferor trust receives no consideration for the disposition, and

(ii) as a consequence of the disposition, the value of each beneficiary's beneficial ownership at the beginning of the period under the transferor trust in each particular property of the transferor trust (or group of two or more properties of the transferor trust that are identical to each other) is the same as the value of the beneficiary's beneficial ownership at the end of the period under the transferor trust and the other trust or trusts in each particular property (or in property that was immediately before the disposition included in the group of identical properties referred to above); and

(b) where a trust (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferor") governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund transfers a property to a trust (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferee") governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund, the transfer is deemed not to result in a change in the beneficial ownership of the property if the annuitant of the plan or fund that governs the transferor is also the annuitant of the plan or fund that governs the transferee.

(g) where the transferor is a related segregated fund trust (in this paragraph having the meaning assigned by section 138.1),

(i) paragraph 138.1(1)(i) does not apply in respect of a disposition of an interest in the transferor that occurs in connection with the qualifying disposition, and

(ii) in computing the amount determined under paragraph 138.1(1)(i) in respect of a subsequent disposition of an interest in the transferee trust where the interest is deemed to exist in connection with a particular life insurance policy, the acquisition fee (as defined by subsection 138.1(6)) in respect of the particular policy shall be determined as if each amount determined under any of paragraphs 138.1(6)(a) to (d) in respect of the policyholder's interest in the transferor had been determined in respect of the policyholder's interest in the transferee trust;

(h) if the transferor is a trust to which property had been transferred by an individual (other than a trust),

(i) where subsection 73(1) applied in respect of the property so transferred and it is reasonable to consider that the property was so transferred in anticipation of the individual ceasing to be resident in Canada, for the purposes of paragraph 104(4)(a.3) and the application of this paragraph to a disposition by the transferee trust after the particular time, the transferee trust is deemed after the particular time to be a trust to which the individual had transferred property in anticipation of the individual ceasing to reside in Canada and in circumstances to which subsection 73(1) applied, and

(ii) for the purposes of paragraph (j) of the definition "excluded right or interest" in subsection 128.1(10) and the application of this paragraph to a disposition by the transferee trust after the particular time, where the property so transferred was transferred in circumstances to which this subsection would apply if subsection (1) were read without reference to paragraphs (1)(h) and (i), the transferee trust is deemed after the particular time to be a trust an interest in which was acquired by the individual as a consequence of a qualifying disposition;

(i) if the transferor is a trust (other than a personal trust or a trust prescribed for the purposes of subsection 107(2)), the transferee trust is deemed to be neither a personal trust nor a trust prescribed for the purposes of subsection 107(2);

(j) if the transferor is a trust and a taxpayer disposes of all or part of a capital interest in the transferor because of the qualifying disposition and, as a consequence, acquires a capital interest or part of it in the transferee trust

(i) the taxpayer is deemed to dispose of the capital interest or part of it in the transferor for proceeds equal to the cost amount to the taxpayer of that interest or part of it immediately before the particular time, and

(ii) the taxpayer is deemed to acquire the capital interest or part of it in the transferee trust at a cost equal to the amount, if any, by which

(A) that cost amount

exceeds

(B) the amount by which the taxpayer's loss otherwise determined from the disposition referred to in subparagraph (i) would be reduced because of paragraph 107(1)(c) or (d) if the proceeds under that subparagraph were equal to the fair market value of the capital interest or part of it in the transferor immediately before the particular time;

(k) where the transferor is a trust, a taxpayer's beneficial ownership in the property ceases to be derived from the taxpayer's capital interest in the transferor because of the qualifying disposition and no part of the taxpayer's capital interest in the transferor was disposed of because of the qualifying disposition, there shall, immediately after the particular time, be added to the cost otherwise determined of the taxpayer's capital interest in the transferee trust, the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the cost amount to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's capital interest in the transferor immediately before the particular time,

B is the fair market value immediately before the particular time of the taxpayer's capital interest in the transferor,

C is the fair market value at the particular time of the taxpayer's capital interest in the transferor (determined as if the only property disposed of at the particular time were the particular property), and

D is the lesser of

(i) the amount, if any, by which the cost amount to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's capital interest in the transferor immediately before the particular time exceeds the fair market value of the taxpayer's capital interest in the transferor immediately before the particular time, and

(ii) the maximum amount by which the taxpayer's loss from a disposition of a capital interest otherwise determined could have been reduced because of paragraph 107(1)(c) or (d) if the taxpayer's capital interest in the transferor had been disposed of immediately before the particular time;

(l) where paragraph (k) applies to the qualifying disposition in respect of a taxpayer, the amount that would be determined under that paragraph in respect of the qualifying disposition if the amount determined for D in that paragraph were nil shall, immediately after the particular time, be deducted in computing the cost otherwise determined of the taxpayer's capital interest in the transferor;

(m) where paragraphs (j) and (k) do not apply in respect of the qualifying disposition, the transferor is deemed to acquire the capital interest or part of it in the transferee trust that is acquired as a consequence of the qualifying disposition

(i) where the transferee trust is a personal trust, at a cost equal to nil, and

(ii) in any other case, at a cost equal to the excess determined under paragraph (b) in respect of the qualifying disposition; and

(n) if the transferor is a trust and a taxpayer disposes of all or part of an income interest in the transferor because of the qualifying disposition and, as a consequence, acquires an income interest or a part of an income interest in the transferee trust, for the purpose of subsection 106(2), the taxpayer is deemed not to dispose of any part of the income interest in the transferor at the particular time.

Proposed Amendment — 113(1)(b)(i)(A)

(A) the corporation's relevant tax factor for the year,

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, subsec. 16(1), will amend cl. 113(1)(b)(i)(A) to read as above, applicable after 2000.

Technical Notes: Subsection 113(1) permits a resident corporation to deduct specified amounts in respect of dividends received from a foreign affiliate out of the exempt, taxable and pre-acquisition surplus of the foreign affiliate. The amounts so deductible are determined largely with reference to Part LIX of the Regulations. The deductions under paragraphs 113(1)(b) and (c) with regard to dividends out of taxable surplus are also determined with reference to the resident corporation's "relevant tax factor".

Subsection 113(1) is amended to explicitly link the "relevant tax factor" to the resident corporation receiving the dividends and the taxation year in which the dividends are received. This is consistent with the more explicit definition of "relevant tax factor" described above in the commentary on subsection 95(1).

This amendment applies after 2000.

Proposed Amendment — Allowing Provinces to Impose Tax on Income

Department of Finance/CCRA news release, January 25, 2000: Government Outlines Measures to Make Tax Systems More Flexible for Provinces and Territories

Finance Minister Paul Martin and National Revenue Minister Martin Cauchon today released the document Federal Administration of Provincial Taxes: New Directions, which outlines recent measures that will give provinces and territories greater tax policy flexibility.

"The federal government has taken the initiative of offering provinces and territories the option to levy their personal income taxes on either taxable income or basic federal tax," said Mr. Martin. "This is the biggest change in federal-provincial-territorial tax collection arrangements in over 30 years. It will allow the provinces and territories to pursue their own policy objectives while insulating their revenue bases from ongoing federal initiatives to reduce taxes."

A tax-on-income system eliminates the impact of changes to federal tax rates and credits on provincial-territorial revenues. At the same time, maintaining a common federal-provincial-territorial taxable income base will preserve the following benefits associated with the federal-provincial-territorial Tax Collection Agreements (TCAs):

- uniformity across provinces and territories with respect to what income should be taxed by both levels of government;
- a single form for taxpayers;
- a single tax collection agency; and
- substantial cost savings for the provinces and territories as a result of the federal government collecting their taxes generally free of charge — over the past five years the provinces and territories have saved some $1.5 billion as a result of the federal government administering their taxes.

"New guidelines have also been developed to allow for federal collection of a much broader range of provincial and territorial taxes," said Minister Cauchon. "The tax collection guidelines establish a simpler system, now in place, that is objective and transparent." Under the guidelines, the costs charged to provinces and territories are graduated to reflect the degree to which their taxes are harmonized with their federal counterparts.

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) asserts that the TCAs have worked well. In its 1997 Canada Review the OECD said, "The benefits of decentralized taxing authority can be achieved without sacrificing a harmonized and administratively simple tax system by federal tax collection agreements. This has been a success story in the case of income taxes in Canada."

Backgrounders providing additional details on the tax-on-income model and the new guidelines are attached [not reproduced here — ed].

Note re Provincial Income Tax: In addition to the tax under Part I of the federal Act, as above, an individual who resides in or has income earned in any of the provinces is also subject to provincial income tax. Except for Quebec, which collects its own tax on separate income tax returns, each other province imposes a tax that is expressed as a percentage of the tax otherwise payable under Part I of the federal Act and is collected for the province by the federal government on a joint tax return. For rates and surtaxes see introductory pages.

Proposed Amendment — Abandonment of 1996 Proposal re Seniors' Benefit

Department of Finance news release, July 28, 1998: Finance Minister's Statement on the Seniors Benefit

Finance Minister Paul Martin today issued the following statement regarding Canada's retirement income system: ....

"Second, we proposed the restructuring of the OAS/GIS [Old Age Security/Guaranteed Income Supplement] into a new integrated Seniors Benefit. It is this proposal that I wish to discuss this morning....

"Therefore, in light of the structural enhancements to the public pension system, the turnaround in the country's economic prospects, and because of our commitment to sound fiscal management, the government is today announcing that the proposed Seniors Benefit will not proceed. The existing OAS/GIS system will be fully maintained...."

120.1 [Repealed]

History [120.1]: S. 120.1 repealed by 2000, c. 19, s. 28, applicable to 1998 et seq. It formerly read:

120.1 (1) Forward averaging credit — There may be deducted from the amount that would, but for this section, be the tax otherwise payable under this Part (other than the tax payable with respect to a return of income referred to in subsection 110.4(5)) by an individual for a taxation year an amount equal to the product obtained when

(a) the amount specified in the individual's election for the year under subsection 110.4(2) and, where the individual's legal representative has filed on the individual's behalf an election under subsection (2) for the year, the individual's accumulated averaging amount at the end of the year

(b) the percentage referred to in paragraph 117(2)(c).

(2) Year of death — Where an individual dies in a taxation year before 1998 (and is resident in Canada at the time of death) and the individual's legal representative files with the individual's return of income (other than a return of income referred to in subsection 110.4(5)) for the year an election in prescribed form on or before the day on or before which the return is required to be filed, there shall be added to the amount that would, but for this section, be the individual's tax payable for the year under this Part with respect to the return of income an amount equal to the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of the taxes that would have been payable by the individual under this Part for the three immediately preceding taxation years if the individual's taxable income otherwise determined for each of those years were increased by ⅓ of the individual's accumulated averaging amount at the end of the year in which the individual died and if this Part were read without reference to sections 119 to 127.3

(b) the total of the taxes that would have been payable by the individual under this Part for the three immediately preceding taxation years if this Part were read without reference to sections 119 to 127.3.

(3) Deduction and additions — Each amount deducted or added under subsection (1) or (2) in computing the tax payable under this Part by an individual for a taxation year shall, notwithstanding those subsections, be equal to the total of

(a) the amount that would, but for this subsection, be determined for the year under subsection (1) or (2), as the case may be, and

(b) an amount equal to that proportion of 52% of the amount referred to in paragraph (a) that

(i) the individual's income for the year, other than the individual's income earned in the year in a province,

is of

(ii) the individual's income for the year.

(4) Presumption — Where the amount deductible by an individual under subsection (1) exceeds the amount that would, but for that subsection, be the individual's tax otherwise payable under this Part for the year, the excess shall be deemed to be an amount paid by the individual, on the day the individual was required to file the election under subsection 110.4(2), on account of the individual's tax for the year under this Part.

(5) Reduction — Notwithstanding subsection (4), the amount of the excess referred to in that subsection shall be reduced by an amount equal to that proportion of 16.5% of the amount of the excess that

(a) the individual's income earned in the year in a province that, on January 1, 1973, was a province providing schooling allowances (within the meaning of the Youth Allowances Act, chapter Y-1 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1970)

(b) the individual's income for the year.

(6) Individual not resident — Where an individual was not resident in Canada throughout the taxation years referred to in paragraph (2)(b), the amount determined under that paragraph shall be equal to the amount that would have been so determined if the individual had been resident in Canada throughout those years and the individual's incomes for those years had been from sources in Canada.

(7) Application — This section does not apply to an individual described in subsection (6) unless the individual's legal representatives have, on or before the day on or before which they were required to file the individual's return of income under this Part for the taxation year in which the individual died (or would have been required to file such a return had tax been payable by the individual under this Part for the year), filed a return of the individual's income for each of the three taxation years referred to in paragraph (2)(b) in the same form and containing the same information as the return that the individual, or legal representatives, would have been required to file under this Part if the individual had been resident in Canada throughout each of those three years and if tax had been payable by the individual under this Part for each of those three years.

(8) Amount required to be included — Where an amount is required by virtue of this section to be included in computing the individual's tax otherwise payable under this Part for a taxation year, the references in subsection 120(1) and section 121 of this Act and subsection 120(3.1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, to "the tax otherwise payable under this Part" shall be read as references to "the amount that would, but for section 120.1, be the tax otherwise payable under this Part".

That portion of para. 120.1(3)(b) preceding subpara. (i) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 97, to substitute "52%" for "47%", applicable to 1989 et seq. except that for the 1989 taxation year "52%" shall be read as "49.5%".

120.2 (1) Minimum tax carry-over — There may be deducted from the amount that, but for this section, section 120 and subsection 120.4(2), would be an individual's tax payable under this Part for a particular taxation year such amount as the individual claims not exceeding the lesser of

(a) the portion of the total of the individual's additional taxes determined under subsection (3) for the 7 taxation years immediately preceding the particular year that was not deducted in computing the individual's tax payable under this Part for a taxation year preceding the particular year, and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that, but for this section, section 120 and subsection 120.4(2), would be the individual's tax payable under this Part for the particular year if the individual were not entitled to any deduction under any of sections 126, 127 and 127.4

exceeds

(ii) the individual's minimum amount for the particular year determined under section 127.51.

(2) [Repealed under former Act]

(3) Additional tax determined — For the purposes of subsection (1), additional tax of an individual for a taxation year is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the individual's minimum amount for the year determined under section 127.51

exceeds the total of

(b) the amount that, but for section 120 and subsection 120.4(2), would be the individual's tax payable under this Part for the year if the individual were not entitled to any deduction under any of sections 126, 127 and 127.4, and

(c) that proportion of the amount, if any, by which

(i) the individual's special foreign tax credit for the year determined under section 127.54

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts deductible under section 126 from the individual's tax for the year that

(iii) the amount of the individual's foreign taxes for the year within the meaning assigned by subsection 127.54(1)

is of

(iv) the amount that would be the individual's foreign taxes for the year within the meaning assigned by subsection 127.54(1) if the definition "foreign taxes" in that subsection were read without reference to "⅔ of".

(a) was established before June 18, 1971;

(b) was resident in Canada on June 18, 1971 and without interruption thereafter until the end of the year;

(c) did not carry on any active business in the year;

(d) has not received any property by way of gift since June 18, 1971;

Proposed Addition — 122(2)(d.1)

(d.1) was not a trust to which a contribution, within the meaning assigned by section 94, was made after June 22, 2000; and

Application: The June 22, 2000 draft legislation, s. 18, will add para. 122(2)(d.1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2000.

Technical Notes: Subsection 122(1) provides that, instead of graduated income tax rates, inter vivos trusts are generally subject to top marginal rates of income tax on their undistributed income. Subsection 122(2) permits graduated income tax rates for certain inter vivos trusts established before June 18, 1971. One of the conditions for an inter vivos trust continuing to qualify for graduated income tax rates is that it not receive any gifts after June 18, 1971.

Paragraph 122(2)(d.1) is introduced so that the graduated income tax rates cease to apply to a trust in the event that, after June 22, 2000, a "contribution" is made to the trust. The expression "contribution" is defined in new section 94.

This amendment applies to taxation years that begin after 2000.

(e) has not, after June 18, 1971, incurred

(i) any debt, or

(ii) any other obligation to pay an amount, to, or guaranteed by, any person with whom any beneficiary of the trust was not dealing at arm's length; and

(f) has not received any property after December 17, 1999, where

(i) the property was received as a result of a transfer from another trust,

(ii) subsection (1) applied to a taxation year of the other trust that began before the property was so received, and

(iii) no change in the beneficial ownership of the property resulted from the transfer.

Canadian Film or Video Production Tax Credit

Proposed Consultations — Changes to Film/Video Production Credit

Federal budget, supplementary information, February 28, 2000: Simplified Film Tax Incentives

The Canadian film and television production industry has achieved considerable expansion in recent years with the support of the federal and provincial governments. Federal support for

Canada's film industry includes two tax credits in respect of qualifying labour expenditures:

- the Canadian Film or Video Production Tax Credit (CFVPTC, generally equal to 25% of eligible labour expenses), for film or video productions certified by the Minister of Canadian Heritage as meeting specific Canadian ownership and artistic criteria [section 125.4 — ed.]; and
- the Film or Video Production Services Tax Credit (FVPSTC, generally equal to 11% of eligible Canadian labour expenses), for other film or video productions produced in Canada [section 125.5 — ed.].

In some cases, the CFVPTC may be difficult for Canadian film producers to access, particularly where financing arrangements are complex. The Government therefore intends to review the rules respecting the CFVPTC, in consultation with industry associations, to develop criteria for a streamlined mechanism for delivering the CFVPTC incentive. The objective of these discussions is to design criteria that

- result in a simplified calculation for the CFVPTC, based more closely on Canadian labour content;
- reflect the original objectives of the existing eligibility requirements for film and video productions that were announced in the 1995 budget; and
- are revenue-neutral in terms of the level of support to be given by the Government.
